JAPAN BEGINS BIG PUSH ON FORTS AT WOOSUNG, AND OCCUPIES VILLAGE

Chinese Are Withdrawing Into Open Country in Rain, Snow and Fog.

BRITONS AGAIN MAKE EFFORTS FOR PEACE

U. S. Consul General Asked to Protest Planes' Flight Over Foreign Quarter.

Shanghai (Monday), Feb. 8 (A.P.).—Japanese forces occupied the village of Woosung today in a march on the Chinese forts, after driving off the Chinese defenders, said dispatches from the battlefront.

The Japanese were advancing on the forts under a heavy barrage from destroyers off Woosung, the dispatches indicated, the Chinese withdrawing into open country to the west.

Meanwhile, with rifles and machine guns still popping over Chapei, desolate waste of Shanghai's once native town, British naval and civil authorities undertook new efforts to bring peace.

Cunningham's Aid Asked.

Edwin S. Cunningham, United States consul general and senior consul here, was asked by the head of the International Settlement's governing body today to protest to Japanese authorities against flights of Japanese airplanes over the foreign quarter.

Brig. Gen. E. B. MacNaghten, chairman of the settlement's municipal council, requested the American consul to make urgent representations that the Japanese airplane flights endangered life and property by drawing the fire of Chinese guns toward the settlement.

"Such flights not only are causing intense alarm among civilians," Gen. MacNaghten said, "but are endangering life and property, due to the fire attracted by the planes and from projectiles which have been falling on the settlement in great number."

New British Effort.

Gen. MacNaghten urged Consuul General Cunningham to try to persuade both the Chinese and Japanese authorities to refrain from any activities endangering the settlement.

The Japanese declared all branches of the armed services—navy, army

Would Demilitarize Zones Surrounding Principal Commercial Centers of China, and Provide for International Policing.

Tokyo (Monday), Feb. 8 (A.P.).—A foreign office spokesman said today that Japanese diplomats abroad had been instructed to seek favorable opportunities to broach a scheme for international demilitarization of zones surrounding the principal commercial centers of China.

The foreign powers to which the scheme would be broached would retain permanently extraterritorial rights at such places.

The centers Japan proposes to demilitarize are Shanghai, Canton, Hankow, Tsingtao and Tientsin. Manchuria is excluded from the plan.

Japan proposes that such a scheme be embodied in an international agreement superseding the nine-power treaty.

The Japanese spokesman said the contemplated agreement should recognize that some measure of international intervention is necessary to give China peace and stable government, whereas the nine-power treaty is based on the principle of avoiding foreign interference in China.

Each center would be surrounded by a neutral zone 15 to 20 miles wide, policed under international supervision, from which Chinese soldiers would be permanently excluded.

The spokesman said the foreign office believes the first opportunity for formal presentation of such a scheme

POWERS WAIT STEPS BY TOKYO FOR PEACE

(Associated Press.)

The eleventh day of the bitter fighting between the Chinese and Japanese at Shanghai passed without definite steps on the part of the United States and the three cooperating European powers to suggest a new peace plan to the Tokyo government.

It was a week ago yesterday that President Hoover initiated the plan which China accepted and Japan rejected. The latter's statement of its intentions to treat the Manchurian and the Shanghai situations as entirely separate and to increase its military forces for the defense of its citizens and property in the Shanghai area has halted diplomatic approaches temporarily.

Secretary Stimson and the foreign ministers of other interested powers are anxiously awaiting the outcome of the fighting which is rapidly developing into a large military movement. It now involves a 16-mile area between the International Settlement and the Yangtze River, and centers about the defenses of Woo-

SKIPPER, IN TEARS, TELLS HOW 21 DIED

Jabot's Captain Praised by Six Survivors as Steamer Reaches New York.

New York, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Six survivors of the fishing schooner Eleanor Nickerson, which the Belgian liner Jean Jadot sliced in two off Halifax Friday, arrived in New York today when the Jadot docked.

Tears streamed down the youthful face of Capt. Jean Marie Lavigne, of the Jadot, as he told of the tragedy in which 21 of the Nickerson's crew lost their lives. As he talked his wife stood at his side, crying.

The six survivors, who were all on the schooner's deck when she was rammed in half by the Jadot, had little to say beyond praising Capt. Lavigne for his seamanship and his treatment of them after they were rescued from a tossing dory.

Frank B. Leblanc, of Boston; his brother, Paul, of Malden, Mass.; Calvin Hemeon, of Dorcester; Arthur Burke, of Boston; Edmond Burbine, of Malden, and Pat Feltmate, of Canso, Nova Scotia, are the men saved.

The barometer at 29, seas lashed by the gale, snow and flying spume shutting out clear view ahead—such was the sea when the collision occurred, the men said.

Capt. Lavigne said he got a clear view of the little fishing schooner once when she was about 2½ miles away. Then rolling waves and snow

Vincent Coll Shot Dead In Gotham; Killer Runs

New York, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Vincent Coll, recently acquitted of the Harlem "baby slaying," in which a 5-year-old boy was killed by gangster bullets, was shot and killed in a drug store on the lower West Side tonight.

The assailant escaped.

Woman Is Injured When Hit by Taxi

Is Identified by Daughter; Driver Freed Pending Outcome of Hurts.

Mrs. Jennie Piazzo, 66 years old, of 1711 North Capitol street, was in Sibley Hospital early today with serious head injuries, received when she was knocked down by a taxicab in front of 19 Rhode Island avenue northwest. The driver of the cab was released in custody of his attorney.

The accident happened at 6:30 o'clock last night, but the woman remained unidentified until early this morning, when her daughter, Miss Jennie Piazzo, who heard of the accident, called at the hospital.

The taxicab was operated by Earl Shamwell, colored, 21 years old, of 1328 Fort drive northwest, who was operating his car west on Rhode Island avenue; he said he did not see the woman in time to stop his cab. Other witnesses said she was crossing the street above the crosswalk, and after hesitating and taking a few backward steps, ran in front of the cab.

The woman's skull is believed to be fractured.

Army Lieutenant Killed; Plane Passenger Saved

Rantoul, Ill., Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Lieut. Albert L. Alexander, of Chanute Field, was burned to death late last night when the army plane which he was piloting crashed to the ground from a low altitude.

Lloyd Bender, son of Capt. Walter Bender, of the field corps, was a passenger, but he escaped with only minor injuries. Field officials were unable to account for the accident. Alexander was the son of Maj. Albert Alexander, of the Dental Corps, now stationed in the Philippine Islands.

Sermon on Lincoln Heard by Hoovers

Historic New York Avenue Church Pew Occupied by Nation's Chief.

The President and Mrs. Hoover were among a large congregation yesterday morning at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church which heard Dr. Joseph Sizoo, the pastor, preach on "The Voice of Lincoln."

Going to the church as they did last year on the Sunday preceding Lincoln's birthday, the President and the First Lady sat in the historic Lincoln pew which the great Emancipator occupied when he attended services there.

"Lincoln's contribution to the world of today is to be found in his life of humility, mercy, justice and in his abounding faith in God," Dr. Sizoo said. He expanded on each of the Civil-War President's characteristics, giving examples of them, and telling how they might well be adopted by the people of today. He said that in every major crisis the country will find a Lincoln to lead it.

BRUENING ASKS LEAGUE ACTION IN MEMEL CASE

ASSAILS LITHUANIAN "STATUTE VIOLATION"

Plans to Represent Nation if Council Meeting Is Called at Once.

Geneva, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Chancellor Heinrich Bruening, of Germany, came to Geneva for the first time in an official capacity today to attend the world disarmament conference and announced he would insist on a meeting of the council of the League of Nations at once to consider the "Memel question."

The deposing and arrest of Otto Boettcher, German President of Memel, an "international city" in Lithuania, were described by the chancellor as a flagrant violation of the Memel statute drafted by Norman Davis in 1924 and guaranteed by England, France, Italy and Japan.

Herr Bruening told the Associated Press that "Germany is extremely agitated over the Lithuanian government's action, which it considers one of the most serious cases of violation of league obligations which has yet come before the League of Nations."

May Occupy Germany's Seat.

"If the meeting is called before Tuesday, as I confidently hope it will," he said, "I shall personally occupy Germany's seat in the council meeting. That in itself will indicate what importance we attach to the question."

He added that a note would be prepared tonight for presentation to Secretary General Sir Eric Drummond tomorrow, containing Germany's demand for an early session

The German chancellor was given a tremendous ovation at the railway station on his arrival and many said there had been no such demonstration for a German official since the day of the late Foreign Minister Gustav Stresemann. As he emerged from the station the German colony broke into cheers of "Hoch, Bruening!"

After registering at a hotel he called on Arthur Henderson, chairman of the arms parley, and Sir John Simon, foreign secretary of Great Britain. He was preceded by two delegates from the National Socialist party in Germany.

Claim Hitler Will Decide.

So far as can be learned, these lieutenants of Adolf Hitler will attempt to convince the conference delegates that it is useless to nego-

Sunken Submarine Is Entirely Flooded

Navy Assumes Men and Officers of M-2 Went to Merciful Death.

Portland, England, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Divers working on the sunken British submarine M-2 at the bottom of the English Channel found today that the vessel is flooded from stem to stern.

It was persistently rumored here tonight that two bodies had been found jammed in the submarine's conning tower. Dockyard authorities, however, said they had no knowledge of such a discovery.

Naval officials assumed that the 61 officers and men of the crew had a swift and merciful death from drowning when the submersible dived and was lost ten days ago in maneuvers off the promontory of Portland Bill in Dead Man's Bay. The possibility that the water trickled in slowly could not be ignored, however, they said.

BAKER'S DEATH WITNESSES GET PHONE THREATS

GOGGLES FOUND GIVE FINGERPRINT CLEW

3 Who Saw Riedel Murdered Receive Warning to Maintain Silence.

A homicidal maniac, to whom is attributed the series of shootings which have felled four persons in the past five days, is believed to be at large in the city with squads of detectives attempting to ferret him out.

Not only has he killed one man, but, in addition, he has attempted to terrorize witnesses who have given descriptions of him to the police. Three witnesses of the fatal shooting of Paul Riedel, bakery owner, who was killed Saturday night, yesterday received threats over the telephone to "keep your mouths shut."

Goggles found in Chevy Chase yesterday have been identified as those worn by the bandit, who Saturday night held up and robbed David Tievsky, in his store at 4909 Wisconsin avenue. The description of this bandit corresponded generally with that of the murderer of Riedel.

Finger Prints Give Clew.

Fingerprints found on the goggles which may be those of the murderer of Riedel, may lead to the apprehension of the murderer.

Fleets of automobiles and motorcycles were added to the regular street patrol by Inspector Frank S. W Burke, in an effort to curb the activities of the deranged criminal, who is believed to have ruthlessly shot down Riedel, seriously wounded Gordon T. Backus, slightly wounded Helen Andrews and Boris Beall.

So far as the police investigation has progressed, Inspector Burke pointed out, the only one of the shootings where there was an evident motive was in the Riedel killing, in which it was apparent that the intent of the bandit was robbery.

Kept Money on Person.

Inspector Burke said Riedel had always told his friends that he would never submit to a bandit. It is thought that Riedel resisted when the robber attempted to take his money, and the shots were poured into him. There has been no evidence uncovered which would indicate that Riedel had been robbed.

While the cash drawer was open, and a small amount of money was in the till, Riedel, Inspector Burke said, had been in the habit of removing bills from the drawer and keeping them on his person.

The evidence which tends to connect the shootings of the Beall and Andrews girl, the killing of Riedel and the shooting of Backus, is the ammunition used in each case. All are of .32 caliber and are copper-coated. A possible link between the Riedel and the Backus cases are the license tags of the automobiles used. In the two cases Maryland tags were observed. In the Riedel case the first four numbers were given as 2093, and in the Backus

70 on Snowbound Train Feared Frozen to Death

London, Feb. 7 (U.P.).—The Daily Express correspondent at Vienna reported tonight that 70 persons were feared frozen to death on a snowbound train near Bodok, Roumania. Terrible storms caused unprecedented havoc in many districts of Roumania, Czechoslovakia and Hungary, the dispatch said. Snow was so heavy that plows were unable to force a way through to reach the train near Bodok.

Many towns and villages were isolated, and several trains were snowbound, the correspondent reported, adding that wolves were invading Hungarian villages in search of food.

Fliers Found in Sahara After 6 Days of Torture

Oran, Algeria, Feb. 7 (U.P.).—A military airplane cruising over the shifting sands of the Sahara flashed a radio message to Oran today that three French fliers had been found alive after six days of terrible suffering in the desert wastelands.

The message brought a triumphant conclusion to one of the most dramatic aerial rescues ever made in the Sahara.

The three fliers had been forced down in the Erg district, where they were stranded without sufficient food or water. Airplanes, with which they could communicate by radio, hunted them over thousands of miles of wasteland. They are Jean Reginensi, Robert Lenier and Joseph Touge.

Day after day, as their water supply dwindled and they suffered extreme thirst in the desert hills, the three men sat near their radio, listening to wireless reports made by rescue fliers who were handicapped because Reginensi and his companions had lost their bearings and could not tell them where to search.

Occasionally they would hear music broadcast from some distant station, but toward the end the batteries of their set began to fail and they were about to lose touch with the world

SMITH SAYS HE'LL RUN IF PARTY WANTS HIM; ROOSEVELT FIGHT SEEN

PARTY CHIEFS HERE INTERPRET WORDS

Robinson, Running Mate of 1928, Sees Wisdom in Position Assumed.

Mexico City, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Newton D. Baker, who has repeatedly declined to take cognizance of reports linking his name with the Democratic presidential nomination, today showed the keenest interest in Al Smith's willingness to run.

The Ohioan, Secretary of War under President Wilson, could not be drawn into commenting on the position of the 1928 Democratic standard bearer.

"I emphatically do not care to comment," he said when reached here during a visit in Mexico.

Baker read an advance synopsis of what the New York governor had to say eagerly, but insisted he was in Mexico on vacation and had no political comment to make.

Comment of Fox and Farley.

Dayton, Ohio, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Commenting on the Smith statement tonight, former Gov. James M. Cox, of Ohio, the Democratic presidential candidate in 1920, said:

"Gov. Smith of course is moved by the urge of his friends. No man in public life since Blaine and Bryan has had such a large personal following. Naturally, there is a feeling that he is entitled to another chance. He has opened the way to determine just how widespread that is."

New York, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—James A. Farley, State Democratic chairman, who has predicted Gov. Roosevelt will win the party's presidential nomination on the first ballot, used fifteen words to comment on the announcement of Alfred E. Smith that he would accept the nomination again.

"Gov. Smith," said Farley, "has a perfect right to issue the statement that I have just read."

Tammany Leader John F. Curry refused to comment on the Smith announcement, saying he would wait until he read it in the newspapers. A number of other Tammany men expressed the same idea.

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Gov. George White, commenting on the statement of Alfred E. Smith, tonight said:

"Mr. Smith has done only what is the privilege of every American citizen. I feel that his statement has cleared the atmosphere regarding his position in the forthcoming campaign."

(Associated Press.)

Washington political leaders almost unanimously accepted Alfred E.

Moslems Fight Police; Two Killed, Eight Hurt

Srinagar, Kashmir, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Thousands of howling Moslems attacked police today at three places in Kashmir. Two Moslems were killed and eight persons wounded, including two policemen.

The disorders occurred in Kashmir's internal strife between Moslems and Hindus, the Moslems agitating for the overthrow of the maharajah, Sir Hari Singh. Four thousand Moslems attacked police here, severely wounding one.

SMITH'S STATEMENT.

The statement by Mr. Smith follows:

So many inquiries have come to me from friends throughout the country who worked for and believe in me, as to my attitude in the present political situation, that I feel that I owe it to my friends and to the millions of men and women who supported me so loyally in 1928 to make my position clear.

If the Democratic national convention, after careful consideration, should decide that it wants me to lead, I will make the fight; but I will not make a preconvention campaign to secure the support of delegates.

By action of the Democratic national convention of 1928, I am the leader of my party in the Nation. With a full sense of the responsibility thereby imposed, I shall not, in advance of the convention, either support or oppose the candidacy of any aspirant for the nomination.

States, However, He Will Not Campaign for Nomination.

FORMAL STATEMENT STIRS SPECULATION

Insists He Will Not Assist or Oppose Any Other Aspirant to Honor.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

Alfred E. Smith, of New York, will run for President again if the Democratic party wants him as its nominee.

He says as much in a statement made public today, the most portentous statement of the 1932 campaign—one presaging a terrific collision between Smith and Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York in the Chicago national convention next June. Every politician in Washington who saw the statement interpreted it to mean that Al is a candidate.

The statement was given out by Mr. Smith in his Empire State Building Saturday and held for release until this morning.

Cracks Whip of Authority.

In issuing his statement, Al Smith has cracked the whip of authority. He has come out of the wings and has taken the center of the stage. Again he wears his fighting symbol—the brown derby.

Only a few influential politicians in the country—Huey Long, of Louisiana, is one of them—thinks Smith has a chance for the 1932 nomination. It is to be doubted if Smith himself thinks he has a chance for it.

This being so, Washington places only one interpretation on today's statement, and that is that Alfred Emmanuel Smith is out to stop the man who gave him the sobriquet of "Happy Warrior," who twice nominated him for the Presidency—his fellow New Yorker, Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

Question Statement Raises.

Smith is out to wreck the onrushing Roosevelt band wagon, it is believed, and nominate some other candidate more to his liking, this despite his statement that he would not "support or oppose" the candidacy of any aspirant.

In nominating Smith at the Houston convention, Roosevelt said that he had "the habit of victory." Can Smith exercise that habit in Chicago? Can he "stop" Roosevelt?

On this, political experts are divided. Some think that Smith has fatally punctured the Roosevelt boom. Others feel that Roosevelt already has too much of a lead to be headed off.

Nevertheless, it was significant yesterday that those Southern and Western members who clambered onto the Roosevelt band wagon early were visibly pained, and, in some cases, actually frightened.

Blocks Early Nomination.

One thing is conceded, and that is that the boast made by Jim Farley, Roosevelt's manager, will not materialize. Farley has been saying all along that Roosevelt will be nominated on the first ballot.

That Smith and the favorite son candidates with whom he expects to fuse his strength will have enough votes to block Roosevelt at the outset seems certain.

In his statement, Smith says that he will not make "a preconvention campaign to secure the support of delegates." This, however, does not

17 CITIES GET FIELD LOAN RELIEF POSTS

Finance Corporation Moves Swiftly to Diffuse $2,000,000,000 in Trade.

(Associated Press.)

Moving swiftly to pour its stimulating credit energies into America's economic arteries, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation last night announced a set-up of seventeen regional loan agencies to help carry its power into every corner of the Nation.

Officially only 5 days old—the directors of the $2,000,000,000 financial giant took their oaths of office on February 2—the corporation already has made its first definite loan commitment and the Treasury has paid in $150,000,000 of the $500,000,000 capital from the Government.

G. R. Cooksey, secretary, disclosed the corporation had pledged to take from the Federal intermediate credit bank system all or any part left unsold of $15,000,000 in debentures to be offered today by the banks, dated as of February 15.

Following closely the structure of the War Finance Corporation, after which it is modeled, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation will put in the regional agencies' hands the receipt of applications. These agencies are to be functioning within a very short time in offices of the Federal Reserve Banks or branches in the designated cities. Others will be added.

Advisory committees will be appointed for each agency, with local representation thereon. The members will be announced soon. Many already have been chosen and have agreed to serve.

Application blanks and other data will be available to prospective borrowers at the regional agencies. The applications will be passed upon locally and sent here with recommendations.

The loan agencies and their managers are as follows:

Growth in Number of Machines Taken Noted; 26,537 Gallons of "Hard Liquor" Destroyed, Figures Show; October, 1931, Was Peak Month.

Prohibition agents and police have seized, and have officially confiscated in subsequent court action, almost 2,000 automobiles here in the last three years, figures released last night from the office of William R. Blandford, acting deputy administrator of the Prohibition Bureau, show.

The same agents seized some 26,537 gallons of "hard liquor," 4,467 gallons of beer, 992 gallons of wine, 135 gallons of ale, 77 gallons of cider, and 2 gallons of champagne, not to mention some 2,280 gallons of everyday alcohol within the last twelve months.

These figures are based only upon the actual amount of liquor destroyed by court order. Seizures made illegally and therefore technically to be returned to the point of seizure, are not included in the list.

As in the data published by The Post yesterday, there is to be noted a growth in the number of machines actually confiscated, and in the amount of liquor taken when "bootleggers" were arrested or raided.

For example, in 1929, the number of machines seized totaled 584. The next year the number dropped slightly to 551, and in 1931, the seizures mounted to 631, an increase of some 70 automobiles over the best previous year.

The peak of all months in regard to the number of machines seized was October, 1931, when 71 machines were taken. However, December of 1931 was no poor month, when 67 machines were taken. March of the same year also produced a return to the Government of 67 machines. Other months for the past year ranged from 43 upward.

In 1930 the seizures rose to 551 machines, all of which were placed under the hammer and sold by the Government to satisfy the claims of

VIRGINIA'S CONGRESS GROUP FAVORS BYRD

(Associated Press.)

The weight of the Virginia delegation in Congress yesterday was thrown officially behind Harry Flood Byrd for the Presidency.

The indorsement was made in a formal statement announcing concurrence of the two senators and nine Democratic House members in the Virginia General Assembly's indorsement of the former governor for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Yesterday's action was decided on three weeks ago at a meeting attended by six of the House members. Their meeting was called at the suggestion of T. McCall Frazier, warm friend of Byrd's and manager of John Garland Pollard's successful campaign for the Virginia governorship.

Since the meeting one member and then another has been absent from the city. Friday, Saturday and yesterday the statement was passed around among the members for their approval.

All gave it, which in light of opinions held by several of the members, indicated they are convinced Byrd will announce for the nomination and make an earnest campaign to obtain it. These members expressed the view—some publicly, others in private—that Virginia should not bind the delegation to a "favorite son" for the purpose of withholding its vote from some other candidate.

A real campaign for Byrd they favored.

A few days ago a Byrd-for-President publicity office was opened in Richmond under the sponsorship of W. T. Reed, wealthy tobacco man and a member of the State Government Reorganization Commission appointed by Byrd during his term as governor.

So far, Byrd has said no more than that he wished to serve the best interests of his party during the coming presidential campaign.

Notables Attend Col. Byron's Rites

Gen. Pershing, Gov. Ritchie and Others at Funeral of Former Officer.

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstwon, Md., Feb. 7.—With Gen. John J. Pershing, Gov. Albert C. Ritchie and many other high-ranking officers of the United States Army and Government in attendance, the funeral of Col. Joseph C. Byron was held this afternoon from St. John's Episcopal Church, with the Rev. Dr. Walter Byron Stehl, rector, officiating.

Gen. Pershing was a classmate at West Point of Col. Byron and they have been close personal friends since. Besides Gen. Pershing and Gov. Ritchie, other honorary pallbearers included Gen. Joseph A. Gaston, Frank J. Hogan, Gen. C. W. Kennedy, Gen. John McA. Palmer and A. J. Montague, all of Washington; Thomas Cover, Philadelphia; Gen. Francis E. Waters, Ruxton, Baltimore, and Attorney General William P. Lane.

Approximately 5,000 persons attended the funeral services and several thousand were also at Rose Hill Cemetery, where the body was interred.

Col. Byron, after retiring from the Army, where he had an illustrious career in many active campaigns, entered the tanning business, which his father established, and was one of the leading manufacturers in this State for many years.

Markers to Be Aim Of Charles County

Bicentennial Group Seeks to Have Them Placed at Historical Points.

Special to The Washington Post.

La Plata, Md., Feb. 7.—The George Washington bicentennial committee of Charles County has decided to endeavor to obtain markers for the following points in the county, which are of historical interest in connection with the celebration:

Rose Hill, the home of Dr. Gustavus Brown, and La Grange, the home of Dr. James Craik, Dr. Brown and Dr. Craik being personal physicians of George Washington; Habre de Venture, the home of Thomas Stone, signer of the Declaration of Independence, and the following places visited by Washington: Gen. Smallwood's home, at Chicamuxen; Washington's farm near Cross Roads; Laidlow's Ferry, near Newburg; Widow Martin's Landing, now Liverpool Point; Widow Elbeck's house, Nanjemoy Church, now Durham Church; Port Tobacco and Benedict.

It is the plan of the committee to have the civic, fraternal and professional organizations and the schools help secure these markers. The Charles Countains, a civic organization of business and professional men, and the Charles County Medical Society have each volunteered to contribute a marker.

A publicity committee was named as follows: James Craik Mitchell, R. H. Lee Reich, Philip Bowling and Charles M. Christian.

Pennsylvania Develops Animal Bounty Racket

Harrisburg, Pa., (A.P.).—A coast-to-coast "racket" ended in Andrew Cearfoos being arrested and fined $100 by the State Game Commission.

It happened this way. Cearfoos, of Beaver Falls, Pa., heard that the State paid a large bounty on wild cats and gray foxes.

Then Cearfoos' son, Eugene, who is in California, shipped his father the skins of two wild cats and one gray fox.

Cearfoos sent the pelts to the Game Commission, claiming he had shot the animals while they were feeding on the carcass of a sheep.

Trained officials of the predatory animal bureau noticed a variation between Cearfoos' animals and Pennsylvania's native wild cats and foxes.

An investigation began. Cearfoos was arrested and the story came out.

Press Opinion on Smith's Statement Varies Widely

(Associated Press.)

Widespread editorial comment was made today on the announcement of Alfred E. Smith that he would accept the Democratic presidential nomination again.

MACON (GA.) TELEGRAPH—Smith's declaration that he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the Presidency confirms the rumors of his determination to prevent the nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt and dictate the selection of the convention. * * * He is throwing to the Democrats the bone over which they will snarl and fight from now until after the November election. If the Democrats lose the Presidency this year, they may date the beginning of the end of their hopes from today.

BALTIMORE SUN—The happy warrior whom Franklin D. Roosevelt hymned four years ago in Houston does not appear in the statement that is read today by every American. And the absence is not due solely to the feud between the hero and the eulogist, although cautious consciousness of that detail is writ across the document. What is revealed is longing and the sense of impending frustration. And yet, despite feud and frustration, this statement from Alfred E. Smith is a thing of health for the Democratic party and for the Nation, because it promises clash of opinion and the purification of fire.

There is nothing in Mr. Smith's statement which projects issues that deserve the attention of candidates and of the people to whom they appeal. It is as cannily noncommittal as anything that has appeared from Mr. Roosevelt.

FORT MYERS (FLA.) NEWS-PRESS: Al Smith takes four sentences to say what Coolidge expressed in six words. Al does not choose to run, but will accept the nomination if offered. What American would not?

Hope for Baker.

CLEVELAND PLAIN DEALER: Neither friends nor foes of the Roosevelt cause can get much comfort from the Smith statement. * * * The Smith candidacy is no more a menace to the hopes of Roosevelt than it was before Mr. Smith made his statement. * * * When the smoke of battle clears both are likely to be on the ground with the prize being carried away by one whose entrance has been less spectacular. We trust he will be Newton D. Baker.

KANSAS CITY STAR: There are two theories of Al Smith's real purpose in making his political announcement. One is that he actually hopes he may win the nomination and be elected; the other that he has no illusions, but that he wants to have his name used to stop Gov. Roosevelt.

But whatever his underlying motive, his announcement means the beginning of a desperate drive of the anti-Roosevelt forces to deadlock the next Democratic convention under the two-thirds rule.

This year, with bright prospects, the Democrats are in no mood to repeat the blind idolatry that held them behind Bryan after he had been badly defeated at the polls. The swing is toward the man they think easiest to elect. In early February that man seems to be Roosevelt.

Held Serious Contender.

DENVER POST—That is the best news the Republicans have had since Hoover polled 444 electoral votes to 87 for Smith in the 1928 campaign. His announcement indicates he is determined to rule or ruin his party.

ALBUQUERQUE JOURNAL—We can think of nothing more fortunate for the Republican party. His candidacy will be accepted as an effort to kill off Gov. Roosevelt. The voters decided four years ago against the Smith-Raskob leadership.

PITTSBURGH POST-GAZETTE—No one can question the fact that the man who received 15,000,000 votes—more than was ever given to any Democratic candidate in history, must be considered a serious contender for the nomination. With business as it is now and with the great number of unemployed, a strong candidate has the greatest chance that the Democratic party has had in years.

"Unfortunate" for Democrats.

BOSTON HERALD—Al's failure to say that he now looks with favor on the Roosevelt movement is equivalent, under all the circumstances, to a declaration that he is tentatively against the governor (Roosevelt). Let it be noticed, however, that Mr. Smith has so phrased his statement that he may eventually become pro-Roosevelt or pro-anybody in order to avoid a deadlock and a Madison Square Garden ruction.

BOSTON GLOBE—He (Smith) may or may not prove to be the favorite son of New York State, but there may be other Commonwealths in the Union which prefer him to any one else. In the field against Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Smith is certainly the leader.

LOUISVILLE COURIER-JOURNAL—Mr. Smith's announcement is unfortunate for the Democratic party, for it certainly means a struggle between Smith forces and Roosevelt forces, which, if it does not result in such a deadlock as in 1924, may result in leaving the party so factionally embittered as to conduce more to the election of Herbert Hoover than to that of the Democrat on which the convention finally may unite.

RICHMOND (VA.) TIMES-DISPATCH—Mr. Smith has been keenly alert for anything that might be interpreted as a call from the party to become a candidate again, but none has come. Unquestionably he has been plagued to declare his position openly and * * * has responded with one of the most unusual statements in political history. Mr. Smith has reminded the party he leads of his availability. He has suggested that he should not be ignored in the search for candidates, which has about the same effect as if the rising sun, filling the horizon, proclaimed its presence. It is so unnecessary as to be slightly pathetic.

Makes Outcome Uncertain.

DES MOINES REGISTER—The announcement * * * is made at a time calculated to affect most seriously—that is to say, most disastrously—the effort of the Franklin Roosevelt management to roll up a decisive vote before the convention approaches. * * * The next effect of the Smith announcement is to make the Democratic race much more of a free-for-all than is was before.

BIRMINGHAM AGE-HERALD—Without reference to the New York Governor's candidacy, there is reason to regret Smith's pronouncement of receptivity—he has put himself definitely in the race, and that is not a good thing for the party or the country. There is a tide in the affairs of men and it has swept on to make Smith's availability highly questionable. The Smith statement tears a wheel off the Roosevelt band wagon.

It makes the outcome of the fight in the convention highly uncertain.

ROANOKE (VA.) TIMES—Smith's statement settles one thing definitely. He is not in the Roosevelt camp and such progress as Roosevelt's candidacy may or may not make will have to be made without any help or assistance from him. * * * It is a masterful statement, able rather than adroit. As a result Smith's influence and position in the party is enhanced rather than impaired.

NEW YORK TIMES—It is not necessary to infer that Alfred E. Smith is suffering from a bad case of that insidious and almost incurable disease "presidentitis." His ambition is honorable. He can scarcely be blamed for believing that he is entitled to another shot at the White House.

Something else, however, will come back if he is nominated for the Presidency. It is a revival of those religious prejudices which so distressed thoughtful men in 1928. Not long ago, a leading newspaper in the South, after expressing the utmost confidence in Mr. Smith, and praising him to the skies for his splendid personal qualities, almost went on its knees to beg him not to run for the Presidency again with the consequence of making the sword of bigotry cleave the Southern States asunder once more. If that abhorrent and un-American dragging in of religion were to be witnessed again so soon, it would be a cause of dejection and grief to multitudes.

Even the most blindly complacent champion of Gov. Roosevelt must see that the entrance of Mr. Smith into the contest for the Presidency heavily clouds the governor's own prospects.

The result will be such a test of Gov. Roosevelt's political stamina and skill as he has not before had to undergo. When one of the contestants is named "Al" Smith, none of the others can afford for an instant to be off their guard.

May Dictate Nomination

NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE—It seems well within the range of reason that he (Smith) and his friends will be in a position to control the nomination. No man will be nominated against his wishes, that seems certain.

The former governor's frankness and directness are in sharp contrast with the pussyfooting and evasive tactics of Franklin D. Roosevelt. * * * For Mr. Roosevelt to lose (if he does) the prize which seemed so well within his grasp a year ago may point a moral to future aspirants for high office who might believe it better strategy to evade than to meet an issue, better to compromise than to fight, better to try to be all things to all men than to be a forceful personality standing by well-grounded convictions at whatever cost.

PHILADELPHIA PUBLIC LEDGER—The net result of Mr. Smith's dramatic entrance into the presidential race is to add to an already confused and discordant situation.

PHILADELPHIA INQUIRER—He (Smith) has not thrown his hat into the ring, but he has left it lying conveniently near. He has thus in reality left the situation pretty much as he found it.

PHILADELPHIA RECORD—The Record regrets the attitude taken by Alfred E. Smith. It can have only one practical effect: deadlock of the convention between Smith and Roosevelt and nomination of a pale, compromise conservative of the Garner-Robinson type who would out-Hoover Hoover.

"Roosevelt's Chances Ruined."

LOS ANGELES TIMES—For all that Smith's announcement has been expected, it is a political bombshell. It knocks into a cocked hat the chances of Gov. Roosevelt to obtain the nomination, since it is obvious that New York can not well have two candidates and give full support to both.

ST. LOUIS GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—Its meaning for 15,000,000 Democrats can be appreciated by imagining that it was of opposite effect, and that he would make a fight, with the division of counsel and dissension a fight by Al Smith would engender. The path to the nomination of Gov. Roosevelt ought to be made easy. All things considered, it must be pronounced a very wise decision on Mr. Smith's part, one that again evidences his political astuteness and one also that will much improve the technical position of his party in the 1932 campaign.

SYRACUSE POST-STANDARD—Former Gov. Smith has split the Democratic party so badly by announcing his candidacy for the presidential nomination that it will be able to present only the illusion of a united front during the campaign. * * * His statement means nothing more or less than that candidates in the field before him are entirely unacceptable to the party. * * * There are prospects of bitter fighting. That fighting will leave wounds that not even the final selection of a candidate at the June convention will heal.

Baker or Ritchie Seen Aided.

NORFOLK (VA.) VIRGINIAN-PILOT—Al Smith's statement does not throw the brown derby into the ring, but it does the next thing to it. * * * It lays the derby directly on the periphery, open side up. That the convention will let the party in for another ride with the Pope as phantom passenger seems * * * altogether unlikely. * * * It is more than likely to end in the nomination of Baker or Ritchie, should the Smith strategy make the nomination of Roosevelt impossible.

BOSTON POST—Alfred E. Smith in 1928 polled 15,916,443 votes for President. Only three men in the history of the United States * * * ever received more emphatic indorsements from the electorate. * * * Therefore, Gov. Smith's * * * entrance into the 1932 contest is an event second to none in current political history. Only the withdrawal of President Hoover or the candidacy of Calvin Coolidge could be of more far-reaching effect.

GALVESTON (TEXAS) TRIBUNE—Smith took the only position possible as a Democrat and the nominal leader of his party. He could not afford to come out openly against Gov. Roosevelt, especially since it is possible that he may have to support the New York Governor in the election campaign next summer.

"Overcomes Objections"

HELENA (MONT.) INDEPENDENT—No one can object to his remaining on neutral ground during the preconvention campaign. * * * The Independent is opposed to the nomination of former Governor Smith.

BOISE (IDAHO) STATESMAN—It has long been apparent to close political observers that Mr. Smith has been grooming nimself as a dark horse candidate. * * * He virtually admits that he expects the convention to go into a deadlock and find it necessary to agree upon a compromise candidate.

BAKER INTERESTED, BUT REMAINS MUM

Democratic and Republican Leaders Here Interpret Smith's Words.

Smith's declaration of yesterday as putting him in the Democratic presidential race.

The round of comment gathered here on the statement disclosed no new calls for the 1928 Democratic presidential nominee and showed many of his old followers, particularly in the South and Northwest, now definitely against him.

New York's two Democratic senators—Wagner and Copeland—were not here. Senator Walsh (Democrat), Massachusetts, declared for Smith. Gov. Ritchie of Maryland, an announced candidate for the nomination, who was in the Capital yesterday, made no comment.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the vice presidential nominee with Smith in 1928, briefly observed that Smith was "wise in announcing that he will not campaign for the nomination or support or oppose other candidates for that distinction."

Glass Depreciates Significance.

Here is what they said about it:

Representative Rainey, of Illinois, Democratic floor leader: "Mr. Smith has definitely thrown his hat into the ring. I expect to support whoever is nominated by the convention."

Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia: "Most persons will interpret the statement to mean that Gov. Smith is determined to participate in a movement to stop Roosevelt. Beyond accomplishing this result, I am unable to see that the statement is particularly significant."

Senator Walsh (Democrat), Massachusetts: "The members of his party who favor his renomination are now free to work to that end, and in the light of his statement that is the clearly indicated course. Gov. Smith is by long odds the first choice of an overwhelming majority of Massachusetts Democracy today."

Senator George (Democart), Georgia: "It must be obvious to Mr. Smith that he will not be nominated by the next Democratic convention. That being the case, it is no longer possible to escape the conclusion that his stated willingness to lead the party in 1932 is part of a definite campaign to block the nomination of other candidates, especially Gov. Roosevelt."

Gore Questions "Availability."

Senator Sheppard (Democrat), Texas: "Gov. Smith was given full recognition in 1928. I had hoped that he would not become a candidate this year and that he would thus aid in securing a united party at a time when Democratic prospects are unusually bright. His nomination would again involve the party in dangerous controversy."

Senator Black (Democrat), Alabama: "I think the Democrats of my State will support some one else."

Senator Gore (Democrat), Oklahoma: "I believe the Democratic candidate this year should have ability and availability. Gov. Smith has ability but any Democratic candidate who lost Texas, Florida, Virginia and North Carolina can not be said to have availability."

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana: "I supported Gov. Smith whole-heartedly in the last campaign. I am convinced, however, that he could not win this year if nominated. I am convinced that Gov. Roosevelt, if nominated, can win by an overwhelming majority."

Lewis Cites Cleveland.

Senator McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee: "He had his chance in 1928 and I think it would now be wisest for the Democratic party and the big thing for him to do to stand aside and let the nomination go to another Democrat. I prefer Gov. Roosevelt."

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader: Gov. Smith got more votes in 1928 than were ever polled by any Democratic nominee for President. How many of his supporters have left him is conjectural, and how many of those who voted for Hoover for one reason or another have since been alienated from him is also problematical."

Senator Lewis (Democrat), Illinois: "No doubt Gov. Smith has had brought to his attention that President Cleveland, nominated in 1888 and beaten that year by President Harrison, was renominated in 1892 and on the same issues of 1888 President Cleveland was elected."

Senator King (Democrat), Utah: "His statement will be regarded as equivalent to a wish that he shall not be considered a candidate and that some other person shall be chosen to lead the party."

Connally Wants New Candidate.

Senator Connally (Democrat), Texas: "Gov. Smith was honored in 1928 and ought now, in the interest of the party, efface himself from the picture. The times call for new leadership and a new candidate."

Senator Pittman (Democrat), Nevada: "There is another able and patriotic statesman added to the list of possible presidential candidates."

Representative Douglass (Democrat), Massachusetts: "His statement enables the Massachusetts delegation to go to the convention pledged to Gov. Smith."

Representative Steagall (Democrat), Alabama: "I am not in favor of the nomination of Gov. Smith. He has a great many loyal Democrats supporting him and they are entitled to a candidate as well as anybody else."

Representative Bloom (Democrat), New York: "I think it is a perfectly fair and impartial statement. Mr. Smith says plainly he will make no move to secure delegates. To have gone further would have been to say he did not wish to be President and no American, I believe, can truthfully say that. He could not in his position support any one candidate."

Senator Coolidge, Democrat, (Massachusetts): Gov. Smith's statement clearly indicates that he is a receptive candidate for renomination and leaves his candidacy in the hands of his friends. If Gov. Smith's name is before the convention, Massachusetts can be counted on to support him loyally as in the past."

Senator Fess, of Ohio, chairman of the Republican national committee: "The statement was not unexpected. It set the stage for the free play of those forces which in recent years have attempted, with increasing emphasis and with some success, to dominate the Democratic party. * * * A convention of Democrats so constituted that their leader, if he can not win the nomination for himself nevertheless can name the candidate, will provide a show worth seeing."

Gov. Pollard, of Virginia: "Mr. Smith has made a great mistake."

Al Smith Termed Illinois Favorite

Democratic Leader Says He Would Sweep State in Primary.

Chicago, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Michael L. Igoe, Democratic national committeeman from Illinois and candidate for the nomination for governor, tonight said, "Al Smith would sweep the State if he were to file in the Illinois preferential primary."

The national committeeman, however, pointed out, that under Illinois law it was impossible to file Smith's name in the preferential primary unless the 1928 nominee himself gave his consent.

Mayor Anton J. Cermak tonight said former Gov. Al Smith's announcement relative to his willingness again to lead the Democratic party made no difference in Illinois. "We have agreed to support Senator Lewis," the mayor said, "and I think the delegation from Illinois will be pledged to him."

SMITH BRINGS SPLIT IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

Friends Push His Candidacy; Roosevelt Boom Gains; Ballot on March 8.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 7 (A.P.).—New Hampshire Democrats tonight were divided on the portent of Alfred E. Smith's statement relative to his position as a possible presidential candidate.

Smith supporters maintained their stand to work for delegates pledged to his candidacy, while Roosevelt adherents expressed confidence that, despite the Smith statement, New Hampshire would send eight delegates to the national convention pledged to the New York Governor.

Robert F. Gould, chairman of the Democratic State committee, a candidate for district delegate, unpledged but favoring Roosevelt, predicted the Smith slate would not get far. "We don't want another William Jennings Bryan situation in the Democratic party," he said. "There is no doubt in my mind the Republicans would like to have us nominate Smith."

Former Mayor Eaton D. Sargent, of Nashua, chairman of the New Hampshire victory campaign drive, said Smith's position might jam the gears in the machine. He added, however, that he was convinced the sentiment in New Hampshire was for Roosevelt.

John T. O'Dowd, candidate for delegate, who voted 87 times at the 1924 convention for Smith, said: "If I'm elected in march I'll vote a third time for Al Smith."

Wilfred J. Boisclair, of Manchester, candidate pledged to Smith, said: "Democrats of New Hampshire prefer a standard bearer who is fearless and does not straddle issues."

Attorney T. F. O'Connor, of Manchester, pledged to Roosevelt, said he believed the Smith announcement came too late.

New Hampshire voters will have the first opportunity in the country to express their preference since the primary is scheduled for March 8.

Profits of $1,363,780 Shown by Jewel Tea

Chicago, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—The Jewel Tea Co., distributor of staple groceries, reports 1931 net profits of $1,363,780, equal to $4.87 a share, as compared with $6.09 the previous year.

Total sales were $13,742,691 for 1931, a decrease of 11.46 per cent.

Autogiro Reaches Mexico City.

Mexico City, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Capt. Lewis Yancey, American transatlantic flier, arrived today from Merida, Yucatan, in the autogiro with which he flew from the United States to Cuba and from Cuba across the Yucatan Straits.

DRY ISSUE TO FORE, CANNON DECLARES

Bishop Says Smith's Stand "Regrettably" Makes It Outstanding.

(Associated Press.)

Bishop James Cannon, jr., leader in 1928 of the opposition in the South to Alfred E. Smith, said last night the Smith pronouncement "has regrettably but necessarily made prohibition to be once more an outstanding issue in the national political campaign."

The text of the Southern Methodist bishop's statement follows:

"Gov. Smith evidently believes that he can secure the support of all those who voted for him in 1928 and sufficient added support in the South and Northeast to change the overwhelming defeat of 1928 to at least a small majority in 1932. He therefore greatly, most ardently desires the nomination and has adopted the very best method to secure it under existing conditions.

"I believe he is utterly mistaken if he thinks that the six Southern States which repudiated his wet Tammany leadership in 1928 will accept that leadership in 1932. If the issue becomes once more moral principles and leadership against party regularity—the maintenance or repeal of the eighteenth amendment—the same people will be found in 1932 as in 1928 battling for moral principles and the eighteenth amendment against wet Tammany partisan regularity.

"Gov. Smith's statement has regrettably but necessarily made prohibition to be once more an outstanding issue in the national political campaign.

"It is devoutly to be desired, but hardly to be expected, that the Democratic party leaders will refuse to yield to the evidently irrepressible longing of the wet Tammany sachem to remain the titular head of the Democratic party.

"Will dry Southern Democratic party leaders again fail the Southern people as they did in 1928, or will they flatly refuse to follow this wet Tammany leader to another disgraceful defeat?"

Steel Production Reaches Standstill

Rail Buying Is Expected to Be in Lesser Degree Than Last Year.

Cleveland, Feb. 7 (A.P.)—Steel producers have practically exhausted the momentum of the post-holiday rise and have reached a stalemate requiring heavier demands from the automotive industry and the seasonal track demands of railroads, the magazine Steel said today.

"Railroad buying appears a certainty, though in a lesser degree than a year ago, so soon as adjustments following the wage reductions are made," the magazine said. "The continued absence of Ford is a drag not only to the steel markets but also to other low-price automobile manufacturers.

"In the two weeks ended February 6 the average rate of steel production was 26½ per cent. Last week Pittsburgh and Youngstown mills curtailed, but a substantial rise at Chicago and Buffalo proved an offset. This week Cleveland and Chicago mills may taper off, but a further rise at Buffalo is expected to maintain the average."

Tendency Is Shown To More Outdoor Life

Harrisburg, Pa. (U.P.).—A greater tendency of Pensylvanians to spend time in "the great outdoors" is noted by officials of the Pennsylvania Department of Forests and Waters, according to Deputy Secretary John W Keller.

He reported that more than 750,000 persons visited the State's 1,500,000 acres of woodland during 1931. Of these 250,000 were hunters and 100,000 fishermen, he said.

2 Ministers of 2 Regimes Rule Salvadorean Legation

Senors Don Carlos Leiva and Don Roberto Melendez Accept Situation and Amicably Carry On Interests of Their Homeland.

Two men sit in the legation of El Salvador and amicably administer the interests of their homeland here.

Both are denominated in certain quarters as Ministers of El Salvador. One is Senor Don Carlos Leiva, appointed by the Salvadorean President, Araujo, before his deposition. The other is Senor Don Roberto Melendez, appointed by the faction which overthrew the Araujo regime.

Senor Leiva is listed by the State Department as the Minister of his country. This Government has never recognized the present government of El Salvador. Senor Melendez was designated by the ruling faction in the Latin-American nation to succeed Senor Leiva after the latter had refused to accept appointment as its envoy here.

Being diplomats, both have accepted the situation with diplomacy and "carried on." The "twin" ministers, it is understood, work in perfect accord, as far as is compatible with their somewhat delicate positions. Senor Leiva is somewhat the senior of the Salvadorean duo, being in his early forties, while Senor Melendez is a comparative youth, being still under 30.

It is known in diplomatic circles that Senor Leiva was offered the post of Minister by the present regime in El Salvador. Why he declined to fall in with its overtures is a matter of conjecture. However, it is believed that he pointed out in his communications to leaders in El Salvador that the present president was a high officials in the deposed government and is therefore unconstitutionally in his office. His contention is said to be that the current government in his homeland has no legal power to designate its representatives in other capitals.

Just what Senor Melendez' attitude is is not known. But day by day the two men discuss the matters of the legation and decide together generally the action of the legation.

Senor Leiva jumped into newspaper mention in the role of a man of physical action not long ago. Thieves entered the legation building and attempted to steal a quantity of imported liquor. The Minister arrived home just before midnight to encounter one of the intruders. There was a scuffle, a shot, shouts and a chase.

One robber went away with a badly bitten finger, but though Dr. Leiva required hospital treatment for injuries received in the melee, he had successfully defended the soil of his country.

Weird Chinese Rites Mark New Year Celebration Here

On Leong Merchant Association Begins Two Weeks' Observance to Strain of Flutes Mingling With Clash of Gongs; Rice Candies Offered.

The Oriental strain of bamboo flutes mingling with the blaring clash of cast-iron gongs sounded a weird strain in the Oriental atmosphere of lower Pennsylvania avenue last night as the On Leong Chinese Merchants Association began the two weeks' celebration of the Chinese New Year.

The ceremony, which is celebrated in China to the accompaniment of firecracker poles 50 feet high that explode for several hours, is subdued at the On Leong headquarters at 335 Pennsylvania avenue, to a mere gong and cymbal clash. The festive spirit, however, is fostered through the appeal to gustatory senses and a varied arrangement of mysterious edibles confront the visitor.

Lee Sing Chu and Frank Fong Dea, presidents of the organization, greeted the guests and tousled the heads of the little Chinese youngsters who were present. Rice candies disguised in many different forms were offered the celebrants. Nuts that were tasty if not familiar were part of the repast.

The calendar of the Chinese nation is recorded with each new dynasty, and the year would, therefore, be the twenty-first, as this is the twenty-first year of the new Chinese republic. The calendar days vary between 29 and 30, and there are twelve months in the year. There is no historical record of the origin of the calendar, but this system has been in use since earliest remembered times.

Gongs, drums, banjos of queer shape called Yute Chom, violins with bows resembling an Indian bow, and a harp-like instrument that is played with two flexible rods, furnished the music, and a singer chanting a monosyllabic song in keeping with the general outlandish tone, furnished a suitable background to the local celebration.

AL SMITH SAYS HE WILL RUN IF DEMOCRATS DESIRE HIM

prevent his friends from doing the campaigning and rounding up the delegates for him.

The delegates that go out to Chicago instructed or determined to vote for Smith, plus the delegates who will be pledged to Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois, and other favorite son candidates, will, it seems certain, be sufficient to block Roosevelt in the early balloting.

Effect of Two-Thirds Rule.

In the convention there will be 1,154 delegate votes. Under the Democratic rule, a candidate must get two-thirds of these—or 770—to win the nomination.

To block a candidate, the opposition needs a fraction more than a third of the delegates—in this case 385.

Close to 300 ballots are expected to be cast at the beginning for favorite sons. A total of 236 such votes can be computed now, as follows: Robinson, of Arkansas, 18; Lewis, of Illinois, 58; Ritchie, of Maryland, 16; White, of Ohio, 52; Garner, of Texas, 46; Byrd, of Virginia, 24, and Murray, of Oklahoma, 22. If the Missouri delegation of 36 should get behind former Senator Jim Reed, the total favorite son vote would be 272.

Battleground in "Wet East."

The principal States in which Smith's friends will seek to line up delegates are in the "wet East," and their delegate strength in the convention will total 272, as follows: New York, 94; New Jersey, 32, Pennsylvania, 78; Massachusetts, 36; New Hampshire, 8; Connecticut, 16, and Rhode Island, 10.

There is both Smith and Roosevelt sentiment in every one of these States, and each of them is expected to be a battleground.

The big question with respect to New York is, What will Tammany do?

In New Jersey, Boss Hague rules with an iron hand, and he is in the front rank of the Smith boosters.

In Massachusetts, Senator Walsh and Gov. Ely will be able to swing most of the delegates to Smith, notwithstanding the noisy claims of Mayor Curley, of Boston, a Roosevelt man.

In New Hampshire, if Smith wills it, the first tussle between him and Roosevelt will take place. This State holds its preferential primary on March 8, and Smith can run in it without actually proclaiming himself a candidate.

Unpledged Delegations.

Connecticut at present is reverberating with the claims of the Roosevelt men and the counterclaims of the Smith boosters.

Inasmuch as Rhode Island cast its electoral vote for Smith in 1928, it probably will support him in the convention.

In summing up the potential strength of a stop-Roosevelt bloc, one must take into consideration the unpledged delegations. These are expected to be quite numerous, now that Al Smith has declared war on Roosevelt.

So long as Roosevelt seemed a certain winner, politicians were flocking to his banner. Had he continued his onward march they would have continued to flock to him, and the result would have been a ratification meeting at Chicago.

From now on, however, politicians are going to be a bit more cautious. The result will be a great many more unpledged delegates than might otherwise have been the case.

Ritchie's Men Encouraged.

Whatever may be the ultimate effect of Smith's maneuver, it is certain to have a heartening effect on the favorite son candidates. For a time it looked like they were simply standing there waiting to be crushed by the Roosevelt steam roller. Now they can feel that it is a a wide-open race, with the laurel of victory likely to drop on any head.

The supporters of Albert Cabell Ritchie, four-time Governor of Maryland, are particularly encouraged by the new development. From now on they will campaign with renewed vigor.

Friends of former Gov. Harry Byrd of Virginia are enthusiastic, too. They opened headquarters for him in Richmond yesterday, and made it plain that the campaign on his behalf was to be of a national character. If the nominee is to be a compromise candidate, Byrd might fit in, for he seems to have the good will of both the Roosevelt people and the Smith-Raskob crowd.

Garner Chief Beneficiary.

But the man who is expected to benefit most from the Smith-Roosevelt feud is John N. Garner, of Texas.

Aside from the wide popularity of Garner, there is his position—Speaker of the House. It was that position that gave Champ Clark great strength in the Baltimore convention of 1912. Nearly all members of Congress are delegates to the national conventions. And, inasmuch as it does not hurt a member of the House to stand in good with the Speaker, quite a large number of members can be expected to line up for Garner at Chicago.

That the Roosevelt people fear the Texan is demonstrated by their hasty veto of the suggestion that he deliver the keynote speech at the convention. They are afraid that he might deliver such a speech as would stampede the convention in his direction, much as Bryan did with his "cross of gold" speech.

In any event it looks like the Democrats are in for a strenuous time of it. To the Republicans it looks like a "break" for President Hoover.

Prison Terms Given 3 For Robbery of Bank

Kenansville, N. C., Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Joe and Herbert Garner, of New Hanover County, today were convicted of complicity in the $14,000 robbery of the Bank of Magnolia on January 12 and were given prison terms. Joe was sentenced to 10 to 15 years' imprisonment and Herbert to 5 to 7. A. W. Petit, of Charleston, S. C., 19-year-old, confessed confederate of the men, was sentenced to 5 to 7 years in State's prison. Petit pleaded guilty and turned State's evidence.

The jury deliberated only 10 minutes before finding the Garners guilty. The case was given to it after Judge N. A. Sinclair held a Sunday session of court.

Liner Cancels Stop at Shanghai.

Manila, Monday, Feb. 8.—The Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain, carrying 300 passengers on a world cruise, on arrival here today canceled its scheduled stop at Shanghai because of the fighting there. It will sail tomorrow for Hongkong and thence for Chinwantao.

BLUE FLEET PLANES RAIN BOMBS ON OAHU

Little Vital Damage Done by 100 Fliers; Saratoga Is Technically Hit.

Honolulu, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—A vast fighting force of the air rose out of the horizon at dawn today, delivered a smashing attack on the defenders of the island of Oahu and then wheeled around and disappeared over the bend of the sea toward its floating base in the Pacific.

It was the first blow toward recapture of the Hawaiian Islands for the United States. Sixty miles out at sea, a hundred or more airplanes took off from the deck of the carrier Saratoga and shot through the skies toward the dark hills of Oahu.

Withholding the blows of destruction from Honolulu—the skyhawks circled over the land air bases and rained down bombs while the defense, with its inferior air force, watched and waited.

Defenders Have Few Planes.

The black defenders have fewer than half as many planes as the blue fleet under the war game rules and the commanders feel it would have been foolhardy to take the battle into the air.

Instead antiaircraft guns formed the mouthpiece of the defense. Shrapnel was hurled into the sky against the invaders.

Strategy counted heavily in the first engagement of the war game, which tests the adequacy of the United States defenses against an enemy here. Though the attacking planes scattered bombs at various points on the island, they did little damage except to put one battery of Field Artillery technically out of commission 24 hours.

The defending forces had outguessed them in advance. Swooping low over Luke Wheeler Air Field, the enemy planes bombed the aircraft grounded there, but the Black defenders had anticipated the attack and the planes bombed were only dummies. The attackers also bombed a chemical warfare depot, but the defenders had moved the gas and no harm was done there, either.

Submarines Hit Saratoga.

Meanwhile, submarines of the naval forces aiding in the defense attacked the huge airplane carrier Saratoga, firing four torpedoes and making one direct hit, which technically accounted for 19 per cent of its planes.

Scouting planes that roamed the skies all night spotted the dark shape of the Saratoga some 60 miles northeast of Oahu at 1 a. m., protected by four destroyers. Pilots believed its sister ship, the Lexington, to be nearby. Defense commanders said the air attacks might continue several days.

While the maneuvers are only a game, they were severely realistic today in face of dangerous flying weather, low ceiling and strong winds. At Army headquarters, which buzzed with activity, admiration was expressed for the skill and nerve of the Navy fliers.

POSTMASTER GENERAL WALTER F. BROWN.

POSTMASTER GENERAL WALTER BROWN was born in Massillon, Ohio. However, he managed to move before Massillon elected as its mayor Gen. Jacob S. Coxey, of "Coxey's Army" fame. Today Brown is a distinguished citizen of Toledo, Ohio.

When Brown was going to Harvard, his father was the postmaster of Toledo. In the summer vacation periods, Brown used to work in the postoffice. On one occasion, when his father went to Europe, the young fellow took his place, serving as acting postmaster. Thus, while his appointment to his present lofty post was a political one, it can be seen that Brown was not without his qualifications.

After graduating from Harvard, Brown worked as a reporter and city editor on the Toledo Blade. Later he went in for the practice of law. But no matter what he happened to be doing, he always gave considerable of his time to politics.

He broke into the political field under that most adroit of politicians, Mark Hanna. That was in the first McKinley campaign in 1896. He served as a precinct worker then.

By 1908 Brown was a full-fledged politician, and he helped organize Ohio for Taft. Four years later, he turned against Taft, although the latter was an Ohioan, and joined the ranks of the Teddy Roosevelt Bull Moose party. Ohio was split wide open and Wilson captured the State.

In 1920 Brown helped nominate and elect Harding. He was offered the posts of Ambassador to Japan or Undersecretary of State as a reward, but he turned them down. He did accept a more onerous job, that of chairman of the congressional committee assigned to recommend a reorganiaztion of the Government departments. In this role he met Herbert Hoover, the only Cabinet officer who took an interest in reorganization.

In 1928 Brown persuaded Hoover, then Secretary of Commerce, to enter the Ohio preferential primary. Hoover did, and thus started a triumphant march toward the nomination.

Brown's hobbies are yatching and organizing fresh air camps for poor children.

Smith's 'Yes' Ends Unique And Dramatic Affiliation

Roosevelt Refrains From Comment on Statement of Erstwhile Political Partner; How Paths Have Run in Same Direction.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 7 (A.P.).—The Smith-Roosevelt political alliance, unique and sentimental in some of its dramatic aspects, ended tonight with the announcement of former Gov. Smith that he would accept the Democratic presidential nomination, the aspiration also of Gov. Roosevelt.

Mr. Roosevelt did not comment upon the Smith statement. For several weeks he has expected Smith to sanction the use of his name in preconvention activities.

The "Frank" and "Al" combination has been an important factor in State and national politics since 1920. That year Representative Bourke Cockran nominated Smith for the Presidency at the San Francisco convention. Roosevelt seconded it. Smith seconded Roosevelt's nomination for the Vice Presidency.

Smith and Roosevelt have been supporting and nominating each other for public office since 1918, when the former was first elected governor. Twice Roosevelt nominated Smith for the Presidency.

The two, so much alike in their views on the duty of government, are quite dissimilar in appearance, conduct and training. Smith is "self-made;" up from New York's "East Side," his college degree, he said, was "F. F. M."—Fulton Fish Market. He is a blunt, direct speaker; emphatic and forceful. Smith is below medium height. He fathered a business-like reorganization of the State government, fought for "social" and "liberal" legislation and established himself as an outstanding governor in a State where many notable governors have served.

Roosevelt is 6 feet 2 and weighs 185 pounds. He had tutors in youth, went to college, in fact to two, Harvard and Columbia, and traveled extensively here and abroad. He, also, is an emphatic and direct speaker, relying somewhat more on persuasion than Smith. He calls himself a "Liberal Progressive" in politics and supported and augmented the social legislative program begun by Smith.

Smith had been in politics eight years when Roosevelt came to Albany as a State senator. The New York City youth was a Tammany assemblyman. They knew each other, casually. Roosevelt went to Washington in 1912 as Assistant Secretary of the Navy. Smith the following year was speaker of the Assembly.

Smith was governor 1918-20 and lost in 1920 when Roosevelt was beaten for the Vice Presidency. Smith refused to run in 1920 and Roosevelt issued a public call in a letter to "Dear Al." The reply, "accepting the call was to "Dear Frank."

Roosevelt managed Smith's campaign for the Democratic nomination in 1924 and made the famous "Happy Warrior" speech before the Madison Square Garden convention. Again in 1928 he nominated Smith and that year made several speeches for his friend.

Roosevelt, convalescing from infantile paralysis and reluctant to run for office, yielded to Gov. Smith's request that he run for governor, to assure continuance of Smith's program and to bolster his presidential candidacy. Smith's personal appeal and John J. Raskob's assurance that the warm springs paralysis sanitarium project would not suffer financially decided the issue. In 1930 Smith nominated Roosevelt for governor. It was a touching, dramatic eulogy.

Smith has been silent about Roosevelt since the governor gained national attention years ago.

"Frank" has the jump on "Al." He has the Alaska delegation pledged and the assurance of Vermont and North Dakota. New York elects its delegates to the Chicago convention on April 5. The first presidential preference primary is in New Hampshire on March 8. Both Smith's and Roosevelt's names are expected to be entered in New Hampshire.

MUSTARD GAS MADE DEADLIER FOR WAR

Weapon, Washed, Takes but Six Hours to Put Victim Out of Action.

New York, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Mustard gas has been "washed" by chemists ready for a new career in warfare.

This "washing" is the principal military advance in gas preparation since the World War. It has changed mustard gas from a dark, oily sludge to a limpid liquid that appears as pure as water.

The new white mustard is about 30 per cent more effective. The muddy color was due to 20 per cent of impurities—stuff that was harmless to soldiers. The impurities merely cut down the burning, choking powers, and added hours of delay before their first effects appeared.

In the World War twelve hours usually was required for mustard to get its man—that is, burn him enough to put him out of action. The new, clean gas is expected to do it in six or seven hours. The old gas lasted from three to fourteen days, depending on weather. The new will stick to the ground longer.

Lewisite Also Improved.

Mustard's twin, Lewisite, which was just too late for use in the World War, is also bathed and cleaned up like its brother. Mustard contains chlorine, sulfur and alcohol (wood grain alcohol) Lewisite contains arsenic, aluminum, acetylene and chlorine.

But Lewisite's effects on man are so nearly identical with mustard that many experts await war's test to learn which is the more effectvie. Lewisite is said to act a little more quickly, to attack the lungs perhaps more acutely and produce a type of burn that spreads farther.

The new lewisite is a pale yellow, and nearly as transparent as glass.

Although a decade has passed since the war, there is yet no generally accepted medical remedy for the burns of these gases. They still top the list of known gases for military effectiveness.

Military Secrets Hinted.

Some new gases show promise, but are still either military secrets or only laboratory experiments. These new gases in their effects lie somewhere between mustard and lewisite on one hand and phosgene on the other.

Phosgene even now ranks where it did in the World War, as the deadliest gas—30 seconds to kill a man who truly breathes it, but phosgene evaporates too rapidly, rendering difficult concentration against troops.

The middle ground of the newly developing cases is something that is not so quickly fatal, but that will put men out of action more speedily than mustard and lewisite. As the staying power of the gas goes up the deadliness goes down.

The delay in waiting for mustard and lewisite to strike pushes both of them toward the defensive category. War may reveal what has been done toward finding a gas preeminent for attack.

Giannini Off Tomorrow For Transamerica Fight

Interests connected with the Transamerica management have challenged the assertion that the Giannini group had obtained proxies for a majority of shares.

Canadian Railways Lost 20 Per Cent Last Year

Montreal, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—A decrease of 20 per cent during 1931 in total operating revenues of the Canadian National Railways was shown in a preliminary report issued today. It showed the 1931 total approximated $177,273,700 compared with $221,770,000 in 1930.

A decrease of 13 per cent in operating expenses was computed from the 1931 total of $169,688,000 compared with the 1930 figure of $195,259,507. Net operating revenues consequently were $7,585,700 as against $26,510,938 in 1930. Final figures will be given in the railway's annual report to be presented to parliament soon.

Pledge in Jersey For Smith Is Seen

Democratic Leaders Say He Would Carry State and Nation.

Newark, N. J., Feb. 7 (A.P.).—A prediction that New Jersey delegates to the national Democratic convention would be pledged to support Alfred E. Smith was made tonight by Samuel I. Kessler, State committeeman of Essex County.

"And if Smith is nominated," he added, "I believe he will have a splendid chance of being elected. I do not believe he has lost the support of a single one of the 15,000,000 people who voted for him in 1928, and their votes alone will be sufficient to elect him this time."

Col. William H. Kelly, chairman of the Essex County Democratic committee, said: "If Alfred E. Smith is nominated, I feel certain that he will carry New Jersey and the Nation."

SLAYING WITNESSES RECEIVE WARNINGS

To Inspect Bullets.

Lieut. John H. Fowler will today make microscopic examinations of all bullets that were used in the shootings to determine whether they came from the same gun. Inspector Burke said there has been no evidence uncovered which would indicate that the Andrews or the Beall girl knew Backus or Riedel.

Backus' social relationship with Riedel, Inspector Burke said, is that of a customer at Riedel's bakery shop, and, so far as has been learned, they never had any other business dealings. In the Backus shooting and the shootings of the girls, the detectives have been stumped by an absence of motive.

It is this which bolsters the homicidal maniac theory. No words were spoken by the two men who opened fire on the girls on Wednesday night at Fifth and Aspen streets northwest a half hour before Backus was wounded with a bullet from a large sedan, while near his home at 3433 Mount Pleasant street northwest.

New Witness in Slaying.

In the woundings of the girls, two men were in the automobile, in the shooting of Backus, the number of men was not observed, and in the killing of Riedel, the witnesses disagree as to the number of men involved, although it is established that only one entered Riedel's store.

Another witness entered the Riedel case yesterday, when a young woman, whose identity is concealed by police, talked with Inspector Frank S. W. Burke, and told him she was passing the store in her automobile and saw the actual shooting. She was unable to describe the man other than to say that he wore a gray felt hat. She became frightened, she said, and drove away.

Inspector Burke said the police were also proceeding on another theory: That the man is the same goggled robber who held up stores on upper Connecticut and Wisconsin avenues just before the killing of Riedel and that he may not be connected with the shootings of Backus and the girls.

Goggles Identified.

The goggles found yesterday in Chevy Chase were identified by David Tievsky, as similar to those worn by the robber who held him up shortly before Riedel was killed. Those who saw the man who killed Riedel were unable to say positively that they were the goggles worn by the murderer, but they did say they resembled them.

The goggles are large and steel-rimmed. About the rim is an olive-drab plush shield where the rims touch the face. A brown elastic belt holds the goggles to the head.

Mrs. Athena Corembis, of 3201½ Mount Pleasant street, whose soft drink parlor was visited by Riedel's murderer shortly before the shooting told police she asked the man why he wore the goggles, and he replied, "Because I do a lot of riding at night."

Police Guard Swelled.

To forestall any further activity on the part of the sniper, Inspector Burke last night ordered ten detective sergeants to go on special duty in four radio-equipped cars; fifteen policemen were placed in private automobiles, seven additional motorcycle policemen were sent out on patrol, and six policemen, in private automobiles, were ordered to patrol from the Tenth Precinct.

The entire homicide squad was called into work last night and was engaged in an effort to trace the automobile. Its description was so flimsy, however, that they were frankly pessimistic over the possibility of identifying it.

Backus was described by Emergency Hospital doctors as "holding his own."

Funeral services for Mr. Riedel will be held from the residence, 3209 Adams Mill road northwest, Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment will be in Prospect Hill Cemetery.

Man and Wife Victims In Holdup by 2 Youths

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Aldrich, of 1026 Irving street northeast, were held up by two white youths last night while walking on Irving street northeast between Tenth and Twelfth streets, a few doors from their home. The holdup got nothing. The men escaped.

The couple told police the two youths stepped up to them and one pulled a pistol, which looked like a .45 caliber, and told them to "stick 'em up." After a hasty search of Mr. and Mrs. Aldrich, they ran down the street before an alarm could be given.

Ice-Breaker Krassin Off On Another Rescue Trip

Kronstadt, Russia, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Bound on another voyage of rescue, the ice-breaker Krassin left here today for Vaigatch Island in the Kara Sea to aid the steamship Lenin, which is held fast in the ice there after itself freeing the Maligin in the same region.

The Lenin set out from Archangel, December 4, but the length of time she has been icelocked and whether the crew still has food are not known. The Krassin, bearing provisions sufficient for six months, will put in at Murmanak for coal. The Krassin nosed through the northern ice in 1928 to rescue the survivors of the ill-fated Italia expedition.

BUDGET WORK IS HIT BY RELIEF DEMANDS

Opposition to Tax Increase and Economies Grows as Congress Labors.

(Associated Press.)

Party leaders in the House, determined to continue their fight to balance the Federal budget, are confronted by a growing resistance from many quarters.

Opposition to proposed increased taxes has mounted and there are demands for legislation calling for outlays of hundreds of millions of dollars. Floods of telegrams have been pouring in on leaders and members against proposed economies in appropriation bills.

Speaker Garner and Representative Rainey, of Illinois, the Democratic leader, yesterday said the balancing of the budget was the "most important" of all the constructive issues before Congress.

Billion in Taxes Aim.

Representative Snell, of New York, the Republican leader, also has said he considers it the primary need in economic recovery and confidence.

Garner said it was hoped the ways and means committee could draft a tax bill that would bring in $1,000,000,000 annually in revenue. This amount would be needed, he said, in order to balance the budget within a reasonable time.

Representative Rainey said demands for relief might offset the millions of dollars saved by the Democratic House from the appropriation bills.

May 'Wipe Out' Savings.

With 34 States and 218 representatives backing the Hall-Smith bill to set up a $100,000,000 revolving fund for drainage, irrigation and levee districts, and forces behind the Senate measures for $375,000,000 in loans to States, and an equal amount for direct aid, the Illinois member said, all the savings "might be wiped out."

Rainey is personally opposed to the Senate measure to make loans to States for relief to people "because the States would never repay the money."

"If the Federal Government is going to be forced to give relief, it should handle it direct," he said, adding he hoped "the situation will not arise, so that State and local charity can not take care of it."

Expenditures Demanded.

Opposition to proposed curtailment of the appropriations for the War Department the next fiscal year has grown. This bill had been delayed to await the outcome of the Sino-Japanese situation.

There is added sentiment also for the $600,000,000 naval bill sidetracked by the House naval committee.

Road building interests are striving for the $375,000,000 Federal highway aid bill pending before the House roads committee. Other interests are urging a $100,000,000 rivers and harbors omnibus bill.

Veterans' organizations are asking enactment of a pensions bill for widows and children.

The leaders have their hands full in trying to stop this and other legislation.

3 Men, 1 Armed, Rob Storekeeper

Fourteenth Street Merchant Forced to Hand Bandits $15.

Three men, one armed with a pistol, last night held up a delicatessen at 3606 Fourteenth street northwest and robbed the proprietor, Isador Caston, 38 years old, of $15, forced him through rear door into the backyard and escaped in a waiting car parked at the front curb.

Caston told police he saw the machine—a dark-bodied sedan—draw up in front of the store. The three men, he said, entered and asked for soft drinks. As he was about to serve them, police were told, one of the trio produced a gun and ordered Caston to "hand over" his cash.

He gave the man all in his cash register, Caston said, but that did not suit him. When informed that he had no more money, Caston declared, the man forced him to the rear of the store and into the backyard. The other two remained near the front door. Caston told police he ran through an alley and reached the front of his establishment in time to see the bandits flee in the waiting machine.

Sweeney Would Back Smith at Convention

Cleveland, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Representative Martin L. Sweeney today telegraphed former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, of New York, that he would be a Smith candidate for delegate to the Democratic national convention.

His announcement, however, came before he was informed of Smith's statement and he could not be reached tonight.

LEAVENWORTH HEAD TO BE TRANSFERRED

However, Action Described as Due to Poor Health; Regime Indorsed.

Leavenworth, Kans. Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Virtual completion of an investigation by the Department of Justice has resulted in indorsement of the administration at Leavenworth prison of Warden T. B. White, now convalescing from serious injuries received in an unsuccessful break of seven convicts, December 11, 1931.

Announcement of completion of the investigation was made today by Sanford Bates, director of Federal Penal Institutions, simultaneously with word that Warden White is to be transferred temporarily to a new penal farm at El Paso, Tex. Three of the convicts participating in the December break were killed, the others captured.

Fred G. Zerbst, former warden at the Federal prison at Atlanta, and for the last two years warden of the Leavenworth Penitentiary annex, is to be appointed warden of the main prison here immediately.

Mr. Bates, prior to departing tonight for Washington, made it clear that the transfer of Warden White to El Paso was ordered solely because of his ill health. The Federal prison director explained that Mr. White was not strong enough to retain active direction of the larger institution here.

U. S. FUNCTIONS CUT URGED FOR ECONOMY

Many Bureau Activities Are Described as Needless by Senator Glenn.

(Associated Press.)

A pruning of governmental expenditures through elimination of Federal functions which he regards as needless was advocated yesterday by Senator Glenn (Republican), Illinois.

He mentioned specifically in an interview the Departments of Justice, Agriculture, Commerce and Postoffice and the Federal Trade Commission and Bureau of Standards as containing possibilities for economy.

"There is a great deal of feeling," he said, "that the Federal Trade Commission is largely meddling into private business institutions and a great many people think the whole thing could be abolished."

He spoke of the expenditure of "$29,000,000 for airmail" by the Postoffice Department, the issuance of "millions of bulletins" by the Agriculture Department and "the great growth of expenses of the Justice Department since 1921."

Senator Glenn said that regardless of the necessity of reducing expenditures, when the efforts are undertaken they are met with propaganda from "organized minorities that want to reduce expenses but want to do so on something other than their pet projects."

CHINESE HERE RAISE $3,000 AS WAR FUND

Students Find Community Is Enthusiastic to Help Repel Invasion.

The Chinese community of Washington, including the Chinese Students Club, has raised in two days $3,000 for the war chest against the Japanese invasion. The money has already been sent to the military headquarters at Shanghai.

It is estimated that $1,500 will be raised and sent to China each week as every Chinese worker in Washington has voluntarily pledged to contribute $2 from his weekly income to the war chest.

The Chinese here, as well as those in other parts of the globe, have contributed enthusiastically to this cause, as several examples show.

An old Chinese laundryman, nearly 70 years old, when approached by the students, opened his drawer and handed them $28, which was undoubtedly half of his monthly income. A 10-year-old boy contributed all his weekly income, which was $2, to the collectors. Three hundred dollars was raised in ten minutes from a group of less than 20 Chinese students who met here last night.

Many also expressed their readiness to return and fight against the Japanese for the preservation of their nation.

Japan's Aim Held Pacific Mastery

U. S. Tradesmen Urged by Judge Linebarger to Block Purpose.

Declaring that the farmers and craftsmen of America should organize to prevent Japan from controlling the rich markets of Asia by force, Judge Paul Linebarger, legal adviser to the Federal Government of China, urged at a meeting of the Washington Secular League, in conjunction with farm and labor representation, last night at Musicians' Hall, 1006 E street northwest, that immediate action be taken by America against Japan's aggression in China.

He also declared at the meeting that watchful waiting on the part of the present administration gives Japan new victories day by day, victories which are gained without loss to Japan and will entail terrific expense to America eventually.

Judge Linebarger declared that Europeans consider the present invasion of China by Japan as a Pacific Ocean trade question, and that the mastery of the Pacific is Japan's present goal. If this happens Japan can dictate to America whatever terms of trade may be most favorable to Japanese interests, and in a short time, under such Japanese economic control of the Pacific, America will be reduced to such depths of poverty that it will be willing to accept Japanese domination as a matter of rescue from the same misery that China today is suffering.

Japanese People Get Delayed News

Populace Calm as It Hears of Army Going to Shanghai.

Tokyo, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—The Japanese people first became aware that they were sending a Japanese army expedition to the Shanghai area through the Sunday newspapers.

A few hours later extras announced the vanguard of the expedition had landed at Woosung and was already in action beside their naval comrades. A naval communique describing Sunday's action at Woosung ended by saying the Chinese had resisted stubbornly and were holding entrenched positions around the town.

The announcement that soldiers were fighting on Chinese soil was received calmly by the people of Tokyo and other cities. All activity was normal. Practically every Japanese dwelling in the capital, however, displayed a national flag with black streamers in memory of the 25 soldiers of the Imperial Bodyguard Division lost in action in Manchuria.

2,000 LIQUOR CARS SEIZED IN 3 YEARS

the Volstead law. In 1929 584 machines were given a like fate, so that it can readily be seen that seizures here run slightly under two automobiles a day.

Contrary to the general belief, most of the machines taken by police are not wrecks. For the most part, they are large cars, capable of making great speed, and are usually kept in excellent condition so that they may reach high speeds in order to elude possible captors. Sometimes these machines are used by Government agents and police. Some squads of the Metropolitan police force are equipped with cars taken from bootleggers and confiscated by court order.

Charles Williams, custodian of all seized liquor, also furnished some interesting figures on the liquor problem. He reported that in 1929 31,603 gallons of "hard liquor" were seized. From that time on the seizures have diminished in quantity, owing to the practice of the violators in carrying smaller supplies so that when they are arrested their losses will be smaller. The following are exact figures for the past three years, in so far as the amounts of liquor actually destroyed—poured down the sewers—is concerned.

In 1929, 31,603 gallons of "hard liquor, 2,794 gallons of beer, 496 gallons of wine, 204 gallons of cider, 60 gallons of ale, 47 gallons of champagne and 1,034 gallons of alcohol.

In 1930, 15,806 gallons of liquor, 686 gallons of beer, 1,145 gallons of wine and 1,108 gallons of alcohol.

In 1931, 26,537 gallons of "hard liquor," 4,467 gallons of beer, 992 gallons of wine, 134 gallons of ale, 77 gallons of cider, 2 gallons of champagne and 2,280 gallons of alcohol.

As illustrating the growth in activity by the agents, the number of official court orders in which the death knell of a seizure of liquor was rung is cited. In 1929 there were 450 official destruction orders. In 1930 there were 595, and in 1931, 916, showing that, while the seizures were smaller, they were almost double in number.

JAPAN OCCUPIES WOOSUNG AFTER DESPERATE BATTLE

and aircraft—would be turned on the Chinese. They planned to pull up new artillery to bombard the Woosung strongholds, with the big guns of warships and the bombs of airplanes joining in the combat.

Weather Favors Chinese.

The weather favored the Chinese, winter covering them with a rainy blanket of low visibility. Despite the fog, snow, sleet and rain, the Japanese said they had landed a number of 3-inch and 5-inch field pieces from ships offshore.

The Chinese made feverish preparations to meet the enemy's gigantic encircling movement all through yesterday. Liuho, some 15 miles up the Yangtze from Woosung, was a veritable confusion of trenches and barricades and sand bag walls. Chinese reports said the Japanese had landed troops at Liuho resulting in an outbreak of hostilities in that vicinity.

Major activities of the day, however, centered in a terrific struggle for the mastery of Woosung, where Japanese troops and bluejackets made persistent efforts to bridge Woosung Creek and get within striking distance of the forts. All of the bridges across Woosung Creek had been destroyed by the Chinese, who directed their most intense fire against the creek positions of the Japanese.

Fail to Cross Creek.

Although it was not clear just where the battle stood when darkness fell, the Japanese said they had not crossed the creek and taken the ramshackle town in front of the fort.

All Chinese civilian life was blasted out of Woosung by the Japanese warships. The entire district was pockmarked with shell fire by four seaplanes and 12 land planes as well.

In the intervals of poor visibility occasioned by falling snow refugees scattered and evacuated along the Whangpoo river front. Strings of men, women and children, clamoring for shelter, struggled unceasingly in the mud to escape the death behind them. Babes in arms screamed every times bombs exploded and shook the district for miles around.

Fearing the ravages of hostilities going on in the Shanghai area, 200,000 Chinese refugees have evacuated to outlying communities within the past five days, it was estimated by Chinese and foreign authorities today.

Authorities said most of them fled southward aboard any manner of craft they could find. The roads between Liuho and Shanghai were swarming with refugees, some traveling one way and some another, but all with the common purpose to escape war.

Questioning soldiers and civilians, the Associated Press correspondent found their hearts filled with hate for "the barbarian invaders." All were determined, they said, to pay the supreme sacrifice, if necessary, to hold China for Chinese.

A mounting sentiment against other foreigners was also apparent. There was an almost universal tendency among those questioned on the road between Liuho and Shanghai to criticize the great powers severely for allegedly permitting Japan to use Shanghai's International Settlement as a base of operations for military movements.

Food Problem Difficult.

The food problem here is most difficult. War or no war, soldiers must eat, and with thousands of foreign troopers pouring into Shanghai, they have brought great demands on already undersupplied food markets in the city.

Ten thousand loaves of bread daily were only part of the order of the American forces presented at the local American bakery and wholesale grocery. Additional items included tons of onions and potatoes that soldiers' stew may not lack substance.

Additional orders confronting these American bakers were 20,000 loaves of bread daily for Chinese troops, and, parodoxically, heavy Japanese demands on the same bakers caused many orders to be turned down because they could not be filled.

POWERS DELAY PEACE MOVE UNTIL TOKYO OFFERS PLAN

sung, which lies at the junction of the Whangpoo River with the Yangtze.

The Japanese are supported by destroyers in the Whangpoo, and Japanese bluejackets and soldiers are moving from the north and east against the Chinese. Foreign commanders defending the International Settlement fear this clash, organized on such a large scale, may extend into the International Settlement.

Through consular and diplomatic officers in Tokyo, Shanghai and Nanking the United States and Great Britain, as well as France and Italy, are calling the attention of Japanese officials daily to the peril in which foreigners are placed at Shanghai.

But until Japan makes some overture for the submission of a new peace plan it seems unlikely the great powers will submit any further proposals to Tokyo.

The full statement of Japan's policy in the Shanghai situation, which was made public by Ambassador Debuchi in Washington Saturday night, contained no essential points not previously covered by press dispatches from Tokyo.

It maintains Japan's campaign in Shanghai is for the defense of all foreign interests as well as those of Japan, and disavows any intention to acquire territory.

Through the Washington Legation, Dr. Lo Wen-Ken, Chinese minister of foreign affairs, renewed his plea for intervention in China by Western powers.

He asserted in the statement the Shanghai and Manchurian difficulties could not be treated separately and said the Japanese insistence that they be considered separately "is clearly contradictory to the avowed intentions on the part of Japan that she has no territorial designs in Manchuria."

"It is most absurd to charge China with militarism," the statement said. "China is only exercising her natural rights of defending her territory and her sovereign rights. She is left alone to resist the onslaught on the sanctity of international agreements guaranteeing world peace as well as the sovereignty, independence, territorial and administrative integrity of nations.

"If necessary measures of self-defense may be called militarism, what will be called such deliberate military aggression as the forceful occupation of Manchuria and the devastation of Shanghai, bringing in their wake death and destruction? China has tolerated more than any other sovereign state can tolerate. Under similar circumstances measures to be adopted by any other sovereign state would not have been confined to mere self-defense.

"While China has accepted the joint proposal of powers for the settlement of the present crisis, the Japanese marines and airplanes are attacking Shanghai with increasing fierceness. Will the powers allow peace be thus broken and sacred treaties be thus trampled under foot?"

George C. Hanson, American Consul General at Harbin, advised the State Department that no Americans were injured or property damaged when Japanese troops occupied that city last Friday, wounding 500 Chinese soldiers.

Six Russians were killed and several wounded, Hanson reported. He added there was little damage done to the city aside from slight looting in Fuchiatien.

Traffic has been restored on the southern line of the Chinese Eastern Railway, Hanson said. The eastern line is functioning normally and the western line soon will be repaired.

The destroyer Simpson radioed from Nanking yesterday that nine more American women and children were being evacuated, bringing to 130 the number of Americans which have been taken to Shanghai on commercial ships. The situation at Nanking was reported quiet.

9-POWER TREATY REPLACING PROPOSED IN TOKYO SCHEME

would be an international conference, which almost certainly would be held at Shanghai shortly for the purpose of cleaning up the present "mess."

The Japanese consul general at Vladivostok, Siberia, reported to his government yesterday that the Siberian seaport had taken on "an atmosphere which may be described like that of wartime," and that movement of Soviet troops and horses there had greatly increased. Transportation of munitions, he said, was much in evidence.

While the consul general was inclined to discredit reports that the Soviets were massing troops at Vladivostok, he said the Russians were carrying out wholesale arrests of "white" Russians, who were being deported in large numbers because the prisons were filled to overflowing.

The military activities of the Soviet were merely precautionary, the report indicated. Those deported were compelled to embark for points outside the Far East.

The insistence of the Soviets that the "white" Russians leave the Orient was interpreted here as showing fear that they might join "white" Russian communities in Manchuria, where a coup has been feared for some time.

Although the Japanese Consul General avoided mention of this fear, it was observed military activities in Vladivostock coincided with the period of the Japanese drive on Harbin. Nevertheless the preparations were regarded in authoritative quarters as not aimed directly against Japan, but due to Soviet fears that the Japanese northward advance might encourage White Russians in Manchuria to attempt some form of military coup in Eastern Siberia.

Attention here was also directed to a reported switch in allegiance by Gen. Mah Chan-Shan, the Chinese commander who was driven out of Tsitsihar by the Japanese in their Manchurian drive.

Mah Chan-Shan Back.

Mah Chan-Shan, whose position has been doubtful during the later Japanese drive on Harbin—the Chinese claiming he had reaffirmed his loyalty to Nanking (Honanfu)—evidently has returned to the Japanese camp following Gen. Jiro Tamon's occupation of Harbin.

The Rengo (Japanese) News Agency in dispatches from Harbin said the erstwhile Chinese hero of Nonni River Bridge and Tsitsihar had gone to Harbin from his base at Halun on Saturday night seeking an interview with Tamon.

Meet for Long Parley.

The Japanese agreed and the pair met in the Japanese headquarters for a long conference. It was understood that Gen. Mah had pledged loyal cooperation with the Japanese in northern Manchuria. Shortly thereafter Gen. Tamon entertained his guest at a Sunday luncheon where much champagne flowed.

Shortly after the revelation of the entente-cordiale, Gen. Mah was expected to proceed to Tsitsihar to assume governorship of Heilungkiang Province.

Meanwhile Japanese airplanes yesterday continued their destructive bombing and machine gun sniping at the retreating forces of Gen. Ting Chao who was driven out of Harbin the last week. The Japanese claimed they had scattered two large enemy groups in the districts north of Harbin.

Plane Pilot Gives Alarm of Fire

Topeka, Kan., (U.P.).—Ernest W. Cramer owes a debt of gratitude to an unnamed Army airplane pilot.

The flier, noticing the roof of Cramer's home was on fire, swooped his plane low over the house and attracted attention of Cramer and his wife. Seeing that the fire department had been called, the pilot went on. His ship was No. 123.

LEAGUE'S SHANGHAI INQUISITORS REPORT

Contents Closely Guarded, Document Is Believed of Minor Importance.

Geneva, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—The League of Nations Commission of Inquiry at Shanghai has made a report to Secretary General Sir Eric Drummond, it became known today, but its contents were closely guarded.

It was authoritatively believed, however, that the report was of minor importance as compared with the negotiations now progressing between America and other great powers for settlement of the Sino-Japanese dispute. The document undoubtedly contained in official form much information previously reported by the press and other unofficial sources.

It was thought probable tonight that the League Council would not even be convened tomorrow to hear the report.

The Japanese held the attitude that the council should await the great powers' mediatory efforts and the councilors appeared to agree with this view. The council might be summoned, however, to hear other matters.

The Japanese delegation presented to the secretariat Tokyo's new declaration of policy in the Pacific and the Shanghai area particularly. The Japanese apparently were sticking by their demands that the Manchurian question be kept separate from the Shanghai incident and that they shall not be treated under Article XV of the league covenant.

(Article XV provides that in a dispute among league members not submitted to arbitration or judicial settlement, the matter will be submitted directly to the council.)

The echo of the Tokyo report that Japan would withdraw from the league if her view in this matter was not respected was heard in unofficial Japanese quarters, but such a determination was not officially confirmed.

The Chinese government while it owes $3,000,000 in its regular obligations to the league, is technically and legally upon regular terms with the league treasury, it was announced today.

Arrangements for Payments.

At the outbreak of the disastrous Chinese flood last year, the league authorities made special arrangements with Nanking for China's payment of obligations. Nanking agreed to pay the expenses of the league's relief and reconstruction experts in Chinese territory and arranged with the league treasury to pay outstanding obligations in a fixed schedule during the next ten years.

Some friends of the Chinese here were urging the Chinese to borrow money and pay up regardless of last year's deferred payment plan.

The Japanese paid their 1932 dues a few weeks ago in advance.

Besides China seventeen other members of the league, mostly Latin-American countries, are behind in the payment of allocated dues.

Blame Fatigue for Many Evening Auto Accidents

Harrisburg, Pa., (U.P.).—Fatigue is responsible for a majority of the automobile crashes in the evenings, according to the Safety Division of the Pennsylvania Motor Vehicle Bureau.

"Driving home from work in the evening may be relaxation for some of us, but for the big majority it is an addition to the day's mental and physical strain," said Walter W. Matthews, director of the Safety Division.

Fisk Reorganizing Plan Again Fought

Stockholders' Group Puts Up Objections Similar to Those of Willys.

New York, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—The Fisk Rubber Company stockholders protective committee today sent an appeal to stockholders to resist the proposed reorganization of that company.

The committee is headed by Andraw J. Miller, of Hallgarten & Co., chairman; Joseph S. Maxwell, vice president of the New York Trust Co.; Herbert P. Howell, president of the Commercial National Bank & Trust Co., of New York, and Wallace V. Camp, president of the Springfield National Bank of Springfield, Mass.

In most essentials, the stockholders protective committee raised objections to the proposed reorganization similar to those advanced one week ago by John N. Willys, Ambassador to Poland and automobile manufacturer. Mr. Willys, who holds a substantial block of the company's bonds and notes, expressed his conviction that a reorganization at this time would harm the business of the company which is now entering the spring selling season.

flurries blotted her from sight except for a glimpse at about half a mile.

When the rolling schooner loomed suddenly out of the greyness, hard under the Jadot's prow, the big liner could not respond properly, the captain said, to her hard down helm. The wind was sweeping her on and her propeller was threshing high in the water.

It was 6:45 a. m. when the crash came. Only a few were on deck. Most of the men were below in cabins through which the steel prow slashed.

Some one cut the lashings from a nest of dories on the Nickerson's deck, and five men managed to lower themselves into it. It tossed perilously and water gushed through a 6-inch hole in its side. While the Jadot made a leeway, the men managed to get into another dory. The Nickerson sank quickly.

The sixth man, Frank LeBlanc, was struggling in the water to free himself of sea boots, when a huge wave hurled him into the boat with the other five. After several attempts, the survivors were able to board the Jadot.

Capt. Irving Morrissey, of the Nickerson, which sailed from Boston a week ago, went down with his ship.

4 Risk Lives to Save Shanghai's Last Cable

Shanghai, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Four lives are constantly in jeopardy in the effort to keep unbroken the lone remaining cable thread between Shanghai and the outside world.

At the cable heads of the Great Northern Telegraph Co., where land and sea lines join, two men, a woman and a child are sticking to their post while war rages nearby. The cable heads are within a mile of Woosung Village, where all today Japanese bluejackets launched a terrific attack on the Chinese forts at Woosung just beyond.

Although the air was singing with bullets and shells were bursting nearby while the Japanese fighting men swarmed through the neighborhood, Cable Superintendent E. M. Kiremo and his assistant, A. A. Anderson, and his wife, refused to desert their post.

LEAGUE BODY ASKED TO MEET ON MEMEL

tiate with Herr Bruening because Hitler alone will determine Germany's future armament policy.

(Associated Press.)

Memel is in southwest Lithuania near the German border and has a population of more than 35,000 people, principally of German descent. It is on the Memel River and is an important shipping outlet to the Baltic.

By the Treaty of Versailles Germany ceded the town and the territory east of the river to the allied powers and it was administered for three years by French military forces. It was seized by Lithuania in 1923 and the dispute was referred to the League of Nations.

Under the league's direction a commission of inquiry constituted the Memel territory as a unit within the sovereignty of Lithuania and provided that a governor should be appointed by the President of the Lithuanian republic. Their report was adopted by all parties in 1924.

Treason Charge Is Seen.

Kovno, Lithuania, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—President Otto Boettcher, of the Memel territorial council, who was deposed and arrested yesterday by Lithuanian authorities, was expected today to be tried on a charge of treason.

Dispatches from Memel indicated that Herr Boettcher had given offense to the Lithuanian Government by visiting Berlin and conducting negotiations with German officials. It was understood the Lithuanian Governor of Memel had called on him to resign, but he had refused.

The Lithuanian Governor, claiming to be acting on instructions from the Government, has appointed a council composed solely of Lithuanians to execute the affairs of the region. International experts said this action violated the autonomous status of the territory.

Herr Boettcher was taken into custody by two Lithuanian officers and removed to their barracks by motor car. His offices were sealed and telephone communications with the court of justice and the city council were cut off.

Ousting Is Denounced.

Berlin, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—The German consul in Kovno was ordered by the government today to protest the ousting of President Otto Boettcher of Memel and to advise the Lithuanian government that the League of Nations was being asked to intervene in behalf of the German populace.

The ousting and detention of President Boettcher were criticized in scathing terms today by papers of the Right Wing.

The extreme Nationalistic Deutsche Zeitung said: "Had we (the Nationalists) been in power we would have ordered a concentration of troops to the Memel frontier," and added that diplomatic relations should be broken with this "City of Lithuanian Crooks."

Wilhelmstrasse circles expressed the opinion that the next steps to safeguard the status of Memel must be taken by the signatory powers of the Memel convention, England, France, Italy and Japan.

Memel Is Closed City.

Tilsit, Germany (On Prussian-Memel Border), Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Memel was a closed city tonight. Border police refused to permit newspapermen to pass and telephonic communication was barred in consequence of the arrest of President Otto Boettcher.

The whereabouts of Herr Boettcher were unknown here. Some reports said he was confined to barracks in Memel, and others were that he had been spirited to Kovno. An unconfirmed rumor said troopers were patrolling the streets of Memel and citizens were not allowed to congregate.

Percy Grainger Named To N. Y. U. Music Post

New York, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Percy Grainger, internationally known pianist and composer, has been appointed head of the music department of the New York University College of Fine Arts, it was announced today.

He will succeed Albert Stoessel, who has become head of the opera department of the Juilliard Graduate School. Mr. Grainger will begin active duty next September. In addition to supervising the department, he will teach classes in musical appreciation and in composition.

John D. Misses Church; May Resume Golf Soon

Ormond, Fla., Feb. 7 (A.P.).—John D. Rockefeller, sr., spent the day quietly at his winter home today.

Many persons who waited to see him at church were disappointed. The 93-year-old multimillionaire contracted a cold ten days ago and since that time he has limited his activities. Toward the end of the week he may resume his daily round of golf.

Bicentennial Stamp Is Issued by Poland

Warsaw, Poland, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Stamps commemorating the bicentennial of the birth of George Washington have been issued by the Polish postoffice and an enlarged reproduction will be forwarded to President Hoover as a gift from President Moscicki.

The issue bears portraits of Washington and of the Polish patriots, Kosciuszko and Pulaski.

TARDIEU URGES U. S. TO JOIN POLICE PLAN

Disarmament Delegate Uses Radio in Cooperation Plea at Geneva.

Geneva, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Andre Tardieu, French delegate to the world disarmament conference here, pleaded with America in a radio speech tonight to support the French proposal to arm the League of Nations with a force of international police.

Shortly before, Chancellor Heinrich Bruening, Germany, said his country, its armed forces already drastically limited by the Versailles treaty, would introduce "a full concrete program of constructive proposals for disarmament at the moment it considered most expedient.

The conference for the reduction and limitation of armaments is "the greatest opportunity the world has had in 12 years," said the French delegate, who is also his country's minister of war.

United States Invited.

Broadcasting on the eve of his address to the conference tomorrow, M. Tardieu said the French scheme, presented Friday, "invites the United States to seek ways and means of cooperation."

"I see nothing in the French proposal that seems directed against the collaboration of the United States," he said. "We desire to strengthen the league. Surely it is in the interests of the United States as a world power to collaborate with an organization which includes more than 50 states.

"For several years you have actively collaborated in the work of the preparatory committee. As signatories of the Kellogg Pact, which outlaws war and provides for pacific settlement of all disputes, how should you not wish to collaborate with the League of Nations when it is endeavoring to combat war and strengthen peace?

Means of Cooperation.

"The French scheme explicity invites the United States to seek ways and means of cooperation."

M. Tardieu said he realized the United States was not menaced as were European countries by certain new weapons such as airplanes, but said modifications of the French scheme would be made to suit local conditions. The French proposal suggests that the air forces of Nations in the league be made available for the contemplated police force.

He denied that the French proposal was a diplomatic or political move. France, he explained, presented the scheme immediately after the conference directorate was formed Friday in order to furnish an immediate basis for general discussion, thus following an example of the American delegation at the Washington Naval Conference in 1922.

5 Dead and 17 Injured In European Mine Blasts

Caltanisetta, Sicily, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Five miners were killed and ten injured by an explosion of fire-damp far underground here last night. The fifteen men were working alone on the night shift. Three of those injured were in a critical condition today. The explosion was heard above ground, and rescuers reached the men after several hours.

Charleroi, Belgium, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Seven miners were seriously injured by a fire-damp explosion in a coal mine near here last night and eighteen others were trapped between two slides of coal. The explosion occurred at a depth of 3,780 feet.

Famous Etchings Stolen From New York Gallery

New York, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—A number of valuable etchings, one by James McNeill Whistler, and some Japanese prints were reported stolen today from the Walpole Galleries.

Mrs. Young Turnbull, proprietor, declined to say how many of the pieces were taken or to estimate their value. She said they were the property of the estate of Dr. William Cowen, New York physician who died two years ago, and had been turned over to her for disposal at auction by the executors. The Whistler etching, Mrs. Turnbull said, was "A Street Scene in Saverne."

HOOVER ATTACKED IN SHOALS REPORT

Figures of Tyler Upon Low Sale Price of Power Are Challenged.

(Associated Press.)

Another pamphlet, termed a complete answer to the report on Muscle Shoals by the President's commission, yesterday was added to the stack of data and argument that has accumulated about the power plant over the years.

Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, congressional leader in the fight for Government operation of the Alabama power plant, said the report issued yesterday had been prepared by the National Popular Government League at his request.

The Nebraska senator said it showed misleading deductions by the commission, which recommended private operation of the plant, and, "incidentally, it also annihilates the arguments made by President Hoover in his message vetoing the Muscle Shoals bill which passed the last Congress."

Charges on Selection.

The report charged that the commission appointed by President Hoover was selected with the view to getting a report recommending against Government operation of the power project, as provided in the Norris bill. The assertion was made that Govs. Horton of Tennessee and Miller of Alabama, who named six members of the commission, were "both elected by the political machines of the power interests."

"Manifestly the conclusions of the commissions were foreordained," the report added.

Much of the lengthy report was devoted to the conclusions of Lieut. Col. M. C. Tyler, chosen by the commission to determine whether the Government could successfully operate the electrical plant at Muscle Shoals.

Col. Tyler recommended against Government operation of the Shoals power plant.

The league said Tyler was a former chief engineer of the Federal Power Commission and that he was the principal adviser to F. E. Bonner, executive secretary of the commission, adding:

"As is well known, Bonner resigned his position after his conduct in office had been exposed to the public in both House and Senate committees and had become a national scandal."

"Tyler's conclusion, that the power plants at the Shoals were not suitably located to serve as the main generating stations of an extensive independent power system had been reputed," the league said, by a previous report prepared by Army engineers.

He pointed out in response to a House request, the report said, that there was a shortage of hydroelectric power in southern Indiana, Ohio, Illinois, Eastern Missouri, Arkansas and Louisiana and in Mississippi and Kentucky which could be supplied from the Tennessee River basin.

Figures Are Challenged.

"To the engineers of the colonel's persuasion no public plant would be suitably located," the report said, "except upon the star Canopus."

Figures given by Col. Tyler in support of his conclusion that the sale price of power by private companies in the Muscle Shoals region was low were challenged by the report.

It asserted that Col. Tyler compared private wholesale rates of power companies serving the region with public retail rates of municiple power plants in arriving at the conclusion that there was little difference between them.

The conclusions of the report were that the chairman and a majority of the members of the President's commission "are not engineering experts, but politicians and lobbyists beholden to the power trust."

Are Declared Absurd.

"The findings of Col. Tyler that Government operation would create a deficit of $23,000,000 in fifteen years is based upon arbitrary, undocumented assertions of his own, which are proven absurd by previous nonpolitical reports of his fellow engineers.

"President Hoover's manifest purpose in creating the commission was, by involving Democratic governors, to embarrass the Democratic party, prevent it making Muscle Shoals an issue in the campaign. It would also embarrass progressive Republicans. The report is a campaign document, intended to catch farm votes without sacrificing Mr. Hoover's main political support, the power trust."

INVENTIONS ENABLE NEAR BLIND TO SEE

New vistas were opened before a group of near-blind patients at a clinic held in connection with the congress of optometrists which opened a three-day session under the auspices of the District of Columbia Optometric Society yesterday at the Raleigh Hotel. Persons who have been unable to have vision with the usual type of spectacles were fitted with new developments of optometric science so that they will be enabled to earn their livelihoods without handicap.

One of the most remarkable devices demonstrated by Dr. William Feinbloom, chief of staff of the New York Optometric Clinic, who was the lecturer for the first day, was the pinhole spectacles which restore vision to persons who have blind spots in the eye. By an arrangement of tiny pinholes in a black square, the light rays are deflected past the blind spots to reflect a clear picture on the retina. One patient who had to be assisted in walking because of his lack of sight was enabled to read from small print when fitted with the spectacles.

Telescopic Lenses Used.

Telescopic lenses developed in Germany some years ago were demonstrated on an 11-year-old boy whose progress in school has been retarded by his inability to associate letters into words because of subnormal vision. These lenses have the power of enlarging the image upon the retina many times more than the natural eye produces and enables the wearer to see detail with ease and comfort, whereas the usual spectacles will not produce this effect. The boy was able to read letters clearly for the first time in his life.

An invention of German and Austrian scientists, evolved to provide vision for a woman tight-rope walker who was so nearsighted she could not see the rope, and who could not wear spectacles in her act was demonstrated on pretty Miss Hazel Wyatt, secretary to Dr. Lewis H. Kraskin. This consists of a shell which fits over the eyeball itself and is invisible. This type is not recommended for general use, but is invaluable for actresses, swimmers and other such special users.

Speakers at Session.

Dr. Frederick L. Benton, M. D., spoke at last night's session on "Pathology Essential to the Optometrist." Dr. E. F. Tait, member of the faculty of the Pennsylvania State College of Optometry at Philadelphia, will lecture today on the "Accommodation Convergence Background of Dynamic Skiametry." A banquet will be held tonight, at which prominent optometrists of Washington, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Delaware and Pennsylvania will be present.

The final day of the congress will be devoted to lectures by Dr. Jerome Heather, O. D., D. O. S., a member of the faculty of the Northern Illinois College of Optometry, who will talk on ethical subjects. Dr. Heather, who was born in Maryland, is particularly well known for his determined warfare against commercialism and his advocacy of the higher standards of professionalism among optometrists.

REVOLT PLOT HEAD SEIZED IN URUGUAY

Government Announces All Danger Past, but Patrols Are Maintained.

Montevideo, Uruguay, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—The government today took strong measures to prevent a threatened Communist outbreak and with the arrest of Nepomuceno Saravia, its reported leader, announced that "all danger was past."

Meanwhile, however, troops were restricted to their garrisons in Montevideo and machine guns were placed at strategic points, while soldiers patroled the suburbs.

Saravia, estranged regional leader of the Nationalist (minority) party, was arrested at the police station in Rivera after crossing the Brazilian border. He was charged with buying arms and trying to induce people to join a subversive movement.

It was understood the Communists planned their coup at the opening of the carnival which began last night, starting with an attack on the light plant and hoping to accomplish their feat in the ensuing confusion.

The sudden change of South America's smallest republic from a haven and forum of communism to an enemy land began a week ago when arms smuggling was uncovered on the northern border. The government had hoped it would be able to avoid announcement of subversive activity so as not to prevent crowds from attending the carnival, but suddenly decided to bring its campaign into the open.

Skeleton Estate Bared As Leguia Is Buried

Callao, Peru, Feb. 7 (U.P.).—The remarkable career of Augusto B. Leguia, who ruled Peru with an iron hand for eleven years only to be hurled from power while mortally ill, was mirrored today in the publication of his will as the former president was buried.

"My only real fortune consists—if it ever be recovered—of a life free from the calumny which today disfigures it," said the will. "That fortune I leave in equal parts to my six children."

Leguia's three daughters are abroad, one of them in California. One son is in jail here and the other two live in Chile.

The funeral of the once powerful dictator, who died under guard in the naval hospital, was attended by his brother, Roberto, and a few close friends. The body will be removed later to a plot beside the grave of his wife in Lima, where his political career reached its apex.

In his will, Leguia specified that he be buried without pomp or show. Then, after mentioning that his income was once $80,000 annually, he declared in the will that the only material possessions remaining to him were some life insurance policies and decorations or medals presented by foreign governments and Peruvian provinces.

Fireman Dies as Pusher Locomotive Hits Train

Spruce Pine, N. C., Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Train 38 of the Carolina, Clinchfield & Ohio Railway collided with a pusher engine 3 miles south of here today, killing one man and injuring several others. N. P. Palmer, of Erwin, Tenn., fireman on No. 38, was the man killed.

The pusher engine had been used to help train No. 26 up the steep grade near here and was returning when it collided headon with No. 38, a passenger train, which runs from Elkhorn City, Ky., to Spartanburg, S. C. Neither engine turned over, but both were knocked from the tracks and virtually demolished.

Suicide Tried So Family Could Collect Insurance

Chicago, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—George Sloan, 50, failed today in what members of his family said was an attempt to commit suicide so they could collect his insurance money.

Mrs. Sloan said the family savings were lost recently in a bank failure and her husband had been despondent. A son, George Sloan, jr., 14, found his father today, police said, lying in the rear of his automobile, inhaling gas fumes from the motor. A fire department squad saved him.

3 FRENCH AIRMEN FOUND IN SAHARA

when Col. Vuillemin and Capt. Poulian found them.

The rescuers reported the three men weak but otherwise in good condition when they were found at 7 a. m. The reports indicated that Reginensi's disabled plane had been forced down amid moving sand hills and was almost hidden in a valley between two dunes.

Reginensi had attempted repeatedly to find a caravan train which might lead them to safety or at least to a desert well, but he was unable to find a trace of the trail in four trips made out from their plane.

The military authorities had concentrated a large fleet of rescue planes to aid in the search for the fliers, who had been forced far off the regular trans-Sahara air route by sand storms.

GOVERNORS TO VIEW ECONOMIC TANGLES

Unemployment Tops List of Topics for Session at Richmond in April.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 7 (A.P.).—An agenda reflecting the current economic perplexities with discussions on unemployment, budgets and banks was patterned today for the April convention of governors at Richmond, Va.

The program was worked out by the executive committee of the governors' conference, meeting here with one of its members, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York. The committee, adhering to its fundamental rule against discussion of controversial political subjects, prepared a two-day business program of topics relating strictly to governmental and economic subjects.

The governors convene at Richmond on April 25. With the heavy work out of the way at the end of the second day, they will help Virginia, native State of George Washington, celebrate the bicentennial of his birth by visiting historic spots intimately associated with his life.

White House Dinner.

The President and Mrs. Hoover, an announcement by the executive committee said, would entertain the governors and their wives at a White House dinner on the night of April 28.

Attending the executive committee meeting yesterday and today were the chairman, Gov. Norman S. Case, of Rhode Island; the secretary, former Gov. Cary Hardee, of Florida; Gov. George H. Dern, of Utah; Gov. John G. Pollard, of Virginia, and Gov. Roosevelt.

"Two days of the conference," said a joint announcement by the committee, "will be devoted to a discussion by the governors of rather practical subjects in which all the governors have a mutual interest—unemployment relief will be one of the subjects. Others to be discussed will be reduction of public expenditures, balancing local budgets and State supervision of local public expenditures.

"The subject of constructive policies looking toward strengthening of the banking structure will also be discussed."

The matter of automobile traffic and its relation to government is to occupy the attention of the executives during the second day of the meeting. Seeking a common meeting ground, the governors will talk over the question of highway safety, taxation and the regulation of trucks and buses, use and abuse of gasoline taxes and the extension of State operation of roads.

Interstate Bus Taxes.

The problem of taxing interstate truck and bus traffic has arisen to confront the individual States in recent years. A tendency to place a load or mileage tax on these common carriers has been revealed by legislation in a number of States. It was expected that this phase of interstate affairs would appear in the Richmond discussion.

Unemployment demanded a major share of attention from the executives when they met for their meeting last year at French Lick, Ind. The continuation of the depression into this year resulted in the executive committee giving that topic a place well up on the 1932 program.

As a climax to the bicentennial celebration feature of the Richmond meeting, there will be a general meeting on the night of April 27, with the host executive, Gov. Pollard, at the head of the table. Mr. Roosevelt is scheduled for the main address of that meeting.

20 Persons Are Injured In Three Paris Clashes

Paris, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Twenty persons were injured today in three clashes between Royalists, Socialists and Pacifists in the Latin quarter.

The trouble arose when members of the Royalist organization, "the King's henchmen," tried to prohibit the sale of Socialist and Pacifist publications. Two of the injured were taken to a hospital. Ten of the manifestants were arrested.

Lipsky to Head Palestine Drive.

New York, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—The election of Louis Lipsky, former president of the Zionist organization of America, as chairman of the administrative committee of the American Palestine campaign, was announced today. Among his five associates will be Judge William M. Lewis, of Philadelphia. The campaign is being conducted by the Jewish Agency for Palestine.

DR. HERSON BACKED AT CHURCH MEETING

Many in Tears as Another Occupies His Place in Annapolis Pulpit.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 7.—The bell on Calvary M. E. Church, Annapolis, did not ring out today; Communion, that is generally observed on the first Sunday of the month, was abandoned; many members of the congregation sat with bowed heads and in tears, others in apparent silent oblivion as the Rev. Dr. Chester Smith, superintendent of the Baltimore district of the church conference, preached at the morning service.

These and other acts in and out of the church reflected respect for their pastor, the Rev. Dr. Joseph T. Herson, formerly of Washington, coupled with the feeling that pervades the congregation over the summary action taken by conference officials in suspending him from ministerial service because of charges lodged against him. Moreover, the resentment was extended to Dr. Smith, who issued the mandate of suspension.

Action Declared Unfair.

The church folk maintain that the action was grossly unfair and unprecedented in view of circumstances of the matter as they have been unfolded. Evidence of this was furnished by the attitude of the congregation at the close of the service during which Dr. Smith had sermonized on the theme "Brotherly Love."

Heretofore, on occasion of visiting ministers, it has been customary for practically all the worshipers to greet the minister at the end of the service Today scarcely half a dozen advanced to the altar rail.

The charges against Dr. Herson are officially labeled by the committee, that investigated the alleged matter, "unministerial and imprudent conduct," and Dr. Herson's suspension from duty is to extend until June when trial will be held before the Baltimore conference in Frederick.

Details surrounding the charges have not been revealed, through the usual official church channels.

Supported by Board.

Other developments in the case included action by the Calvary official board, supporting Dr. Herson. This group, of which Clarence M. White is chairman and spokesman, held a series of meetings and investigations last week, and let it be known today that nothing has been revealed to warrant the drastic action taken against the former pastor. This sentiment is embodied in a resolution adopted by the board, which also provides for paying the salary of Dr. Herson for February, and permits him and his family to occupy the church parsonage in College avenue.

The local board has received communications, signed by delegations of St. Mark's Church, Hamline Church (Washington), and the Methodist Church at Salisbury, Md., where Dr. Herson formerly presided as pastor, extending deep sympathy and offering any assistance possible in clearing up the situation.

In the meantime, Dr. Herson, whose health has been failing since he came to Annapolis last October, is confined to his bed and refuses visitors, except in cases of absolute necessity. He sufers from heart trouble.

Habits of Missing Lutz Child Studied

Storekeeper Tells Police of Girl's Confused Direction Sense.

Philadelphia, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—A theory that a confused sense of direction may have led to the disappearance of Dorothy Lutz, 8, missing since last Wednesday, was considered by police today after Mrs. Anna Zutch, neighborhood storekeeper, was questioned.

"Since the child and her mother moved here little more than a week ago," Mrs. Zutch said, "Dorothy has been to the store many times. I noticed that when she left the store she usually started in the wrong direction, and I would have to run out after her and set her right." Mrs. Zutch did not see the child on Wednesday, however.

An intensive hunt has been under way since Dorothy's mother, widowed three weeks ago, asked police to find her. Vacant houses throughout the city have been searched, and two cellars near the Lutz home have been dug up. Today pictures and descriptions of the child were circulated in Sunday schools and children were asked to aid in the search.

Tin Pan Alley Silences Vienna's Dreamy Notes

By JOHN J. DALY

THE bottom has fallen out of the musical mart of the world, Vienna. So the balance of music trade shifts to Tin Pan Alley, just off Broadway, where "Yes, We Have No Bananas," a composite grouping of musical masterpieces, was strung together some years ago for the edification of music lovers.

Old Vienna—famous alike for its Viennese waltzes, Vienna bread and bock beer—reluctantly relinquishes the palm to a younger competitor. Alas, there is nothing else to do. Music generally has been hard hit in Vienna since American business methods applied mass production to musical composition. The old masters were too slow. The supply could not keep pace with the demand. Hence, the oldest music house in Vienna went into bankruptcy. It was the firm which once printed the manuscripts of Mozart, Haydn and Beethoven, the Strauss waltzes, "The Merry Widow," and other compositions.

WITH Vienna out of the way, young America stands up and sings in concert, "Good Night, Sweetheart," the latest love song of the Alley. An older generation may have taken to its heart such musical throbs as "Silver Threads Among the Gold," but a younger generation that never intends to go off the gold standard knows nothing of sentimental streaks exemplified by strands of hair. So jazz is in order, and "You Try Somebody Else; I'll Try Somebody Else, and We'll Both Get Together Again," starts heart beats and footsteps into the rhythmic rhumba of the dance.

Vienna once was the musical capital par excellence of the world, but Vienna got out of step with the universe when people stopped dancing the waltz, the polka and the minuet. When the Charleston and the Black Bottom came in, Vienna started on the way out.

* * * *

SOME of the old music masters, smoking their meerschaum pipes in the cafes of Vienna, will sigh and regret the new order; but youth must be served. Vienna may have lost its mastery in the music marts, but it still has its bread—Vienna bread—the best bread in the world to those who like Vienna bread.

Some day, Tin Pan Alley may suffer the same fate now dealt out to old Vienna, where once the baton of Beethoven was mightier than the scepter of the emperor. When that day comes, the critics may look twice at the Pipes of Pan and expose him for what he is—a tin god dancing in an alley instead of on the hillside of old Vienna. Then, and only then, will the Vienna Opera regain the spotlight.

Medal Given Inventor Of Cheap Gold Process

ECCENTRIC IS SLAIN IN FIGHT WITH POSSE

Barricades Himself in Home When Sought in Mail-Theft Attempt.

Guernsey, Iowa, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Bill Shull, 45-year-old eccentric, was shot and killed at his farm, 2½ miles southwest of here, today when he resisted a sheriff's posse sent to arrest him after an attempt to hold up a rural mail carrier.

Shull had barricaded himself in his ramshackle home yesterday and threatened Sheriff R. F. Gregson and Hegman Groff, of Guernsey, the mail carrier, and one or two sheriff's deputies.

Today Gregson returned with a posse of about 20 men, including three Grinnell policemen. The group approached the house and called to Shull to come out.

Made Death Threat.

As several of the men attracted Shull's attention at the kitchen door, Policeman C. L. Coles, of Grinnell, approached a barred window at another side of the house, and tossed in three tear gas bombs.

The tear gas spread, forcing Shull to the kitchen, where he warned the possemen to "Go away or I will kill some one."

Meanwhile, Date Gregson, father of the sheriff, rushed in the door and grappled with the man who carried a double-edged ax. Policeman W. S. Highfield, of Grinnell, fearing that the elder Gregson would be injured by the ax, shot and killed Shull.

Previously Declared Insane.

Coroner O. Dale Smith said he believed there was no need for an inquest.

Shull had accosted the mail carrier Friday as he passed the farm, a hilly, 40-acre tract which Shull had inherited from his father, and attempted to rob him of registered mail. Groff escaped and notified police.

Dr. E. B. Williams, of Montezuma, member of the County Sanity Commission, said Shull was declared insane 17 years ago but that the case had been dismissed. In 1922 he was again examined but declared harmless, Dr. Williams said.

Machado May Sign Sugar Act Today.

Havana, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—President Machado is expected to sign tomorrow the decree fixing the amount of sugar Cuba may produce this year at 3,061,000 tons. That figure was agreed upon last night in a session of the Cuban National Sugar Institute. Java's promise to reduce her crop this year to 1,496,351 tons "does not serve to correct the situation," Viriato Gutierrez, president of the institute, said, in cabling Senator Beaduin, of the Belgian delegation to the international sugar conference, Cuba's decision.

Colombia Guarantees Debts.

Bogota, Colombia, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Finance Minister Esteban Jarmillo announced today that all departments and municipalities of Colombit with foreign debts had agreed to the government's plan for payment of interest in government scrip. The government thus becomes guarantor that the interest will be paid. Most of the holders of department and municipal bonds are in the United States.

Mystery Fever to Be Investigated.

Bogota, Colombia, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—The Rockefeller Institute of Tropical Diseases plans to send a scientific expedition to Colombia in March to attempt the diagnosis of a "mystery" fever discovered in Barranquilla and Santa Marta, it was announced today. Colombian scientists have declared the illness is not yellow fever, although similar in its symptoms, and have asked the assistance of North American scientists.

Santiago Feels More Quakes.

Santiago, Cuba, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Two more earth tremors shook this city early today, but little loss was reported. One wall of the four-story Sarreno apartment building, shattered by Wednesday morning's disastrous quake, fell outward. The building previously had been condemned, along with many others, by department of public works engineers.

Portes Gil to Seek Governorship.

Portes Gil, who served as executive head of Mexico for 14 months after the assassination of Alvaro Obregon, came to Paris last year after the recall of Minister Albert J. Pani.

Freak Snow Imperils Planes in Holy Land

Jerusalem, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—The rare spectacle of a heavy fall of snow in Jerusalem has caused fears today for the safety of passengers of three royal air force planes believed to have made forced landings in the Syrian Desert during the storm.

The planes were flying from Bagdad to Cairo in the company of nine other machines, all of which were reported to have landed safely. Snow is most unusual in Jerusalem and its presence caused great interest among the inhabitants here.

Senate Foes Issue Tariff Statements

Barkley and Dickinson Attack Opposing Parties' Attitude.

(Associated Press.)

A Republican and a Democratic senator yesterday issued statements on the tariff and each found much to criticize in the other party's attitude on the subject.

Senator Barkley (Democrat), Kentucky, in a statement issued through the Democratic national committee, saw recent British tariff proposals as a retaliation against the "Hoover-Grundy" tariff act of 1930. The Kentuckian described this tariff law as the "fundamental folly" and said it needed correcting above everything else.

Meanwhile, Senator Dickinson (Republican), Iowa, said the Democrats were divided on tariff policies and characterized the bill passed by the Democratic House as a "face-saving" gesture. The Iowa Republican also said that statements that the 1930 tariff act had destroyed the foreign trade of this country were not supported by any fact "which any one can produce."

Fresh Start Made By Allen's Family

Sister Will Return Home as Youth Looks Forward to Sport.

Norristown, Pa., Feb. 7 (A.P.).—They started a fresh, new book today, Rose and Eddie Allen and their aged father, Horace. They planned to write in it charity and understanding and goodness and love, and to forget the contents of the old one which ended in a tumultuous courthouse when a jury acquitted Eddie of a charge of murder.

Eighteen-year-old Rose thrust aside the bitterness that led her to testify for the prosecution at the trial of her brother for shooting the man she loved, Francis A. Donaldson 3d. She said she would return to the home she left last November "to begin all over again."

Eddie, who is 23, looked forward to a new life, too, and the feel of a racing thoroughbred between his knees was not the least of the joys it should contain. Memories today were his three months in prison, the straining ordeal of a week-long murder trial and the torture of telling to a crowded courtroom a tale of the tragedy which necessitated references to his sister's alleged indiscretions with Donaldson.

SMITH DECLARES WAR.

Former Gov. Al Smith's statement of today completely changes the Democratic situation. He is a candidate for the Presidency, and will make a fight in the convention to win the nomination. This is a declaration of war by Gov. Smith and Chairman Raskob against Gov. Franklin Roosevelt.

Gov. Smith announces that he will not make a preconvention campaign to win delegates. No such pledge is made by Chairman Raskob or the Democratic national committee controlled by him. Gov. Roosevelt is now driven into a fight with the national organization. Chairman Raskob has great influence throughout the Northern States, and no doubt a large proportion of those who voted for Al Smith in 1928 will cling to him still.

New York State becomes a battleground between Roosevelt and Smith, with Tammany opposing Roosevelt. The old-time fervor for Smith may be expected to develop in New York City. His out-and-out opposition to prohibition will be contrasted with Roosevelt's cautious utterances. In all wet States Smith, and not Roosevelt, will reflect the majority sentiment of the Democratic party on the prohibition question.

Roosevelt seems to have the determined support of Democrats in sections where Smith was weak in 1928. The South will enthusiastically support Roosevelt and will not support Smith. If Smith should be strong in the convention the opposition of the South would be more pronounced than it was in 1928. The South does not quite hold a one-third vote, but unless Roosevelt crumbles elsewhere it seems probable that an immovable obstacle of more than one-third of the convention will stand between Al Smith and the prize.

Can Al Smith exercise the veto power also? Can he prevent the nomination of any man he opposes, and force the nomination of any man he supports? This is the question that is to be thrashed out. The two-thirds rule of the convention threatens to do its deadly work in destroying the harmony of the Democratic party. Great rivals like Al Smith and Gov. Roosevelt could accept defeat with some composure if the decision should hang upon the vote of a majority, with no recourse; but when the defeated candidate retains the power to drag down his rival also, the temptation to use this power is too strong to resist. Gov. Roosevelt's friends will begin today to accuse Gov. Smith of betraying his old friend. They will accuse Chairman Raskob of complicity in a plan to defeat Roosevelt by pushing Gov. Smith forward to the point where he can exercise the veto power in the convention. Thus angry passions are rising already. The struggle in the convention may fan these passions to fever heat.

Assuming that Gov. Roosevelt and Gov. Smith will be strong enough to prevent the nomination of each other, there will still remain the task of nominating a candidate. Sooner or later there must be a compromise acceptable enough to command a two-thirds vote in the convention. Hence it now seems probable that a second-choice candidate will be nominated.

James M. Cox might be acceptable to both the Roosevelt and Smith factions. Gov. Ritchie is in a good position to win the nomination on a compromise. If Gov. Cox had not already been defeated for the Presidency his chances might now be better than those of Gov. Ritchie. But the Democrats this year are looking for a winner. Gov. Ritchie's remarkable victories have won national attention. He is one of the few Democrats who have outlined a national program for the party. In pure and unadulterated Democracy his program is the best yet proposed. Democrats standing upon his platform would be fighting for the old and historic tenets of their party—the preservation and invigoration of the States and the complete exercise by the States of all their original rights.

If Newton D. Baker had not identified himself so completely with the cause of the League of Nations he would now be in a position to command attention as a possible compromise nominee. His effort to thrust the League of Nations aside as an issue in American politics does not change the situation. If he should be nominated his Republican adversaries would force the issue, and he would be pictured as a man who, if elected President, would promptly entangle the United States in foreign politics. He would be on the defensive from the beginning, and yet, being an honest man, he would not disavow his desire to see the United States a member of the league.

Gov. Smith's declaration seems to make impossible a preconvention understanding by the party's leaders which would obviate a head-on collision in the convention between candidates who can not win themselves nor bring themselves to yield to their rivals. The prospect of a desperate battle for a nominee now confronts the Democratic party. If the winner should enter the campaign without the handicap of party discord as a result of the convention struggle he will be fortunate.

GREAT BRITAIN AT GENEVA.

Viscount Robert Cecil's presentation of the British point of view on disarmament was more subtle than the blunt declaration of France's policy by Andre Tardieu, but at bottom it is no less selfish. M. Tardieu asks the world to organize an army for the protection of France; Viscount Cecil seeks the abolition of every weapon that Britain can not use to advantage, or which would be especially dangerous to Britain in time of war.

The policy suggested by the British delegate is deceptive, because it is based on so-called budgetary limitation. He would have the conference limit the sum that each nation might spend on armaments every year. In the first place, this method of limitation would discriminate against certain countries, foremost among which are the United States. In the second place, it carries no guarantee of disarmament.

The amount of money which a nation spends for national defense is not a true measure of its strength in armaments. Figures worked out by Senator Hale, chairman of the naval affairs committee, show that it costs more to maintain the United States Navy than any other navy in the world. But the income of the United States is five times that of Great Britain, more than seven times that of Germany and eleven times that of France. The portion of the British national income that goes into naval projects is three times the portion of the American national income used for that purpose. Costs of naval construction and salaries paid to officers and sailors are much higher in America. Budgetary limitation that would disrupt the American standard of living, so far as the Navy is concerned, will not be tolerated at Geneva.

One nation may maintain twice as much armament as another with the same amount of money. Militant governments may compel men to serve in both naval and military forces without pay, or for a mere pittance. Governments might force commercial interests to supply munitions and reward them with monopolies or excessive tariffs. In a thousand ways a government can evade budgetary limitations on armaments. Such a provision would play directly into the hands of the militarists, giving rise to widespread suspicion and distrust.

It is amusing to note that Viscount Cecil, after suggesting this deceptive basis for disarmament, carefully demands a ban on all instruments of war that would be effective against Britain. The British navy has bases in all parts of the world. It has use for only light cruisers that may be refueled often. Hence, Viscount Cecil urges "that there shall be built no more ships of more than 10,000-ton size." As the greatest naval and maritime power in the world, Britain is peculiarly vulnerable to submarines. Therefore, says Viscount Cecil, those vicious instruments of war ought to be abolished. France excels Britain in air strength, and so the British peace-lover advocates the abolition of fighting aircraft. Anything that endangers Britain is an instrument of "aggressive warfare" and should be outlawed, in the opinion of Viscount Cecil.

On the whole, the British delegate's accomplishment is not far short of M. Tardieu's achievement. The latter raised a mountain in the path of disarmament, and the former has now dug a pit in the roadway and artfully concealed it under flowery invocations to world peace.

A COURT OF POLITICS.

World court decisions are famous for their political flavor. Ever since the court was organized it has been the tool of the European interests that created it. All doubt of that fact was resolved with the decision on the legality of the proposed Austro-German customs union. France and her allies lined up almost solidly against the German project, and the court held that the tariff agreement could not be permitted. Even the ardent friends of the court admitted that politics was the dominating factor in that decision.

It is interesting to note the political line-up of judges every time the court renders an opinion. Its most recent pronouncement is to the effect that Polish nationals do not have the same rights as the German majority in Danzig. Under the treaty of Versailles, the convention of Paris and the Polish-Danzig convention of 1920, Poles were guaranteed against differential treatment in the free city. Poland interpreted this safeguard to mean that her nationals should have equal rights with the German majority in Danzig. Consequently, the Poles in the free city demanded use of their mother tongue in the schools, and an equal voice in the administration of the city's affairs.

That position was obviously untenable. The German majority in Danzig allowed the Poles equal rights with other minorities. Poland applies similar provisions to minorities in her own boundaries. There seems to be no ground whatever for the demand that Polish residents in Danzig be accorded greater privileges than are enjoyed by other nationalities.

In rendering its opinion the world court decided against Poland by a vote of nine to four. In the face of almost united opposition of the Polish view, the French judge stood loyally by the Polish judge in his dissent. The other two minority votes were cast by judges representing Colombia and Salvador. The political line-up is still distinguishable, even though France in this instance could not pull enough strings to turn the decision in favor of her ally.

Step by step the world court is establishing its reputation as the only political tribunal in the world which masquerades as a court of justice.

FOREIGN SECURITIES.

It will be a long time before the business of making foreign loans again assumes large proportions. During the first nine months of last year the flotation of foreign issues in this country amounted to over $600,000,000, but since October this business has been at a standstill. International bankers and investment brokers knew long before the congressional investigations exposed conditions that American investors were due to suffer heavy losses in their foreign bond holdings. That the reckless extension of credit without due regard to intended uses or capacity to repay was a grievous mistake has been evident for more than a year.

During the eight years, 1924 to 1931, as shown by a Wall street survey, foreign loans financed in the United States amounted to nearly $11,000,000,000. This vast amount was almost equally divided between Government and corporate issues, and a large proportion of them are now in default. More than one-third of this total amount loaned abroad was placed during the years 1927-1928, when nearly $4,000,000,000 of American capital was exported. Last year the amount sent abroad was less than half the average, even excluding the two big years.

Not only has the American investor learned a costly lesson with regard to foreign bonds, but the present chaotic state of finances in the countries that have gone off the gold satndard makes it impossible for them to borrow money in any market.

A law has been suggested in France to make the drinking of wine obligatory. Americans wouldn't stand for such brutal compulsion.

It is claimed that the South is the father of Dame Democracy. That explains why it is so interested in the intentions of Al Smith.

Diplomats now use transatlantic telephones. When European powers call Uncle Sam they reverse the charges.

SKY PICTURES

From the Boston Transcript.

Word comes from Berlin that a genius of that city has invented a device for projecting motion pictures against the clouds, apparently an adaptation of the principle of the searchlight's beam, so that we may see actually presented in the heavens the counterpart of those visions which have come to man from time to time in the past—choirs of angels, phantom warriors bringing succor to legions far spent with fighting. If the German inventor can at the same time project into the sky the voices of his cinema heroines and heroes so that they will seem to speak to us in tones like the sighing of the west wind or low peals of summer thunder, he will certainly provide us with a nine-days' wonder.

We hardly dare hope, however, that the new invention will be hailed with enthusiasm by motion picture producers. There is no box office in the sky and cloud pictures would produce none of that earthly revenue so essential to the maintenance of the industry. Many of us are old enough to recall the early days of the airplane when hardly a corporal's guard except the Wright brothers could fly. Airplane tournaments were put on outside some of the large cities of the country and admission was charged to the fenced-in fields. Flying was so new and strange that thousands paid for seats in the inclosures that they might get a close view of the aviators—the intrepid Claude Grahame-White who risked his blessed neck flying to Boston light and back—perhaps hear them speak or touch the hem of their leathern jerkins. But that phase did not last long, because people outside could see the miracle of flying as well as those who paid for admission to the park. Today one would as soon think of paying to see a horse as an airplane.

So it would be with the cloud-movies. How would pecuniary benefit accrue to anybody concerned in producing them? Even if advertisements were run in between features, as the custom is now in small-town movie theaters, the performances would be decidedly hit or miss. There must be cloudy nights—matinee shows, of course, are out of the question—and the clouds must be not the high cirrus or the fleecy, broken cumulus clouds of fair weather, but the leaden stratus, a gray, uniform meteorological sheet upon which to project the picture. And this spreading of the sky with a blanket of stratus cloud is usually accompanied by rain or snow. It would indeed be an enterprising producer who could lure a crowd to pay him money to stand in a privileged situation out of doors, in a soaking rain or driving snow, to view his newest gang-war picture or wild Western—even to see the great Garbo or the delectable Dietrich luring their lovers to forsake home and mother.

POST HASTE.

The notes sent Japan have gone to protest and will be placed in the files.

Japan is still buying abnormal supplies of cotton. Evidently she expects to raise that boycott—or something.

"Aggression in China Denied by Japanese," and remember, it isn't war.

"Interest rates in Shanghai raised to 2 per cent a day." Several senators will question the possibility of such action under a silver standard.

Back home with the three-ring political circus of his own creation, Huey Long indulges himself with some senatorial lese majeste, characterizing his Democratic colleagues as whipped roosters. He will find that the Senate has ways to discipline bumptious cockerels.

The problem of electing a Democratic President has given place to a hot chase to head off the man who has an overwhelming lead.

Japan's reiterated statements that her action in China is in pursuance of "the policy of protecting the common interests of all the powers" would be humorous if it were not such an affront to common sense and ordinary powers of observation.

The disarmament conference was not so dumb that it failed to recognize in M. Tardieu's resurrection of the international police force idea, rejected in 1919, merely a preparation, when it is again declined, for the presentation of France's alternative.

The first volunteers for the campaign to disgorge the hidden hoards seek service in the search of those alleged first national savings banks.

Americans were evacuated from Nanking. The city was so quiet a bombing attack was expected at any moment.

According to a Kentucky analysis, political pie is made up of boloney, apple sauce, plums and dough.

Hoarding is the result of lack of confidence, so the confidence men will get busy this week with restoratives.

But there are a lot of Missourians among the sock and mattress bankers; and show-me evidence from the new credit relief organizations will do more than oratory to put idle dollars to work.

Is your eyesight good enough to see whether there is a brown derby in the ring this morning?

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

PREPARATION.

If life were mirth and laughter,
With no care to follow after,
If with every new tomorrow
Never came one touch of sorrow,
Then he'd be a foolish man
Who for grief and hurt would plan.

Who would practice all day long
In the hope of growing strong,
If he knew, until he dies,
Need for strength would never rise?
If there never came a doubt,
Who would carry faith about?

But since care and grief are sure
And distress must all endure,
Fools are they who pay no heed
To the future's certain need,
And at last with loss must cope
Without strength or faith or hope.

Wisest they who understand
How this life on earth is planned,
And both faith and courage keep
For the days when they must weep,
And when joyous hours have gone
Have good strength to carry on.

To Approve a Stranger Is Merely to Approve Your Own Imagination

By ROBERT QUILLEN

If you are a headline reader, you know Gandhi as a dark-skinned little saint who wears a loincloth, lives on goat's milk, counsels resistance without violence and labors to free India from the British.

But you can't judge the man fairly if that is the extent of your information. The verdict can't be just if the evidence is incomplete.

There are books that tell the truth about India. From these you will learn, among other things, that Gandhi is an Indian and a Hindu.

He was born in the Bania caste, third from the highest, and is still orthodox enough to wear the "shikha" lock of hair by which all good Hindus are lifted to Heaven by their gods.

His first clash with the authorities was in South Africa 38 years ago when he demanded equality with the whites. It was then and there that he learned the value of Tolstoy's "passive resistance."

He preaches resistance without violence still; but the law violation he advises invariably leads to bloodshed, and he makes constant complaint because Indians are not permitted to own guns.

Gandhi was betrothed at the age of 8 and married at 13 to a child even younger. The Sarda law, which fixes the minimum age of brides at 14, was passed in April, 1930. He opposed it because it was a "government measure," though the last census revealed 2,000,000 wives and 100,000 widows under 10 years of age.

He says of himself: "My politics are subservient to my religion. I regard cow worship as the central fact of Hinduism. A cow, for me, is a poem of pity; I worship it and shall defend its worship against the world."

He says railroads are a "dangerous institution" because they enable people to move about and that tends to break up caste lines.

He denounces all machinery, hospitals, doctors and schools. These things are English and clash with the Hindu religion.

The 30,000,000 "untouchables" demonstrate against him and call him a traitor because he would drive out the only influence that ever offered them hope, protection and opportunity.

Nothing in Gandhi's life or works is hidden. There is no reason why any literate person should use stray scraps of ignorance to build an opinion of him.

Approve or disapprove him as you will, but for pride's sake learn a few facts about him before your opinions solidify in error.

Hoover and Minnesota.

Minneapolis Journal.

If Minnesota Republicans favor the reelection of President Hoover, they should indorse him for renomination and reelection when they meet next month in their State convention. If that is not the free and genuine feeling of Republicans of the State, they should not give Mr. Hoover the Minnesota delegation. The Journal says this, believing for itself that the President is entitled to renomination.

The campaign for Hoover delegates in Minnesota should be a home affair. It should not be directed or incited from Washington. It should not be made by appointees of the President. The less they have to do with the State convention the better.

Keeping the Philippines.

Madison (Minn.) Independent-Press.

Of course our pacifist friends will not agree with us that we should keep the Philippine Islands as a naval base. They say the islands are too far away to be of any value for such a purpose. Where do they want a naval base—on Catalina Island? A naval base, to be of any value, must be some distance away. If we liberate the Philippines they will soon be under the yoke of Japan. Filipino independence is an impossibility as long as Japan wants the islands.

Another Investigation.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Senator Norris has introduced a resolution calling for a Senate investigation of the Federal Farm Board and its attempts at stabilizing the prices of cotton and grain. The proposition for such an investigation needs no defense. By October 31, 1931, the Farm Board had lost at least $177,000,000 of the public's money in its transactions in wheat and cotton. Chairman Stone is the authority for that figure. Widely published charges that large sums of money were scattered among promoters whose records indicated anything but a desire to work for the best interests of the farmer have gone undenied. The Norris resolution is in order. Let it be adopted, let the investigation get under way, let the public know just how its money was spent. The findings may be of interest to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Sees a Boom in Hoover Stock as President's Plans Materialize and Democrats Disagree.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mr. Hoover, as the head of the nation in a period of economic distress, has naturally been the recipient of a great amount of unthinking criticism and partisan abuse. Upon his shoulders have been laid responsibility for the ills of the world.

While the Democratic party was merely the party of attack and criticism it was going like a prairie fire. But now that it has complete control of the House of Representatives at Washington, with full and free opportunity to initiate constructive legislation and legislative panaceas and its presidential guns, Roosevelt, Smith, Ritchie and Baker are beginning to shell out their conflicting and unconvincing programs of meeting the economic depression, the Hoover stock, which had been drooping, is showing signs of a tremendous rally.

The passage of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation act, sponsored by Hoover, has strengthened the banking system of the country and will be an important aid in the restoration of business confidence. The appointments of Dawes as its head, with Mellon as Ambassador to England and Mills as the Secretary of the Treasury are all of the highest order. Hoover is meeting the economic crisis sanely, safely and satisfyingly. He is advocating a system of home discount banks to assist the home owners. He is calling on the owners of the "slacker dollars" to put them to a beneficial use. He is opposed to raids on the Federal Treasury, by the dole or otherwise, that would vastly increase Federal taxation. He is opposed to breaking down the tariff walls, as advocated by some of the Democratic spokesmen, and thereby giving the work now done by Americans to the cheaper labor of Europe and Asia. He is handling a delicate international situation in the Far East with intelligent diplomacy but with a 100 per cent regard for American rights.

WILLIAM H. PARRY,
Newark, N. J.

Jury of American Citizens Has Already Rendered Verdict in Mr. Mellon's Case.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The statement of Representative Patman on Thursday that the appointment of Secretary Mellon to represent this country at the Court of St. James "is equal to a presidential pardon while the jury still has the case under consideration and before a verdict is returned," may possibly fit his own individual partisan views, but fortunately no other person, including the Democrats, will agree with them. As a matter of fact, the "jury," which in this case is the great body of patriotic American people, has never taken seriously Mr. Patman's publicity stunt in bringing these impeachment proceedings, and furthermore, this "jury," composed of a grateful people, has long ago returned its verdict on the qualifications of Mr. Mellon and the superb service he has so unselfishly rendered to his countrymen.

No doubt the accusing gentleman, deep down in his heart, is much relieved from his embarrassing position, and is really rejoicing at the happy outcome which this appointment will effect, because it will make it unnecessary for the "impeachment" committee to waste any more time in running down vague rumors and wild assertions which have already been disproved many times since Mr. Mellon took office. It will also give the accusing gentleman an opportunity to ease out of his embarrassing position which has thus far proved a dismal failure as a publicity stunt.

VIRGINIA DEMOCRAT.

Beer Industry Would Give a Lot of Employment—at Expense of Other Industries.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Reopening the breweries on a pre-prohibtion basis obviously would give employment to brewery workers, of which there were 63,000 in 1914, the year of the greatest beer output in our history, as claimed by the brewers themselves. There were 15,620 men employed in the allied trades, such as bottlers, cappers, &c. These would undoubtedly find employment, and in the States where beer could legally be sold the saloons would be reestablished and bartenders would go to work. In the year of the largest liquor sales prior to prohibition there were 400,000 bartenders. Also undoubtedly the brewers would start a national campaign of radio, billboard and newspaper advertising.

This stimulating effect eventually would be offset by a marked depression in other lines. The millions of dollars that would go over the bar and out of the pay envelopes would result, as it always has resulted, in hurting the legitmate industries, particularly the food, dairy and clothing industries, which offer larger employment per $1,000,000 of invested capital than the brewery and liquor industries, which have always offered small employment at low wages.

The beer business in every country in the world today is making huge fortunes for a few capitalists, employing few men and causing poverty and loss of work for the huge army of drinkers. Is any better example needed than the case of England?

Mrs. Edward Everett Gann Will Be One Of Speakers at Lincoln Day Dinner Sponsored by G. O. P. Club Friday

MRS. EDWARD EVERETT GANN will be one of the principal speakers at the Lincoln Day dinner which is to be held at the Willard Friday evening, under the auspices of the National Capital Republican Club.

Mrs. Gann has just returned from a tour of the Middle West and addressed various groups in Chicago, Kansas City, Omaha, Topeka and Oklahoma City. Many other prominent Republicans will attend this dinner. Those who have already accepted the club's invitation are Senator Henry D. Hatfield, who will be toastmaster; Senator James E. RUM REVENUE LOSS CITED AS 11 BILLIONS Head of Antiprohibition Body Importunes Congress to Allow Referendum.

(Associated Press.)

The loss of Federal revenue from January, 1, 1920, to July 30, 1931, was estimated yesterday at $10,984,000,000 by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment in urging Congress to submit the question of repealing the eighteenth amendment to the people.

The statement, issued by Henry H. Curran, president of the association, also estimated the cost of enforcement over the period at $370,000,000 and the "national drink bill" at $28,414,949,600.

In a letter to members of Congress, Mr. Curran said: "I am confident that, in the light of the totals in this twelve-year bill, you will be better able to form an opinion as to whether the people opposing national prohibition are justified in their contention that they have paid enough."

Cites Federal Figures.

Mr. Curran presented the following figures covering a period from January, 1920, to July 30, 1931, citing that the totals are Federal only and "do not include returns from other than United States Government agencies:"

Arrests for prohibition violations have numbered 681,657.

Convictions (416,593 cases, with an average of 1.2 defendants in each case) (estimated), 499,911.

Number of prisoners (estimated from jail sentences), 171,205.

Persons killed by violence (to October 1, 1930), 286.

Seizures of stills, 291,181.

Seizures of liquor, mash, &c. (gallons), 266,790,612.

Automobiles seized, 77,707.

Vessels and boats seized, 6,809.

Value of all property seized, $231,009,381.

Fines and penalties (60,003,344), $291,013,724.

Premises padlocked (estimated from totals of civil cases for three different years), 35,365.

Prohibition agents dismissed "for cause" to June 30, 1930, 1,604.

Prohibition agents dropped from the service otherwise, 11,982.

Cost of enforcement (estimated), $370,000,000.

Loss of revenue (estimated), $10,984,000,000.

National drink bill, $28,414,949,600.

Other Killings Alleged.

He added that, in addition to the 286 killings of and by Federal agents, a responsible list of over 1,000 additional killings has been published.

In computing the drink bill, Mr. Curran said "our estimates of the quantity of wine produced have been a little higher than those of the Government and our beer estimates a trifle less, while our spirits estimates are considerably higher."

"We are prepared to substantiate every one of the foregoing figures," Mr. Curran said. "Where they have not been lifted bodily from Federal official reports, they are sound estimates, which will successfully withstand the scrutiny of any statistician who is impartial and competent."

4 in Missouri Jail-Break Still Free; One Is Taken

Farmington, Mo., Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Virgil "Red" Frazier, one of the five men who escaped from the St. Francis County jail last night, after tearing a hole in the jail wall by a nitroglycerin blast, was recaptured tonight at his home at Donne Terre, 18 miles north of Farmington.

Woodrow Downs, 19-year-old son of one of the men who escaped, was fatally wounded as he attempted to climb over a picket fence surrounding the jail yard, and another prisoner was shot through the lung and seriously wounded. Volunteer searchers found Frazier at his home and he surrendered without offering resistance. No trace had been found of the four others who escaped.

Beaches Are Enjoying Rush Trade in New York

Long Beach, N. Y., Feb. 7 (A.P.).—New York forgot that it was February and came to the seashore today. Police estimated 5,000 persons came to this beach, lolling on the sands as if it were August.

At Jones Beach, State troopers guarded against unseasonable swimming by the too-enthusiastic, but at Long Beach one party of six donned bathing suits and dashed headlong into the surf. It was only a minute or so, however, before they were clustered about a driftwood fire, high on the sands.

WORKERS FOR CHEST MAKE SUNDAY DRIVE

Colladay Reiterates Faith Washingtonians Will Not Fail Needy.

"The better the day, the better the deed" appeared to be the motto yesterday of the 3,000 Community Chest workers as, resisting the lure of the splendid weather, they trudged hopefully in search of further contributions for the Community Chest. With no reports from the workers on which to base an estimate, Chest officials were unable to formulate any idea of how the drive for the more than $200,000 necessary to complete the Chest's 1932 quota was progressing.

Three gifts were left at Chest headquarters yesterday. The first, a check for $1,566, was from "guests of the Shoreham Hotel" without designating by name any of the contributors. The second gift was a one dollar bill, with an accompanying card to the effect that "even the widow's mite did good," while the third was from a woman who stated that she was a Spanish War nurse, living on an annuity and explaining that "the enclosed $5 is three days' pay for me."

Aside from what may be in the mails today, the 3,000 Chest workers still face the task of raising $210,605.27 if the Chest is to reach its goal of $2,601,000, Chest officials pointed out yesterday. They pointed out, also, that this is the minimum figure which it has been estimated that human welfare needs in Washington will require this year, and that because of this minimum basis, every penny of the entire goal is vitally needed.

"My faith in Washington remains unshaken," Chairman Edward F. Colladay said. "I just can not let myself believe that the citizens of the Nation's Capital will permit this great cause to fail. I know that they have responded before. I have seen them, when the war clouds gathered, bring highest honors on this city through their generosity, and I can not help but feel that, in this great war we are waging against crime, disease and poverty, they will again rally round and again make Washington a shining examples for the rest of the Nation and for the world. Hunger and need, the result of the unemployment situation, are here with us. Our only weapon is the Community Chest, and, to do its work effectively, it must be filled to the last penny of that $2,601,000 so badly needed."

The final report meeting of all the workers will be held tomorow at 12:30 o'clock at the Willard Hotel.

Winter Sun Plays Tricks On Movers of Cottage

Hillsboro, N. H. (U.P.).—To move a summer cottage across the ice from one side of Loon Lake to the other would be a comparatively easy task in normal winters, but when Joseph Leazot and a crew of workmen attempted it recently they almost lost the cottage.

Just short of their objective they stopped for lunch.

The noon sun got to work and suddenly the house began to sink. It required several hours' work, waist deep in the water, to salvage the dwelling.

Dentist Blames Parents For Children's Troubles

Chicago (U.P.).—Ignorance and neglect by parents cause dental defects that affect between 80 and 90 per cent of all school children, Dr. Charles R. Baker, of the Chicago Dental Society, told the sixty-eighth annual national convention of the society here.

Dr. Baker stated that preventive measures must be started early in life to prevent bad teeth and to protect general health. He added that it was up to the State and municipal health departments to inaugurate and execute comprehensive dental-health conservation campaigns.

Grist Mills Hum After Long Idleness

Harrisburg, Pa. (U.P.).—Pennsylvania's picturesque grist mills, long idle, are being reconditioned, and more than 600 are now grinding grain.

Trade from farmers, who have an abundance of low-price grain, has been a stimulus to the old grist mills that had been idle years.

While a number of the old mills have been converted into tea rooms, summer homes and apartments during the last ten or twenty years, many have been left intact, ready for business when the need arose.

Pennsylvania had about 1,800 mills in operation 100 years ago.

It will start on E street northwest, and will proceed to the congested districts as the men become familiar with making the count. The count will be taken at 105 main intersections, mostly in the business district, and will require approximately 21 good weather days to complete. It will be a definite count of the amount of traffic, consisting of various types of vehicles, such as trucks, private cars, buses, &c., and it will also take into consideration right and left hand turns, as well as through traffic.

The counts will be put on sheets, which will be useful in making plans for the new flexible traffic signals, which are to go into effect this spring, according to A. G. Siler, engineer of traffic signals, who will be in charge of the work. After the material is gathered, a flow map will be prepared, showing the amount of traffic at all main intersections.

"We have welcomed this opportunity," stated E. C. Graham, chairman of the committee, "since it both puts unemployed men to work and results in an important piece of work for the city, particularly when it will help to have traffic regulations ready for the bicentennial."

BETHESDA CHAMBER PRAISES WASHINGTON ESSAY CONTEST

essays written by school children on George Washington.

"I have long felt that the average intelligent child stands a better chance of learning something real about the history of his country through study of great lives than through the study of abstract 'movement.' And it is certain that no child could come to know Washington's life well without having an excellent idea of the larger historic tendencies of his period.

"But I am particularly delighted that the children who enter this contest will have an incentive, not merely to 'read up' on the life of George Washington, but to set down in essay form what they have learned. In short, not only do I believe biography the most normal approach to history for the boy or girl in school; I believe also that for them to write out what they have learned is the most normal method of acquiring knowledge. I warmly commend the contest."

A cordial invitation is extended by The Post Essay Editor to teachers in Washington and in nearby Virginia and Maryland to urge their students to join in the contest. Any student eligible through proper residence up to and including 18 years of age may join.

For the sake of greater fairness the contestants have been divided into groups, according to their ages. A first prize of $100, a second prize of $25 and twenty-five prizes of $5 will be awarded in each group, making twenty-seven prizes available in each age group.

In addition to these prizes the Junior Post will award a special gold pin to winners who are members of any of the Junior Post special clubs, the Junior Post Junior Writers' Club, the Knighthood of Youth or the George Washington Junior Citizens.

The Essay editor again cautions contestants to take care in preparation of essays. Some of the entries arrive in such condition that they are disqualified on the ground of lack of neatness.

Spelling and the proper use of English will count in the prize awards, of course. The judges are distinguished educators, heads of great educational institutions or intimately associated with them. Naturally, they will demand as a first requisite that the prize winning essays are correctly phrased, correctly spelled, neat and original in treatment.

The essay officials ask that beginning with Wednesday, the essays be entered as fast as possible in order that they may be arranged for inspection by the judges after the contest closes at midnight on March 14. This does not mean, of course, that essays are required to be entered before March 14. But if you have written your essay as best you can and are sure that it is spelled correctly, is written well and represents your best work, send it in.

Distribution of the Washington booklets has been completed. If, for any reason, your booklet has not arrived, drop a card to the Essay Editor and one will be forwarded to you at once. The George Washington Bicentennial Commission has been most most generous in its gift of these booklets, and the thanks of The Post and the contestants are hereby tendered for this splendid service.

Last-minute requests for the Washington booklet were from the following boys and girls: Bruce B. Johnson, 3000 Connecticut avenue northwest; Mabel Mary Battenfield, 38 Sixteenth street southeast; Lois Carder, Cobham, Va.; Miss M. E. Jeffries, Fairfax, Va.; Dorothy Muriel Donovan, 5508 Thirteenth street northwest; Katherine Haney, 1906 Florida avenue northwest; Vernon Fred Nace, 102 H street northwest; Bryan Campbell McFall, 1835 B street southeast; Maude Lipscomb, Avan, Va.; Raymonde Hudson, Oakcrest, Alexandria, Va.; Marie Shine, 1239 Monroe street northeast; Florence E. Warfield, Gaithersburg, Md.; Marie Doris Rogers, 28 Spencer street, Hyattsville, Md.; Rebecca Myers, Clifton Station, Va.; Thornton J. Camfield, 3627 Thirty-third street, Mount Rainier, Md.; William H. Payne, Remington, Va.; Mary Margaret Peter, 17 S street northwest, and Donald Creech, 1408 Manchester lane, D. C.

First in the Hearts of His Countrymen

AMERICANS PLAN FOR CHOSEN CELEBRATION.

The State Department has communicated to the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission, a letter from John K. Davis, American Consul General at Seoul, Chosen, regarding the participation of Americans in Korea in the bicentennial celebration of George Washington's birth.

An interesting suggestion is made by Mr. Davis that a phonograph record of President Hoover's Washington Birthday address be made with the national anthem played by the Marine Band recorded on the other side of the record. It is believed that such a record could be used to good advantage by Americans in distant places during the bicentennial celebration. This suggestion has been taken under consideration by the National Bicentennial Commission.

Walnut seeds sent to Chosen have been planted and the young trees will be transplanted in special ceremonies to the memory of George Washington. Mr. Davis also suggested that the Bicentennial film of Washington's life should be sent to his own district to be shown not only to Americans but natives of that country as well. It is believed that this would be of considerable value in acquainting these people with American customs and history.

RANCHERS WILL CELEBRATE.

The following quotation from a letter to the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission from Charles R. Foley, owner of the Bar F Y Ranch at Kirby, Mont., indicates the interest in the bicentennial celebration which is being taken even by those who do not live in towns and cities:

"Of course there are no civic organizations or societies of a like nature here," writes Mr. Foley, "but we do have two schools in the district and a Presbyterian missionary who makes this territory every month from Miles City, Mont.

"I have already taken up with those who are interested in the schools and the church the desirability of holding some celebration on the 22d of February, and I have also gone so far as to place my hall at the disposal of those participating in the celebration."

I shall begrudge no reasonable expense that will contribute to the improvement and neatness of my farms—for nothing pleases me better than to see them in good order, and everything trim, handsome, and thriving about them.

U. S. ECONOMY HELD THREAT TO DEFENSE

Legion Says Life of Nation Periled; Urges Increase in Armaments.

(Associated Press.)

Urging increased armaments, the national defense committee of the American Legion said yesterday "the so-called hand of economy has placed its fingers upon the throat of our Army and Navy and is slowly strangling them to death."

"Our investigation convinces us," the committee said in making public results of its survey, "that the present defense of America is not only a crime, but is a national disgrace. The Regular Army does not equal the military force allowed a defeated Germany by the victorious allies."

Asserting it would be better to economize in other departments rather "than jeopardize the life of the Nation itself," the committee urged passage of bills to bring the Navy to the limit of the strength allowed by the London Naval Treaty.

These reommendations were made:

Increase the strength of the Regular Army to 165,000 enlisted men and from 12,000 to 14,000 offiers; opposition to reductions in appropriations for the National Guard, the R. O. T. C., the C. M. T. C. and the Organized Reserve, and the merging of the Army and Navy into separate departments of national defense; military training in universities and colleges.

2 Harvard Classmates Will Direct Treasury

(United Press.)

Fiscal problems of the United States Government will be placed in the hands of two Harvard classmates when Andrew W. Mellon takes the oath of office tomorrow as Ambassador to Great Britain.

Ogden L. Mills and Arthur A. Ballantine, Harvard '04, are to become Secretary and Undersecretary of the Treasury, respectively.

Mr. Mills is 48, a year and 20 days younger than Ballantine. Their careers have developed side-by-side. Three years after their graduation from Harvard they received their law degrees together. Then both men went into finance, and for the past four years have worked together at the Treasury, Mr. Mills as undersecretary and Mr. Ballantine as assistant secretary in charge of fiscal matters.

CATHEDRAL LEADERS TO LEARN PROGRESS

Pershing and Bishop Freeman to Report to National Group Tuesday.

The notable progress in the building of Washington Cathedral during the last three years will be outlined to a distinguished group of men and women on its national committee by Gen. John J. Pershing, national chairman, and the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, at a meeting to be held tomorrow at the Cathedral.

A luncheon in the College of Preachers Refectory with the committee and other persons interested in the Cathedral as the guests of Gen. Pershing, will open the meeting which is the first general gathering of the Cathedral group since November, 1928. After a business session a pilgrimage will be made to the main floor of the edifice where services of national significance will be held during the George Washington Bicentennial commemoration.

During the last three years there have been several major achievements in the erection of the Cathedral. The majestic choir, the north transept, with its large rose window, and a portion of the crossing where the two transepts converge in the nave, have been completed structurally, while work has started on the south transept. Structural completion of two inspiring chapels on the main floor is also announced—the Chapel of the Holy Spirit for private devotion, and the Children's Chapel, the latter given by Mr. and Mrs. Roland L. Taylor, of Philadelphia. Only one other cathedral in the world has an entire chapel set apart for use of children.

Substantial advancement has also been made in symbolic adornment of the Cathedral through the carving of stone vaulting bosses in the ceilings of the main floor and in the installation of eight staned glass windows of jewel-like beauty, including a 65-foot window depicting the history of the Christian Church throughout the world. This symbolism will illustrate in the Cathedral, when completed, the different phases of Christian service and the historic background of the church.

In the Cathedral Close the work of beautifying the landscape through the planting of historic trees and shrubbery and the creation of the Bishop's Garden has gone forward, but the most notable addition has been the long flight of Pilgrim Steps, 40 feet broad, leading to the south transept site. The construction of this transept has been commenced and work has also started on the north porch, which is being built through the offerings of American women. The first stone of the porch was laid by Mrs. Herbert Hoover, honorary chairman of the national women's committee for Washington Cathedral.

One of the most outstanding additions to the Cathedral buildings and the scene of the meeting, is the College of Preachers, built during 1929, following a gift from the late Alexander Smith Cochran, of Yonkers, N. Y., a personal friend of Bishop Freeman. This college provides postordination training in the art of preaching for scores of clergymen from every section of the country each year.

More than 50,000 men and women in all walks of life have participated in the fund for building and endowing Washington Cathedral since the enterprise began three decades ago. Their names are preserved for all time in the Book of Remembrance which will be placed in a niche near the High Altar in the completed sanctuary.

Legion Job Drive's Final Plans Made

Work for 1,000,000 Idle Is Goal in Campaign to Start February 15.

New York, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Final orders inaugurating a national campaign for busines recovery, which has for its initial objective the placing of 1,000,000 wage earners now unemployed in jobs, were issued today to 10,800 American Legion posts and 30,000 local unions of the American Federation of Labor.

Campaigners were instructed to take the field Monday morning, February 15, in a comprehensive canvass of every store, shop, office and factory. Each employer will be asked to add one or more persons to his pay roll, and those who do so will be awarded service stars.

The Association of National Advertisers, the Legion Auxiliary and the Boy Scouts will cooperate with the Labor Federation and the American Legion. Headquarters are being set up here and daily results of the country-wide drive will be tabulated.

"This campaign will succeed because it is national in scope," said Matthew Woll, of the American Federation of Labor.

Girl Signals Fliers Safely to Landing

3 Army Bombing Planes Lost in Sleet Storm Guided to Field.

Salisbury, Pa., Feb. 7 (A.P.).—A mountain farm girl, waving a table cloth, guided three Army bombing planes to a happy landing in a sleet storm yesterday.

The planes, flying from the Keystone Aircraft factory at Bristol, Pa., to the Pacific Coast, encountered fog and sleet after streaking over Cumberland, Md. Forced from their course, the aviators sought a landing place in the vicinity of Salisbury.

A girl, noting the plight of the planes, seized a table cloth, ran to a field, and signaled the airmen.

Two landed without difficulty, the third nosing into a mud bank. It was little damaged, however.

DIRECT RELIEF MOVE NOW FACING CLIMAX

Senate May Reach Decision Tomorrow; House Group Busy on Wheat Bill.

(Associated Press.)

The move for direct Federal aid to the unemployed through provision of money and Farm Board wheat reaches the crossroads this week in Congress.

In the Senate an early decision waits, probably tomorrow, on the controversial La Follette-Costigan $375,000,000 appropriation for relief.

Today the House Agriculture Committee brings up for a vote the Senate measure to provide 40,000,000 bushels of Farm Board wheat to feed the hungry.

Meanwhile the two-billion-dollar Reconstruction Finance Corporation is ready to start its funds into the arteries of trade and agriculture.

Plans Reviewed at Conference.

Charles G. Dawes, president, and Acting Secretary Mills, of the Treasury, went over plans for this yesterday with President Hoover at a lengthy White House Conference.

Another move to restore better times brings Col. Frank Knox, publisher of the Chicago Daily News, here today to assume command of the antihoarding campaign, by which the administration hopes to get private funds back into circulation.

In addition to its direct relief bills, Congress has before it the measure to relieve depositors of closed banks and to liberalize the Federal Reserve rediscount rules, with President Hoover urging early enactment.

The House ways and means committee tackles the other side of the problem—raising the $1,000,000,000 necessary for balancing the budget by increased taxation. The committee starts that task tomorrow, with a bill expected by March 1.

Hoover Against Direct Aid.

President Hoover is standing firm against the bill before the Senate for direct appropriations to feed the unemployed. The Democrats also are holding, generally, against this new form of Federal aid, but compromise negotiations are going on. The result is in doubt.

The Children's Bureau of the Labor Department issued a report yesterday stating that the average monthly expenditure for families under care in 1930 was $23.83. It reported that eight cities gave their needy families more than $20 a month, while in four cities relief, on the average, was less than $10 a month.

Detroit, whose relief bill was just short of $9,000,000 in 1930, expended an average of $36.70 per family under care; Buffalo, $28.17; Hartford, $27.37; Cleveland, $27.21; Washington, $21.57; Cincinnati, $19.68; Canton, $18.48; Dayton, $16.94; St. Louis, $16.39; Newark, $16.15; Chicago, $15.07; Richmond, $14.39; Louisville, $14.21; Springfield, Ill., $13.71; Grand Rapids, $13.38; Akron, $13.33; New Orleans, $13.32; St. Paul, $12.52; Kansas City, Mo., $12.28; Denver, $11.88; Minneapolis, $10.83; Wichita, $10.48; Des Moines, $10.28; Sioux City, $9.84; Lancaster, $9.13, and Columbus, $8.89.

Confer on Bank Legislation.

Senators Glass (Democrat), Virginia, and Walcott (Republican), Connecticut, are conferring on the banking revision legislation, but it seems unlikely their conferences with Government financial experts will be concluded much before the end of the week.

Hearings will be resumed a week from today before the Senate banking committee on the Hoover proposal for establishment of a Federal system of home loan discount banks.

Meanwhile, Harry S. Kissell, former president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, said in a statement yesterday that changes made in the bills calling for a system of Federal home loan banks made "inflation out of the question."

Some opponents of the proposed system have claimed in testimony before committees that the banks would cause another real estate inflation.

Will Aid Spending Program.

Another statement by the present head of the real estate boards, L. T. Stevenson, of Pittsburgh, said quick passage of the land banks bill would aid, more than any other measure under consideration, to bring about the spending programs advocated by Mr. Hoover to end hoarding.

The People's Lobby, of which Prof. John Dewey is president, said that "well-known facts about concentration of income show that only Federal taxation can equalize the cost of caring for America's unemployed."

"Advocates of local and State relief of the unemployed, whether in or out of Congress, are agents or tools of multimillionaires," the statement said; "whose income is derived largely from property, and who still indulge the delusion that the function of government is to help the rich grow richer, and to tax the poor into destitution."

Corkscrew Shortage Doesn't Bother Russians

Moscow (U.P.).—There is a shortage of corkscrews in Moscow.

However, seasoned vodka drinkers are untroubled. A vodka bottle has a small neck and a small cork. The initiated have a way of hitting the bottom of the bottle a smart blow with the palm of the hand, causing the cork to fly out.

The ones who feel the pinch the most are those who drink bottled waters which have large corks that won't spank out.

These shortages are less frequent than they used to be now that the Soviet is better organized. A year ago no cigarettes were to be had, and a little before that there was no small change. Even now it is almost impossible to buy ordinary pins, let alone safety pins.

Princess Elizabeth Sets Color Style for Juveniles

London (U.P.).—Princess Elizabeth has started a new color fashion in juvenile society.

Just as her summer outfit brought forth a new color, "Princess Betty Yellow," so her winter costume of holly red is likely to produce a "Princess Betty Red."

Elizabeth wore her new color first when she went from London to Sandringham for the Christmas holidays. She wore a short coat of holly red, a little matching hat and white socks. In her arms she clasped a large doll, dressed like herself.

SLAVERY STILL EXISTS

By H. G. WELLS

THE backwardness, the heedless cruelty, revealed by contemporary reports upon the factories of Egypt, India and China is not only dreadful in itself, but it pulls dead against all the progressive forces of the more highly organized European and American communities. On the one hand we have the civilized factory we have just described and on the other we have the soul-destroying factories of the backward countries, undercutting all but the very highest grade of Lancashire product and obstructing further advance. We have this discord of easy modern productiveness with ancient traditional greed. The responsibilities of the International Labor Bureau at Geneva in this respect alone are colossal. The establishment of a common standard of employment throughout the world remains a distant objective to which we move forward only very slowly.

* * * *

But there are still graver aspects of contemporary production, due to the present irregular distribution of civilization and order—aspects that can not be ignored in any survey of contemporary human activities. It is unhappily true, as Bombay and Cairo testify, that civilization does not necessarily follow the flags of civilized states. Modern machinery and commercial greed can outrun the modern administrator very easily. In the darker, the less illuminated regions of the world, the worst impulses of barbarism and modern business enterprise can meet and mingle to produce far more frightful consequences. There is, then, not even the pretense of paid employment; there are outright slavery and a form of enforced production under threats and duress more horrible than any slavery can be.

* * * *

THE extent to which slavery itself still exists is not always realized. Lady Simon, in her book, "Slavery," (1930), puts the number of "owned persons," that is, persons who may be sold as chattels, as considerably over 4,000,000. But these actual slaves do not as a matter of fact constitute a formidable economic threat. They are confined for the most part to Arabia, the northern two-thirds of Africa, China and the wild territories between India and China; they are not employed on industrial work, nor even in handling valuable crops for international commerce. Slave labor is extremely inefficient—it is estimated that it takes two slaves to do the work of one free man. It is unintelligent and unambitious, devoid of any incentive to improve. It is not really cheap, for slaves cost money to catch, to breed, to buy, to train and also to maintain. They receive no wages, but they must be fed and clothed, housed, tended in sickness and incessantly supervised. As against efficient modern labor the slave does not pay. Slavery as an economic method is moribund. If it survives as an institution it will be in the form of a domestic servitude.

* * * *

IN this form it is still a social problem. The faster it can be stamped out, the better. But it is another aspect of human helplessness which challenges our attention when we are considering threats to the Atlantic standard of life. This is the system of peonage or forced labor. It is in effect, as we shall see, the economic consumption of backward and ill-organized races. It is far more profitable than slavery, and in some cases it is even more cruel. There are, at any rate, reasons for keeping slaves strong and well. They possess a money value, and a man must be drunk or negligent, stupid, a miser, mentally diseased, or out of temper before he will damage his own property.

* * * *

Slaves may, of course, fall into the hands of callous or morbid persons. Where they have been captured and marched long distances to the slave markets they must have passed through extremes of suffering. Where women are used deliberately to breed children for sale or sold as prostitutes they must often be among the unhappiest creatures on earth. But each slave, until worn out, is of value to some one. If human beings must be ill-treated or damaged in order to make them work, or killed in order to terrify their companions, it is cheaper not to buy them in the beginning.

* * * *

THE natives who were tortured in tens of thousands and killed or starved wholesale by the rubber companies of the Putumayo and the Congo were not slaves. Technically they were "free" and under the legal protection of governments which rank as civilized. Their freedom only added to their misery. At this moment the Africans who are being flogged and robbed on the cocoa plantations of St. Thome and St. Principe are supposed to be indentured laborers who have entered into contracts of service of their own free will. Sir Roger Casement's reports on the Putumayo were written only twenty years ago, and some of the men against whom his most serious charges were made are believed to be still alive, free and in possession of their fortunes and probably still engaged in their appaling activities.

Prayer and Peace

Taken From the Christian Science Monitor.

AT a certain gathering called to a service of prayer for the success of the forthcoming World Disarmament Conference, a speaker voiced the opinion that civilization is approaching a crisis, while an eager confidence inspires mankind that nations will put aside armaments, and find healing and peace.

However personal views may differ concerning the manner and the efficacy of prayer, it is clear that desire for good is the essence of prayer. And the efforts which, during the past decade have been made by many nations toward the establishing of permanent peace evidence progress toward the consummation of this desire. The issue of the future peace of the world has prompted some of the more recent demands that nations shall settle their differences through methods other than that of senseless warfare. Prayer is a means through which every one can aid in forwarding Christendom's longing for peace.

Solomon, desiring God's blessing upon his people, received the divine assurance, "If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways, then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin and will heal their land." And since his time worshipers have believed in God's promise of peace, with accompanying well-being. On how to "turn from their wicked ways," however, in order to realize spiritual blessings, the world has remained more or less in the dark, although during the period of Messianic enlightenment Jesus made plain the means to the end. He said that whosoever "shall not doubt in his heart, but shall believe that those things which he saith shall come to pass; he shall have whatsoever he saith." Emphasizing this need for unswerving faith, he added, "What things soever ye desire, when ye pray, believe that ye received them, and ye shall have them." The peace which, sought in undoubting prayer, should be clearly realized, has not yet been attained, manifestly because neither peace nor prayer has been fully understood in its true significance.

Strife and war have intermittently continued because comparatively few have understood how to bring their thinking and living into harmony with God's law; because few, indeed, have understood the nature of God and of man in His likeness. And therefore men in general have been deceptively influenced by the hate and fear, instead of being rightly influenced by the comprehension of divine Love. Today, however, the world need no longer grope in a half light toward peace; for in Christian Science is offered to all mankind a satisfying explanation of the nature of the peace promised by Christ Jesus, and the nature of the availing prayer through which to obtain this boon.

Since God is Love, as John declared and as Christian Science reaffirms; and since man is the likeness of Love, there can be found no valid basis for any thought or opinion or act that might eventuate in strife or war. In an article entitled "How Strife May Be Stilled," in The First Church of Christ Scientist, and Miscellany (pp. 278, 279), Mary Baker Eddy says: "The principle of all power is God, and God is Love. Whatever brings into human thought or action an element opposed to Love, is never requisite, never a necessity, and is not sanctioned by the law of God, the law of Love."

Those whose hearts are uplifted to God in sincere desire that peace may be more fully realized in human experience, may be assured that their prayer is availing proportionately as they affirm, with understanding, the all-power of God and the perfection of His creation, and know that God governs all that is real. Unswerving confidence in God's all-loving power and government lifts thought above the sordid selfishness of material strife and greed and hate, thus enabling enlightened humanity to reflect the spirit of true peace. Mrs. Eddy has written (ibid., p. 281), "Faith full-fledged, soaring to the Horeb height, brings blessings infinite, and the spirit of this orison is the fruit of rightness—'on earth peace, good will toward men.'"

As increasing numbers of individuals in all nations look to God for true peace, it is certain that governments will be led to entertain this widening and elevating influence. Each worshiper of the one true God can know that God's blessing rests upon all right effort toward the attaining of peace, and that His wisdom permeates and governs the peace councils of the world. Of her own life-endeavor to aid mankind toward the way of peace, Mrs. Eddy says (ibid., p. 220), "Each day I pray for the pacification of all national difficulties, for the brotherhood of man." And with superb confidence she adds, "I also have faith that my prayer availeth, and that He who is overturning will overturn until He whose right it is shall reign."

Harvard Man Defines Emeritus in Address

Cambridge, Mass., (U.P.).—In a speech shortly after he was made a professor-emeritus Charles Townsend Copeland, of Harvard University, humorously defined his new title as follows according to a story in the Harvard Alumni Bulletin:

"Gentlemen, until recently I did not fully appreciate what an emeritus is, and I am not so sure that it is as flattering to be one as I had thought. A few days ago, while driving through the country, my companion and I passed a field in which a horse was peacefully grazing. The horse was old, lame, spavined, moth-eaten, blind in one eye, and with ears drooping. However, it seemed peaceful and contented.

"That horse, gentlemen, was emeritus!"

CHANGE IN COUNTY ACCOUNTING URGED

BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

The need of the installation of a modern accounting and control system for Arlington County is stressed in a recommendation of County Manager Roy S. Braden, which will be presented to the county board at its adjourned meeting in the courthouse tonight at 7 o'clock.

Mr. Braden sets forth that the present system is most obsolete. One that will enable his office to keep in minute detail the various accounts over which the county may have any interest is necessary and will mean a saving to the county.

Such a system he says will require additional equipment, costing approximately $10,000, but will reduce the present personnel. He includes in this recommendation further that there should be an audit of all county offices, including schools as of the close of the present fiscal year, June 30, 1932.

Other recommendations include the appointment of a committee consisting of one person from each section of the county to meet with the county manager to make a study of existing conditions. This committee would offer a schedule of new names for the highways, covering the entire county. Mr. Braden also recommends that there should be adopted a comprehensive building code, together with plumbing ordinances and regulations regarding electrical work.

He further asks that the building code commission, which was appointed by the former county board of supervisors and which went out of office January 1, be called together to aid in formulating such a code.

3 Injured in Crash Of Cars; 2 Accused

One Machine Is Pushed 60 Feet in Collision Near Rockville.

Three persons were injured, two seriously, yesterday in a collision between two automobiles on the Gaithersburg pike, near Rockville, Md. A Washington-bound car operated by Irvin Gettman, 1126 Eleventh street northwest, crashed into a Gaithersburg-bound car operated by William Adams, colored, 54 years old, which turned around in the middle of the road. The Adams car was pushed about 60 feet by the Gettman car, police say.

Gettman was treated by members of the Rockville Volunteer Fire Department Rescue Squad and Adams and George Louis Todd, 23, of Hyattsville, Md., owner of the Gettman car, were taken to the Montgomery County General Hospital by the rescue squad. Adams was found to have a fractured skull and to be in a critical condition, and Todd had a severed artery, lacerations on the head and face and cuts on the tongue received when his head struck the windshield of the car. They were treated by Dr. J. W. Bird, chief of staff of the hospital.

Warrants charging reckless driving were sworn out for the two drivers by Corporal Harry Merson, of Montgomery County Police Headquarters at Rockville. Gettman also was charged with operating without a permit.

Lourdes Sermon Given Over Radio

Large Congregation Hears Noted Missionary in Novena Services.

The Rev. Thomas J. Coffey, noted missionary-preacher of the Oblates of Mary Immaculate, who is preaching the Novena in honor of Our Lady of Lourdes at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, of which the Rev. Francis J. Hurney is pastor, delivered a discourse yesterday to a large congregation at the radio service broadcast from the church through Station WOL.

Father Coffey told of the marvelous story of the apparitions of the Blessed Mother to Bernadette Saubrirous at the little village of Lourdes. Father Coffey told of the faith which this place since 1858 has inspired in the hearts of believers. He stressed the spiritual significance of Lourdes, but told as well of the remarkable material favors and miracles worked.

The 5 o'clock service, at which Father Hurney presided, included the blessing of the sick and the solemn Lourdes procession at the Grotto of Our Lady of Lourdes in the church. Solemn benediction was celebrated by the Rev. Chester Czyz.

FARMER IN FAIRFAX CUTS OWN THROAT

Succumbs in Alexandria Hospital After Being Found in Woods.

A well-known Fairfax County farmer died in Alexandria Hospital yesterday ten minutes after he was admitted with his throat slashed from ear to ear. Authorities were told the man had ended his life because of despondency over ill health.

The man, James Fairfax, 62 years old, a resident of Farr's Post Office, was found dying in the woods a quarter of a mile from his home by Milton Marshall, who lived with him. Fairfax had wandered away from his house several hours before, and when he failed to return his family became alarmed and started a general search.

Marshall notified police and Coroner C. A. Ransom that Fairfax was dead, but when officials reached the neighborhood, they found that the man had been removed to his home and was still breathing. He was hurried to the hospital but died ten minutes after he got there. He is survived by four brothers, Nicholas, Ernest and John, of Fairfax County, and Archie, of Washington, and two married sisters.

Arlington Welfare Drive Brings In $1,000 More

Considerable progress is reported by the Arlington County Welfare Board in its drive for funds from residents of the county other than Federal employes to swell the fund which has come to the county board from Federal employes. More than $1,000 has been received.

Some comment has been made that while the Federal employes fund to the county will amount to approximately $14,000 the amounts being received from others is small. This is being answered by the statement that in a majority of cases the Federal employe's salary is regular, while others in many cases are losing time and have had their salaries reduced.

Mayor Schmitz and the Board of Education of San Francisco arrived in Washington yesterday at the request of the President for a series of conferences on the segregation of Japanese students in the California schools.

President E. H. Harriman, of the Southern Pacific and Union Pacific roads, issued a statement yesterday in which he said: "I may apply for a job on the Interstate Commerce Commission, inasmuch as they are going to run all the railroads, I think they ought to want me."

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

MR. TWITCHELL GETS A MID-WINTER COLD.

A LOOK akin to terror slowly overspread Elmer Twitchell's face. He had sneezed violently.

"Got what?" asked Mrs. Twitchell.

"A cold in the head," sighed Elmer. "Call a doctor. Maybe you'd better call two doctors. Where's the aspirin? Could you fix me some hot lemonade? Where's that bottle of——"

"Why all the excitement?" demanded Mrs. Twitchell. "A little head cold isn't anything to get excited about."

"It isn't, eh?" gasped Elmer. "You don't read the advertisements."

"What advertisements?"

"The advertisements in the magazines, on the billboards, in the newspapers and everywhere," snapped Elmer. "A cold in the head is just about the most dangerous thing that can happen to a man. Where's that bottle of stuff that's used through a dropper?"

"You mean the medicine you drop into your nostrils, like filling a fountain pen?"

"That's it. Get it out for me quick! And have we any bicarbonate of soda?"

"What do you want that for?"

"A feller at the office was telling me that bicarbonate is the best thing for a general cold that's settled all over you. They're all caused by an acid condition, and the bicarbonate eliminates the acid. Mix me some in a glass of water. I'm getting worse every minute."

"Personally I think there's nothing like bathing your feet in hot mustard and taking a hot drink," said Mrs. Twitchell.

"I'll do that, too," agreed Elmer, who now looked much worse and tried pounding his chest to see if he could develop a cough. "Have we any benzoin in the house?"

"Benzine?" asked Mrs. Twitchell.

"Not benzine," corrected Elmer. "I said benzoin."

"No, but I can get some. What's it for?"

"Luke McGuire was telling me that he warded off a severe grippe case by dropping benzoin in boiling water and then holding his face over the kettle and absorbing the fumes. He says there's nothing like it for getting rid of grippe."

"You haven't the grippe. It's just a common cold," insisted the wife.

"It was a common cold a few minutes ago, but it's the grippe now, I'm sure," said Elmer weakly. "Have we any Inhaladoiol in the medicine chest? That's the stuff you sprinkle on a handkerchief and keep sniffing all day. Joe Girk at the club said that was great for influenza."

"You don't think you've got influenza, do you?" scoffed Mrs. Twitchell.

"It feels very much like it," confessed Elmer, who now looked barely able to stand. "Where's the Sprayalol?"

"What's Sprayalol?"

"That's the stuff that's advertised as a gargle and nasal spray in all bad cases of diphtheria."

"Diphtheria!" ejacuated Mrs. Twitchell.

"Yes, I notice distinct signs of diphtheria now," groaned Elmer. "Don't stand there looking at me. Get me some menthol. Have we any whisky? Where's the castor oil? Have we any of that stuff they rub on the chest?"

"I don't know what stuff you mean," said Mrs. Twitchell, as she fumbled through the medicine chest.

"It's a thick oil," said Elmer.

"Does it say it's for diphtheria?" asked Mrs. Twitchell.

"Diphtheria, my eye!" exclaimed Mr. Twitchell, collapsing across the divan. "I've got double pneumonia!"

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THE war on crooners, especially the male variety, has broken out anew.

"I get out of patience with these crooners; I'd like to shoot them," the wife of a prominent Republican in Congress telephoned the writer of this column. "My husband heard me say that, and then, as he tuned in one of the best known of the crooners, inquired, 'How about this fellow?' 'Well, I'd shoot him, too,' I replied.

"I think Cardinal O'Connell was absolutely right. Most of the music sent to us over the radio, the jazz and all, is a disgrace to the Nation. What is there we can do about it?"

The following letter is from a woman who describes herself as "a radio enthusiast who, alas, is thoroughly fed up with crooners and wants more good music:"

"How squarely Cardinal O'Connell hits the nail on the head. It does seem too bad that the broadcasters send forth this vulgarity when there is so much talent in the world; this disgusting form of music together with the offensive advertising talks! When are we to be relieved of it?

"If a cat yowls on a fence, people throw things at it, but these crooners yowl and the yowling is called music and they are paid for it."

"I WAS much interested to see in Dial Flashes, a much needed criticism of the male crooner and the type of song he 'bleats,'" writes A. B. D. "I have long been disgusted when, hoping to hear some good music, I hear so-called love songs, which do not by any stretch of the imagination convey the real meaning of love to any normal person.

"I am a radio fan, and can think of nothing more heavenly than hearing Ludwig Laurier and his slumber music at an hour when one can listen to this program, which, to my mind, is the cream of the radio music, ending with the Sweetest Voice in Radio singing 'Slumber On'—then turn off the power and go to sleep with that real music in one's ears.

"I do not pose as a musical critic, but believe I am expressing the opinion of most music lovers begging for music of the Laurier type and less of the barnyard variety."

Referring to the crooners, Maj. R. L. Foster, U. S. A., of Fort Myer, Va., declared:

"Isn't the crooning awful, especially when there are so many splendid songs for men running the gamut of every possible emotion from love to the thirst for battle?

"An old lady, a friend of mine, with musical taste and the means to gratify it, refused to have a radio for years, but was finally persuaded to get one. Asked how she liked it, she replied: 'Perfectly wonderful, but I never knew there were so many sissy men in the world.'"

SEASONED observers who visited the WMAL studios Saturday night seemed to agree that the television demonstration there of the newly added station W2XAP was in every way as good, if not better, than some of the widely discussed New York try-outs.

Accordingly congratulations were in order for Milton Baker who worked so hard to put it over. Also William Pierson, who it seemed must almost have gone blind having to stand in the glare of the powerful lights, to say nothing of the sweltering heat which they generated.

The images televised were plainly recognizable and one performer received a telegram saying that his likeness had been picked up in New York.

Broadcasting of sight as well as sound caused a noticeable dressing up of the participants in the program. Men wore dinner coats, women evening dresses, and two performers, a man and a woman, appeared in bright colored gypsy costumes.

A curious effect was that all men televised looked as if they needed a shave and appeared to have sideburn whiskers. This was also true at a demonstration witnessed by this writer in New York City in which Mayor Walker was the principal participant. The debonair Jimmy, looking as if he needed a shave and adorned with side-burns was quite a sight.

ONE receiving set used at WMAL Saturday night was for sight only, but another was equipped for both sight and sound. The latter simply meant putting the two in the same cabinet, however, because two separate receiving sets are required, inasmuch as sight is broadcast over one frequency and sound over another.

The opening broadcasts of the Young Artists Light Opera Company, a radio organization created to give youthful vocalists roles in operettas, will be presented over WRC tomorrow afternoon.

"The Chimes of Normandy," by Robert Planquette, will be the initial offering. Harold Sanford will direct both the orchestra and the chorus, and Henry M. Neely will act as narrator.

SENATOR ROBERT J. BULKLEY, of Ohio, coauthor of the Democratic economic relief plan, offered as a substitute for the LaFollette-Costigan bill, will discuss his plan during the National Radio Forum tonight (WRC, 10 o'clock).

Appropriate ether tributes to the celebration of the New Orleans Mardi Gras will be paid in two forthcoming programs. The Parade of the States feature will be devoted to Louisiana, with appropriate musical selections (WRC, 9:30 o'clock tonight).

Tomorrow night, a part of the Mardi Gras carnival will be broadcast direct from New Orleans as a part of the Lucky Strike dance hour. The king and queen of the carnival will be introduced, and the music of Irving Aaronson and his Commanders, who are to play for this year's festival, will be heard (WRC, 10 o'clock tomorrow night).

THE numbers selected by Lawrence Tibbett for the Voice of Firestone broadcast tonight include "Sylvia," "'Gwine to Hebben," "When I'm Looking at You," and "On the Road to Mandalay."

The Boy Scouts of America will read the Scout oath over the WJZ network at 8:15 o'clock tonight, while scouts all over the country gather in special sessions to listen. The broadcast will mark the twenty-second anniversary of the founding of the Scouts.

THE Barnard Glee Club, under the direction of Howell P. Beveridge, will be heard this afternoon (WMAL, 3:45 o'clock). • • • The pathetic love affair of "Hardpan" Hattie, famous woman prospector, will be told by the Old Ranger during the Death Valley Days program (WJZ, 8:30 o'clock tonight). • • • Olive Borden, motion picture actress, will appear as guest speaker on the program scheduled for 8:30 p. m. tomorrow over WMAL. • • • Beginning this morning, Harry and Joe billed as "Rapid Fire Songsters of the Air," will have the half-hour beginning at 7 o'clock as a regular spot. • • • Sir Oliver Lodge is scheduled to discuss "Science and Civilization" over WMAL on Wednesday afternoon. • • • "The Old Maestro" is in Miami for a vacation, but will appear during his regular half-hour tomorrow and Tuesday, February 16. • • • The first early morning radio revival will be conducted by Elder Michaux, of the Gospel Spreading Association, over WJSV, beginning today at 6 o'clock.

Art Interprets the Mode

Royal blue jersey in two-piece effect, with interesting white crepe gilet bordered in two shades of blue crepe. (Courtesy of Jane Regny.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—Delightful little Madame Agnes says that she is doing her best to keep gold in circulation—by putting it on her hats for trimming! That's altruism for you! Her hat colors are black; black and gold; browns, black and red; some bright reds; and some emerald greens.

Hats continue to change their sizes, shapes and angles with bewildering rapidity. Several of the leading milliners predict that the new spring hat will be worn high off the shingle or chignon in the back, and tipped down over both eyebrows in front.

The beret or some version of it, continues to be the leader for hat chic. Yet some spring hats will attempt the turned-up-all-around brim, like the Breton sailor, and there is a threatened epidemic of the little "pork-pie" hat of the sixties—that little nothing in oval or triangular shape which fits so flat and closely to the skull, and is trimmed somewhere in the direction of the left ear with a twist of velvet or feathers or, for spring, flowers.

Where, or where, is yesterday's simple dress! Today, even when it follows yesterday's form and general line, it is so anything but simple!

Sketched is a frock from that house of youthful frocks, Jane Regny. And look at its trickey cut and fashioning—the skirt, with square incrustations, sewn down pleats, and left open pleats. The top, with its gilet effect in white crepe, with one tiny border of pale blue crepe, another then of royal blue crepe and then a wider border of the pale blue again between the gilet and the royal blue woolen material of the dress. And oh crystal buttons with silver centers and a silver buckle—and look at the back of the whole dress!

White Is Not White.

Well, it is and it isn't. For instance, white is not a color, but the "illuminated combination of all colors." And as to white in the mode, one can never tire of it, especially in evening gowns—for though you may have six white evening gowns, and your friends may have six white evening gowns apiece—hardly one of them will be the same shade of white. For one will be a bluish-alabaster white, another will be grayish, sometimes called oyster white; another will be mother-of-pearl white with a pinkish tone, and the loveliest will be sun-white, carrying, as it were, the faintest suggestion of sunshine daylight. 'Nif you doubt me, try and match a piece of white yourself, and see how many whites there are in the mode!

Indoor—Outdoor Gardens

CONSTRUCTING A HOTBED.

WITH the exception of a few plants, like poppies, which resent having their roots disturbed, all seeds yield better results if planted where they have protection in their early stages from drying winds, beating rains and sudden changes in temperature. A cold frame affords this protection from the elements, but a hotbed goes still further and provides the additional advantages of bottom heat.

With the facilities of a hotbed it is possible to start garden operations several weeks in advance of the time when we might be able to sow seed in the open. When we use a hotbed the plants are ready to transplant about the time the ground is workable. The use of a hotbed means earlier flowers and is always a decided gain, but especially in localities where between the early and late frosts there is hardly time for the maturing of annuals.

The location of a hotbed is important. It should be situated on the south side of a building or hedge, where it will have the full benefit of the sun and also be protected from north winds. The land it occupies should if possible slope toward the south so the water will drain off naturally.

To construct one of these "garden boosters" is very easy, merely dig a pit 6 feet long, 3 feet wide and 2 feet deep. The cavity, when completed, may be lined with bricks or planks or left with earthen walls. Over this build a drame of rough lumber around four posts which have previously been driven into the earth at the four corners of the pit. Make the frame 2 feet high in the back and 1 foot 6 inches in the front.

Regular hotbed sashes are usually 3 feet by 6 feet. One of these you place across the top of the bed, permitting it to rest on the edges of the frame. If you find regular sashes prohibitive in price, discarded window sashes will answer the purpose.

When you have finished digging the pit fill it with fresh stable manure and leaves or straw. This serves as fuel, insuring continuous heat. Manure without litter or leaves would cool off and soon become cold. Toss the manure loosely into the hole and wait for fermentation to take place. This usually takes 24 hours. When the heat reaches 100 degrees tramp the manure down firmly and smooth its surface. Over this fresh manure place 2 inches of well-decayed manure and on top of this add 4 inches of rich, friable loam. Again take the temperature of the bed by thrusting a thermometer into the soil.

When the heat rises to 90 degrees and drops back to 70 or 75 degrees the seed may be sown.

Health of Public Is Address Topic

Former Senator Ransdell to Relate Purposes of National Institute.

Former Senator Joseph E. Ransdell will tell of the purpose and aims of the National Institute of Health in an address to the Washington Council of Social Agencies at their monthly luncheon meeting today. The meeting is under auspices of the council health committee, of which Miss Gertrude Bowling is chairman.

"With social agencies and governments straining every resource in their efforts to cope with disastrous results in this time of economic stress it will be refreshing to hear from Mr. Ransdell, for the senator will tell of an institution which is attacking at its source the greatest single cause of economic loss," E. J. Henryson, said.

During his 32 years in Congress, 14 in the House and 18 in the Senate, Mr. Ransdell was actively interested in the conservation of public health. He was the author of the act of 1906 for the eradication of the Texas fever cattle tick; of the statute of 1917 which created a national home for lepers at Carville, La., and of the law establishing the National Institute of Health, passed in 1930. The former senator is now the executive director of the conference board of the National Institute of Health which he organized on his retirement from the Senate last March.

THE HOMEMAKER

By NANCY CAREY

Nancy Carey.

IT is a pleasurable and warm feeling, this which comes over me as I write lines which are to inaugurate, on the morrow, my return to an old friend, The Washington Post. I have been trying to remember how long ago it was when last we were together, you reader friends and myself, but time has sped so quickly that the months are a kaleidoscope of uncertain dimension—however, we are together again and I greet you with the sincere hope that I may prove of real assistance to you as the months ahead roll by.

This little Homemaking Department of ours has grown to more comprehensive proportions since last we were together, which will necessitate that today's column be devoted almost entirely to explanations of one sort and another. For example, although the column itself still sticks to its daily menu with accompanying recipes as its piece de resistance, there are now nine trained workers "behind" the column, each contributing her part to the scheme of our service, which means that no longer is our field limited to the business of menus and recipes exclusively. In these days of curtailed income, we have undertaken a budgeting department which will not only check over for you your present scale of home expenditures but rebuild the whole scale of expenditures (in a painless manner of extraction!) to the end of a cessation of financial dilemmas! This may sound like the impossible, but a budgeted income, however limited, "stretches" with twice the elasticity of an unbudgeted one.

On Losing Weight.

Next on the list of new departments of our service to readers comes one for which I slightly blush and tremble at the mere thought of suggesting it to you! It has to do, unhappily, with a question—"Do you wish to lose weight?" If so, we can guarantee to make you do so, provided you adhere faithfully to our dictates. But in this case, as well as in the matter of budgets, we fit the "cure" to the person who is to undergo treatment, so if you want a workable budget, send us (in the knowledge that it will be held in strict confidence) your income, amount paid for rent, average cost of food per month, number in family and whether they be children or adults, and any data you may have from last year; i. e., how much the coal, light, gas, clothes, &c., amounted to, that we may redistribute your expenditures, peeling here, adding there, without any appreciable change to your mode of living. If you wish to lose (or gain) weight, we take the responsibility of seeing that you do so at the unvarying rate of exactly two pounds a week—no more and no less. To lose more than two pounds a week endangers health by curtailing its fuel supply. To gain by leaps and bounds is not satisfactory, since it "puts on" the sort of weight which is neither enduring nor desirable. In gaining weight we want sturdy body structure, as well as pounds avoirdupois; to do this we balance our weight-giving foods with strict attention to minerals, proteins and vitamins as well as the carbohydrates.

Next on the list comes our "circular service" which consists of folders of from eight to twenty recipes and suggestions on subjects covering the whole of our cookery problems. For example, we have a folder on the subjects of "Simple and Inexpensive Desserts," "Appetizing Suggestions for Left-Overs," "Salads for Every Occasion," "Hot Breads for Wintry Days," "Simplified Rules for Cake Baking" and so on without end. To secure any of these you need but send us a stamped, self-addressed envelope and your folder will be in the mail to you the following day!

Calendar for the Kitchen.

All of which brings us to the subject of our calendar for the new year, designed to hang on the wall near your stove and offer you cooking times and temperatures of all foods at a glance, together with the days, weeks and months of the year. Since, however, this calendar is "sizeable" we must have 3 cents in stamps and no envelope at all for the calendar takes a special envelope and "backer" to render it safe for mailing.

But now we must be about the dinner menu for tonight.

Tonight's Dinner.

Tomato Soup
Toasted Buttered Saltines
Fillet of Sole a la Mornay
or
Lamb Chops en Casserole
Shredded String Beans
Lettuce with French Dressing
Lemon Sponge Pie
Coffee

Fillet of Sole a la Mornay.

2 pounds fillet of sole
1 cupful fish broth
1 cupful milk
3 tablespoonfuls oil
3 tablespoonfuls flour
4 tablespoonfuls grated cheese
2 tablespoonfuls butter
½ cupful cream or evaporated milk.

Salt, pepper and lemon juice to taste

Cover fillets with fish broth (add boiling water if not enough) and simmer for ten minutes. Lift out fish and place in shallow baking dish. Add milk to fish stock (there should be about one cupful of stock). Heat the oil, stir in the flour, cook together and add the stock and milk, beating until smooth. Add half the grated cheese and the butter, blending all well, season and pour over the fish. Mix the remaining cheese with a few soft breadcrumbs, salted and buttered, and spread over the top. Bake until browned.

Lamb Chops en Casserole.

6 rib lamb chops (or more if necessary)
2 cupfuls soup steak
2 slices onion—large
Salt, pepper and thyme
2 cupfuls cubed potatoes
2 cupfuls green peas

Have the butcher remove an inch and a half of the length of the bone from the chops. Brown them in as little fat as possible. Place in casserole dish, add stock (stock may be made with bouillon cubes), seasoning, the slices of onion and the potatoes, which have been parboiled in salted water. Add peas (preferably fresh peas), and cook the whole in a covered dish in a moderate oven until the potatoes are done. The liquor may be thickened before serving, if desired.

LEMON SPONGE PIE.

Line a pie plate with rich pastry, prick with a fork and bake to a golden brown. Make a lemon jelly by dissolving one and one-half tablespoonfuls of gelatin in a quarter cupful of cold water. Add a cupful of boiling water and dissolve in the mixture three-quarters of a cupful of sugar and a half cupful of lemon juice. Strain through a cheesecloth while hot and place bowl in a pan of ice water. Stir until the mixture is cool and sirupy. Then beat until foamy—about three or four minutes. Add stiffly beaten whites of three eggs and beat the whole mixture until it is thick enough to hold its shape. Place in a pie shell and cover with meringue. Brown lightly in moderate oven or cover with sweetened whipped cream and serve.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

CAUSE OF KIDNEY STONE.

DR. J. S. EISENSTAEDT thinks phosphate stones in the kidney, ureter and bladder result from infections. If a man has passed one or more such stones and wishes to avoid having others form he should see to it that infections are eliminated. The usual locations of the infection are in the tract from the kidney outward, though sometimes infections elsewhere in and near the pelvis and, in some cases, infections in distant parts of the body, such as the teeth or tonsils, may be responsible. The infections like those that cause arthritis are chronic in character and may not cause any symptoms at the locality where the infection enters.

In Dr. Eisenstaedt's investigation the staphylococci were the most frequently encountered microbes, bacillus coli ranking lower. In parallel investigations made by others bacillus coli was most often at fault. This differs from the infections which cause chronic arthritis in that most of those are due to streptococci.

As a rule infections of the urinary tract tend to disappear spontaneously in a short while, even though no antiseptics or other medicines are taken. The rule is that the various tissues of the human body have a marvelous capacity to rid themselves of bacteria. This tract conforms to that rule, though many people have had experiences in which the rule did not work.

The most frequent cause of persistent infection, in Dr. Eisenstaedt's experience, was an obstruction located somewhere in the tract. If this obstruction could be removed, as a rule, nothing further would be required for terminating the infection. He could find no evidence that eating a diet low in calcium, or in phosphates, was of service in the prevention of phosphate stones.

There is some proof that prolonged subsistence on a diet low in vitamin A tends to cause stones. He thinks this cause is not of any practical importance, since it operates only in people who are profoundly undernourished. Persons in a nutritional state only slightly below the normal level are not prone to stones. He considers that low nutrition due to a diet low in vitamin A acts indirectly by predisposing to infections.

His report is based on experience with phosphatic stones. However, he quotes some authors who do not think diet is a major factor in the causation of other kinds of kidney stones.

PIMPLES.

F. W. writes: My 14-year-old son is attending a very fine school. During the five days he spends there he consumes twelve apples aside from his regular meals, which are well balanced. In spite of this care, he has several large and angry pimples.

1. Is this acne?
2. Is it caused by infection?
3. How long does the adolescent youth have the right and privilege of parading this scarred banner of approaching manhood?
4. Is acne, like hard times, eternal in its malignant influence, or will it succumb to scientific treatment?
5. If so, what treatment would you suggest?

REPLY.

1. Yes.
2. Yes; but back of the infection is accumulation of grease and dirt in the grease glands—blackheads.
3. Some never get too old to indulge. Married men do no have pimples, as a rule. After a man commences to shave he seldom has pimples on the shaved areas.
4. But pimples and hard times are curable. In fact, both are self-limited—hard times always, pimples usually.
5. If the grease glands all over the face are kept well emptied, pimples will disappear and stay away.

WHY SHOULD YOU FATTEN?

M. W. writes: I am a boy 16 years old, 5 feet 11½ inches tall, and weigh 142 pounds. I am in good health. Could you tell me some way to gain weight?

REPLY.

Why gain weight faster than you are doing? Your natural tendency from now on will be to fatten.

If you feel that you must gain weight, go to bed earlier and sleep longer.

HOT PEPPERS.

Mrs. L. M. writes: Do you think hot peppers are injurious to the stomach? I have eaten them all my life, and that happens to be a long time, and up to this date am perfectly healthy, so far as I know.

REPLY.

Eating pepper is injurious. It harms the digestion, and it makes for gall bladder trouble and uric acid stone. The fact that you are alive, in spite of your bad habit, does not prove much. Lots of people live on in spite of bad habits, and some keep well and enjoy life until the blowup comes.

What Today Means to You

"AQUARIUS."

IF February 8 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:50 a. m. to 9 a. m., from 1:30 p. m. to 2:45 p. m. and from 7:30 p. m. to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 10 a. m. to 11:15 a. m. and from 4 p. m. to 6 p. m.

Astrological indications for February 8: Disappointment around nearly every corner. A crumbling of edifices built up with years of sacrifices, work and scheming. Indifferences, in certain personal relationships, will be succeeded by sparring and recrimination, to be followed by positive hatred, unless acceptable compromises are made.

The child born on this February 8 will have a breezy, warm-hearted, thoroughly unconventional nature. It will be unselfish, thoughtful and loving as a son or daughter, and will never intentionally heap disgrace on the family name. It will be vengeful as an Indian towards those who have wronged it.

You have a practical nature, and are hard-headed, and in some respects hard-fisted. You take a long view of life and seldom forget on which side your bread is buttered. You look carefully before you leap and trust few things to luck. You miss certain aspects of life because you have no more poetry in you than an oyster. Flights of fancy, "romancing" or day dreaming, are untasted joys to one of your prosaic nature. Into the blue prints of your plans are included only those materials which are on hand or visible to your eye. As you are short in anticipation, your life will be scarce in disappointments and long in surprises. Gratitude was not left out of your "make-up."

Intimate, you never are with any one. You do not welcome the stranger with gusts of friendliness, but are decidedly stand-offish. You are of a type that decidedly improves upon acquaintance. You do not make first advances and hardly meet those of the opposite sex half way. You live on such an emotional plane as to avoid excesses of both elation and depression. You will have loyalty and deep-seated love to offer to the companion of your life, but will not make a romantic lover.

THE PSYCHIC FACTOR.

THERE are many so-called psychic bids at Contract which do not deserve the name. They lack the element of psychological insight and appreciation of the make-up of the opposing players which is an absolute essential in the use of bids which mean something else than appears on the surface. Coarse bluff bids cost their makers far more points than they ever win. On the other hand, a clear appreciation of the psychological factor will frequently result in securing results otherwise unattainable. Where that result is only the reaching of the correct eventual contract, the use of keen psychology may tempt a Double and the opportunity for a profitbale Redouble, that would be lost by more forthright means, as is shown in the hand below played by Mr. Andre E. Levy at the Nuevo Club in Mexico City. Mr. Levy was seated South.

Both sides vulnerable.

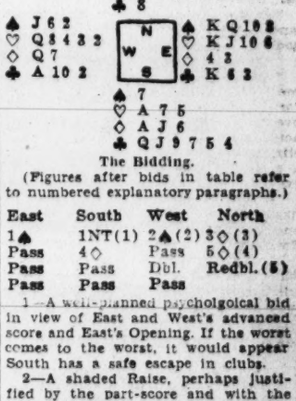
East—Dealer.



The Bidding.

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

East	South	West	North
1♠	1NT(1)	2♠(2)	3◇(3)
Pass	4◇	Pass	5◇(4)
Pass	Pass	Dbl.	Redbl.(5)
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—A well-planned psychological bid in view of East and West's advanced score and East's Opening. If the worst comes to the worst, it would appear South has a safe escape in clubs.

2—A shaded Raise, perhaps justified by the part-score and with the thought in mind of showing East that the notrump bid may not show stoppers in spades, if East's spade bid is strong.

3—Some players might be tempted to double two spades with North's holding and South's notrump Overcall. However, the reward would not be equal to the probable game and rubber.

4—When South supports North's diamonds North is fully justified in going to five, as the freakish nature of his hand should develop possibilities in the play.

5—North feels that he might as well play for the whole ball of wax. The defeat can not be severe and the reward for the Redouble is great, if made.

East opened the spade King and North started the cross-ruff in spades and hearts. When South's hearts were exhausted, he surrendered a club and ruffed the return of that suit in his own hand. North now held the King, ten, nine of diamonds and the nine of spades. He led the King of trumps and followed with the diamond 9, which West won with the Queen. North winning the last 2 tricks with the ten of diamonds and the nine of spades, the result being five diamonds redoubled.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

IT has often been said that Hollywood has reached a point of technical perfection where it is possible to out-Nature Nature and reproduce on its own lots famous scenes more realistically than they appear in actuality. Douglas Fairbanks, from long association with the intricacies of simulation, evidently believes this to be true.

I am led to this belief by the announcement that when Fairbanks, pere, undertakes his next romantic adventure story in far-off Tahiti, he will take a Hollywood actress with him to serve as leading woman in case no native can be found who looks enough like a native!

The star sails February 17 on the oil tanker Makura for the South Sea Islands. His production crew left yesterday on the yacht Invader, which Fairbanks has rented from Joseph Schenck, head of United Artists, for the junket.

As already intimated, this will be a romantic adventure story and not a travelogue like "Around the World in 80 Minutes With Douglas Fairbanks."

The identity of the studio "native" has not as yet been determined. Screen tests are now being conducted toward that end.

There are rumblings, still unconfirmed but of sufficient volume to have reached this desk, that all is not well within the personnel of the National Symphony Orchestra of Washington, D. C., of which Hans Kindler is at present conductor. The reported dissatisfaction is said to have resulted in the resignation of three members of the ensemble last week, with others in prospect.

Speaking of orchestras, emphasis is placed upon the fact by the management that there need be no misapprehension concerning the nature of the program to be offered by the Philadelphia Orchestra at Constitution Hall tomorrow night. Lovers of the standard classics have expressed the thought from time to time that this season has been productive of a plethora of "ultra-modern" music. Nothing of this sort will characterize Tuesday evening's program.

The Glinka Overture is a mellifluent and tuneful composition; the Prokofieff Classsic Symphony is not only not modern, but, as its name suggests, is strictly classic in content and is accepted wherever and whenever played as a melodious and delightful work. The "Petrouchka" (Strawinsky), is an opus which invariably draws large houses when it is played in Philadelphia or New York. It is not the Strawinsky of "Sacre du Printemps" or the Violin Concerto that is heard here. The Tschaikowsky Concerto, of course, is a known quantity.

From the viewpoint of the real music lover, this program comes with an almost certain guarantee of satisfaction.

Kate Smith, this week headlining the vaudeville portion of the program at RKO-Keith's, calls up to say that there seems to be a bit of confusion prevalent as to her early amateur affiliations in this city—her home town. It seems that Kate was never associated with the St. Patrick Players, and was not commended by them to Eddie Dowling, producer of "Honeymoon Lane," her first Broadway engagement. Eddie discovered her on his own account on the same stage where she is now playing.

And who should call right this very minute but Norman Pyle, formerly in charge of advertising and publicity for the Loew interests in Washington, down from Philadelphia for a few hours to say "hello" to his old Atlanta friend, Carter Barron, Loews' new loewcal managing director. As nearly as I could make out, Leo, the M-G-M lion, was not along this time!

Another hurried visitor to Washington yesterday was that astute showman, Mr. "Mike" Marco, of the justly celebrated producing firm of Panchon & Marco, who devoted the greater part of his time to showing his daughter the beauties of the National Capital. He did find time, however, to drop back to the Fox Theater at 7 and view his "Dream House" Idea, before catching a train out at 8.

A. A. Milne, author of "Michael and Mary," in which Madge Kennedy and Otto Kruger appeared here last season and which now is on view at the Rialto in celluloid form, like George Bernard Shaw and Eugene O'Neill, has a large following among the theater's real intelligentsia—if there is any such thing.

Just as Shaw and O'Neill deliver all of their scripts to the Theater Guild, so does the whimsical Mr. Milne mail all of his from England to a single New York producer—Charles Hopkins, an artistic, mild-mannered and wealthy producing manager, who holds forth in a diminutive playhouse that was once known as the Punch and Judy Theater and now bears his own name.

Mr. Hopkins only last Friday placed this year's new Milne play in rehearsal. It is scheduled to make its Broadway debut within a fortnight. It is called "They Didn't Mean Any Harm" and the principal members of the cast will be Donald Meek, Alice Belmore Cliff, Gavin Muir and Patricia Calvert.

With Mildred Wall in the somewhat "fattened" role of the secretary to Alvin Roberts, the columnist; with the "radio" and loud speaker devices so perfected as to give absolute clarity to the passages supposed to be coming in over the air and from adjoining rooms in the night club, "Blessed Event" departed from the Belasco Theater Saturday night for a three-day engagement in New Haven before crashing Broadway for what is expected to be one of the smash hits of the year.

And perhaps you would care to know that:

Douglas Fairbanks, jr., having played a season on the West Coast stage in the leading role of "The Man in Possession," wishes to appear on a Broadway stage and so probably will be seen in Guthrie McClintic's production of "I Was Waiting for You" before the first tulips are in bloom . . . "Lady Windemere's Fan" has been revived with Catherine Dale Owen, erstwhile film star, playing the leading role . . . Francine Larrimore, now appearing in "Brief Moment," has been asked to play Jeanne Eagel's role in a revival of "Rain," Norma Terris probably winning the assignment in the event of Miss Larrimore's refusal—Miss Terris having played the part of Sadie Thompson so well in stock that Miss Eagels presented her with one of her own original costumes . . . "White Cargo," which Earl Carroll bought for something like $75, and which made a lot of money, also is down for revival, with Annette Marguellies in her original role of Tondeleyo, and Witzel, the strong man who was so sure he would not succumb to the blight of the tropics, in the hands either of A. E. Anson, who created it, or Arthur Hohl, now appearing—unless that memory of mine is at it again—as the wagon-train master in Dan Totheroh's "Distant Drums."

The sniper riding around in that big Buick sedan seems to have got the Capital confused with Shanghai!

THE THEATER YESTERDAY

NATIONAL

MAURICE CHEVALIER. Charles Dillingham presents, for one performance only, the French singing comedian and screen star, assisted by Jacques Fray and Mario Braggiotti, in an intimate concert of songs in French and English and classic and popular pianologues.

By NELSON B. BELL.

Not since Sir Harry Lauder, then unknighted, first set foot on a Washington stage many years ago has any masculine personality so overwhelmed a local audience as was the case in the National Theater last night.

The films, the radio and the phonograph records have conveyed only the vaguest hints of the soundness of the artistry, the versatility and the dynamic quality that characterize everything that Maurice Chevalier does when present in person upon the boards. His is an irresistible art, equally impressive, and expressive, whether disclosed in his native French or in his fluent and delightfully accented English.

Last evening's program was divided into two parts, during which Chevalier made three appearances. His first was a bit of humorous introductory badinage, "In the Flesh;" the other two major intervals being devoted to songs in both English and French, and his amusing descriptions of the story content of those sung in his native tongue. Many of them have been heard over the air, but with nothing even remotely approximating the effectiveness with which they were rendered from the National stage.

Among the numbers included in the first group were "You Little Hunk of Love," "You've Got That Thing," "Oh, That Mitzi," from his new picture, "One Hour With You;" "C'etait Moi," "Mr. and Mrs. Elephant" and imitations of three of the most popular comedians of the French stage singing Chevalier songs.

Following the intermission came, "What Would You Do in a Case Like That?" also from "One Hour With You," "The French Sailor's Return," an Apache number and then imitations of Rudy Vallee and Willie Howard doing imitations of Maurice Chevalier, for which "All I Want Is Just One" and "Sweeping the Clouds Away" were utilized, respectively.

At the fall of whet was supposed to be the final curtain, applause was so insistent that "Valentina," "Louise" and "Tell Me Mother" were sung with part of the departing audience standing in the aisles still clapping their hands!

Chevalier is assisted on his brief concert tour by Jacques Fray and Mario Braggiotti, piano duologists, whose work is marked by a catholicity of taste, a breath of expression and a degree of artistry no less than his own. No native artists come to mind who can parallel the proficiency of these two talented young men at two keyboards.

Their first group consisted of "Dark Eyes," an impression, of a Russian orchestra with cymbalum, and "Gershwiniana," comprised of "S'Wonderful" and excerpts from "Rhapsody in Blue" and then both simultaneously. A demanded encore was a Spanish "Bolero" number played to a typically rousing crescendo and climax.

In their second interval they played a fantasy based on "Dancing in the Dark," heard in its original form in "Band Wagon" on the same stage last week; Mario Braggiotti's variations on the theme of "Yankee Doodle"—first as written, then as Chopin might have composed it and finally as Gershwin might have conceived it, with an encore done in the manner of Johann Strauss' "Blue Danube" waltz.

Altogether, a most extraordinary evening in the theater, demonstrating how a young man with little or no voice but a great personality can sway the multitudes.

Though the French Ambassador and Mme. Claudel were unable to attend this unique concert given by their famous countryman, the embassy was represented by Mlle. Reine Claudel. Also seen in the brilliant audience were the Bulgarian Minister and Mme. Radeff, Mrs. Eugene Meyer, Miss Dora White, Mr. Randolph Burke, Countess Beatrice de Buisseret, Miss Evelyn Walker, Representative and Mrs. Maurice Thatcher, the Second Secreary of the Argentine, Senor Don Eduardo Vivot, and Miss Patience McCormick-Goodhart.

E. M. NEWMAN

"BERLIN 1931." The third of a series of five Sunday afternoon travel-talks by E. M. Newman, illustrated with slides and motion pictures. Reviewed by W. A. Whitney. At The National Theater.

After having detailed the birth of a new republic last week, E. M. Newman continued his series yesterday with a description of a new nation of slightly more advanced years, using for his example the city of Berlin as he saw it in 1931.

Throughout the grand tour of Berlin, Mr. Newman vividly contrasts in words the changes of the present city, whose scenes are pictured in colored slides and motion pictures, with the same places under a monarchial government. Opening with views of one of the world's most famous thoroughfares, Unter den Linden, and the Lustgarten, together with the structures surrounding that park, the advances of modernity are traced, not always without a tinge of regret in the speaker's voice.

The palaces of the ex-kaiser and his forebears are now all museums. Under the rule of royalty, only certain portions of the regal dwellings were open to the public, and then only were they available to those who had run the gamut of officialdom and obtained permission. Now all that is changed, and under the present government these structures, as musea, have no rooms that can not be visited at any time. This change runs through all those places and things connected with imperialistic Germany, and that which was earlier solely for the royal family now becomes public property.

As a vivid example of what a government may do in an economic emergency to combat insidious communistic propaganda, Mr. Newman pointed to the new municipally built apartment houses, stadia and swimming pools. To mitigate the growing distress, the government levied a head tax of three marks (75 cents), from which several million dollars were obtained. Out of that fund were built many beautiful, completely parked apartment houses and other structures for the public health and entertainment.

Despite the changes in the Berlin of the present day, it is a breath of the ancient world that made the most notable impression. The Pergamon Temple, and its remarkable reconstruction, including the original gate to the city of Babylon, with its colors still shining in their pristine beauty, stands a monument to the artistry of the ancient Greeks, Romans and Babylonians.

WORK STIMULATION CAMPAIGN PLANNED

District Committee Expects to Find Employment for Thousands.

Thousands of jobs are waiting for unemployed if people of Washington are brought to the realization of their responsibility to those who have no work, according to Col. E. C. Bliss, chairman of the work stimulation committee of the District, who with Paul L. Benjamin and Oscar Leonard, secretaries of the committee, has has worked out plans to alleviate unemployment.

In speaking of the work of his committee, Col. Bliss said:

"In our efforts to stimulate employment for men, the appeal will be made to the business community on the principle of enlightened self-interest. Through various mediums of publicity and cooperation with civic organizations and service clubs, churches and fraternal bodies the message is to be carried to the entire District.

"The committee plans to work along seasonal lines also in connection with home and house owners, stimulating interior work during this season of the year and outside clean-up, painting and landscaping. The visitors expected for the bicentennial will be used as an additional reason to spruce up the city so as to present the best possible appearance to visitors.

"The committee does not plan to handle individual employment situations. It will not duplicate the work of existing agencies. Its efforts will be limited largely to awakening public interest in the need of helping to find work, and the jobs thus created will be filled by those who are registered with existing public employment agencies."

Bond Trade Drops As Prices Dwindle

News Factors Fail to Revive Market; Investors Wait for Developments.

New York, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Investors and traders in the bond market generally stood on the side lines during the past week, and total sales dwindled to the lowest since last November.

At the same time it was pointed out by some dealers that many securities displayed a strong undertone in the face of a number of apparently destructive factors.

Influences which were supposed to affect the market one way or another were the Far Eastern disturbances, the new Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the railway wage reduction agreement, the drop in car loadings and traffic and the prospects of an easy-money policy being inaugurated by the Federal Reserve Banks

The railway bonds indicated some pessimism over their situation and exhibited a declining trend most of the week. While wage cuts and governmental relief held out hopes of betterment, it was believed that these had been largely discounted by the substantial rise in the prices of low-priced carrier lines since last December.

Anti-Red Laws Held Free-Speech Peril

Protest Is Sent Congress Against Suppression by Fish's Plan.

Opposition to pending legislation designed "to suppress by force all Communist agitation in the United States," as proposed by the Fish committee, is expressed by 73 men and women in a letter to be received today by House and Senate leaders.

Each member of Congress addressed will be asked to vote against various bills intended to enact the chief recommendations of the House committee to investigate communistic activities, appointed two years ago with Representative Hamilton Fish of New York as chairman.

The signers declare that they hold no brief whatever for communism, but that their sole concern is free speech for all movements in the United States, regardless of their purpose.

JUDGE LIKELY TO JOIN TIGERS, SAYS BUCKY HARRIS

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

AMONG the boys who have traveled light around the American League circuit is Milton Gaston, a familiar figure on the league's pitching mounds who this season will go South with the Chicago White Sox.

Chicago is Gaston's fifth American League affiliation since 1924, his most recent transfer being by medium of a trade engineered between the White Sox and the Boston Red Sox last December. Previously he had served a term with the Yankees, three years with the Browns, and one with the Nats, with his sever-year record showing 74 victories and 103 defeats.

The champion of all the transferees, however, is burly Burleigh Grimes, whose base now is Wrigley Field, Chicago. Grimes has seen service with six National League clubs, making the rounds at Pittsburgh, Brooklyn, New York, back to Pittsburgh, thence to Boston, thence to St. Louis, and lastly to Chicago. Grimes sheds his uniforms as often as some shed their underwear.

The prolific trading by the White Sox management has resulted in the presence of six former Nats on the Chicago squad. Besides Gaston, there are Jones, Hadley and Haynes, obtained in the Reynolds deal; Benny Tate, a relic of the Shires deal; and Melbourne Simons, former rookie outfielder with Washington.

Brooklyn, with Herman, Wilson and O'Doul comprising a slugging outfield, may yet have cause to repent. None of the three has ever been accused of covering any more ground in the outfield than a rheumatic snail.

The Pirates went into the deal with the Reds with their eyes open when they sold George Grantham, second baseman, outright for $10,000. In reserve, Manager George Gibson will have the clever Tony Piet, to whom the scorers owe a large debt of gratitude for subtracting a collection of letters from his name and getting Piet out of Pietnitszke. With Outfielder Adam Comorosky on the club, the Pirates will be a far-flung team, including as it will, two Poles.

Earl Webb confesses that he started out to be a big league pitcher but couldn't make the grade and became an outfielder. Webb is the lad who belted out 67 two-base hits for a new league record last season with Boston. This same man wasn't good enough for the Nats because he was a left-handed hitter when the crying needed was for a right-hander. But the umpires don't investigate if a hit that rattles off the fence happens to be socked by a left-handed clouter.

Sammy West announced to President Griffith of the Nats that his sore arm is completely cured but he has not yet accepted terms for 1932. Miraculous cures are frequent around contract-talking time, but apparently Sam's arm has not healed to the extent where he cares to risk it affixing his signature to the contract proffered by Griffith.

Ed Morris, pitching mainstay of the Red Sox, who took a salary cut for 1932, has maintained the motif by reducing to 187 pounds. Morris' corpulency is his greatest enemy and it was this factor that restrained the Yankees from acquiring him two years ago in a trade.

Charlie Gelbert, Cardinal shortstop, is one of the big leaguers who finds basket ball an ideal pastime for keeping in shape in the off season. Waite Hoyt, George Earnshaw, Mule Haas and Frank Grube are the most famous of the big leaguers who play basket ball. In 1924, Clark Griffith forbade Bucky Harris to play the game, viewing it as harmful, although Harris was one of the greatest basketers ever to come out of the Pennsylvania mining district.

Ed Brandt, of the Braves, the league's third most effective pitcher, says that much of his success is due to manicuring. He carefully watches the nail on his index finger and curries it to a certain length. If it is too short, his finger becomes sore and handicaps him. If it is allowed to grow too long, it interferes with his curve. Long or short, the nail needs attention, as the case may be, says Brandt.

German Sets American Record for 15 Miles

New York, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Paul de Bruyn, German, who makes his living by heaving coal in a Broadway hotel, bettered the American record for 15 miles today when he was timed in one hour, 22 minutes, 55 seconds.

Charles Pores set the American record at 1:23 24 1-5 here in 1919. The world's record of 1:20:04 4-10 was set in 1902 by the British long distance star, F. Appleby.

South Florida Amateur Golf Title Play Today

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 7 (U.P.).—Qualifying play begins tomorrow for the south Florida amateur championship now held by Arthur Yates, of New York.

Contenders for Yates' title will include Tommy Woodwin, Monroe, N. Y.; J. B. Eyerson, Cooperstown, N. Y.; Albert Hakes, Dunkirk, N. Y.; W. B. Langford, Chicago; Celeste Durand, jr., Brooklyn, and Jack Butler and John Whitman, of Palm Beach.

Fields and Petrolle To Clash in March

New York, Feb. 7 (U.P.).—Jackie Fields, welterweight champion, and Billy Petrolle will meet in the ring at Madison Square Garden some time in March, it was announced here.

Jack Kearns, Fields' manager, said the preliminary details had been arranged by long-distance telephone, and that the fighters will sign next Tuesday.

Canada, U. S. In Hockey Victories

Poland Routed, 9-0; Americans Swamp Germany, 7-0.

Championships Open Today in Olympic Bobsledding.

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 7 (A.P.).—The United States Hockey Team smothered Germany, 7-0, tonight, almost equaling Canada's 9-0 conquest of Poland earlier in the day.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 7 (A.P.).—The gayety and glamour of the third winter Olympics reached a new high today, as thousands of visitors from the surrounding countryside jammed this little village in the heart of the Adirondacks, forgetting in general winter sports play, the rancors and bitterness of protests, disqualifications and free-for-all arguments that marked the first three days of the international competition.

There were only two hockey games on the program today and the running of the second half of a 50-mile dog sled racing exhibition to entertain the visitors who preferred actual competition to watching the thrills on the bob run and ski slide, or joining the brightly clad throngs on the ski trails, the skating rinks and the toboggan slides.

Canada, already conceded the Olympic hockey championship, handed Poland a thorough beating, 9 to 0, to complete the series of conquests over the three teams competing with the Dominion skaters for the title. Tonight the United States, only combination that had given Canada real opposition, defeated Germany, 7-0.

The Teutons, game but lost in the face of the Americans' fine passing game, never threatened to score, rarely getting a shot from within the Blue line, while Doug Everett, Johnny Chase, Ding Palmer and Frank Nelson roamed far and free in the United States forward wall.

Canadians Show Power.

The Canadians' fleet, powerful band of stick handlers, have had an easy time since coming from behind to tie the United States Team of college and club stars in the final minute of the opening game before going on to win, 2 to 1, in overtime. Since then they have trounced Germany, 4-1, and Poland, 9-0. The United States Team beat Poland yesterday. In all, the four teams play twelve games.

The duel of Emile St. Goddard, youthful musher of Le Pas, Canada, and the veteran Alaskan, Leonhard Seppala, over the deep snow trails of the mountains, ended late today with St. Goddard winning the 50-mile exhibition event by less than seven minutes.

Although twelve teams from Canada and the United States, among them one woman driver, Mrs. Milton Seeley, of Wonalancet, N. H., started the first half of the race yesterday, only these two and Shorty Russick, of Flin Flon, Manitoba, had any chance of victory going into the second 25 miles today.

St. Goddard completed the race today in total time for 50 miles of 4 hours 23 minutes 12.5 seconds. Seppala came in in 4:31:01.8 and Russick in 4:47:44.6. St. Goddard's lead over Seppala after yesterday's lap was only 1 minute 29 seconds.

Sledding Starts Today.

Tomorrow the competition will be on in earnest again. The bobsled championships on precipitous Mount Van Hoevenberg will open with two-man competition. The men's figure skaters of eight nations start their struggle, the hockey round robin continues, the women speed skaters of Canada and the United States meet in a 500-meter skating demonstration, and the final of the last men's speed skating event, the 10,000 meters battle that has been shot full of argument and controversy, will wind up that troublesome section of the games.

Irving Jaffee, of the United States, was a slight favorite to add the 10,000-meter crown to the 5,000-meter title he won Thursday. In the field against him will be three teammates, Valentine Bialis, Ed Wedge and Ed Schroeder; two Candians, Frank Stack and Alex Hurd, and two Norwegians, Ivar Ballangrud and Bernt Evensen.

Venzke's Record Mile Carefully Planned And Methodically Executed Track Effort

Runner and Trainer Agreed on Time Before Race.

By FOSTER HAILEY.

NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—A rather shy, unassuming young American, little known 24 hours ago, today stood at the pinnacle of world athletic fame, holder of the indoor record for the mile and the fastest mile foot racer, indoors or out, in American athletic history.

This 23-year-old Minnesotan, Gene Venzke, last night ran the 8 furlongs at the Millrose track and field games in Madison Square Garden in 4:11 1-5, four-fifths of a second faster than those two immortals, Paavo Nurmi and Joie Ray, ran it several years ago.

It was the third best mile in athletic history, surpassed only by Jules La Doumegue's universal outdoor standard of 4:09 1-5, set at Paris last summer, and Nurmi's mile record of 4:10 2-5, made at Stockholm in 1923. The previous fastest mile in American history was the outdoor record of Norman Tabor of 4:12 3-5.

Venzke's record mile was a planned and methodically executed effort, made at a pace within a fraction of the time planned for the quarter, half and three-quarter mile marks, and a fair compromise between the 4:10 and 4:12 goal he had set for himself.

Jumped Into Lead.

Cool as a block of ice, this bronzed young Viking, with loose and rythmical stride, jumped into the lead at the start, paced himself every inch of the way, and finished with a burst of speed, with Leo Lermond, national outdoor 1 and 2 mile champion, floundering in his wake.

"Yes, I knew I was hitting close to record time," he said as he stretched his 6-foot, 170-pound frame on a bench in a private office in the basement of the Garden, where the sound of excited voices cheering a new champion could be heard only faintly. "I felt fine, the new track was marvelously fast and I said to myself at the start, 'Here's your chance, Gene,' and, sure enough, I broke the record."

Standing beside him, proud as a father, was Mike Sweeney, gray-haired director of physical education at Hill School, Pottstown, Pa., Gene's trainer and coach. Gene is finishing at the Pottstown High School an interscholastic career he abandoned several years ago.

"Boy, you did it just right," Mike said as he beamed down on the new record holder. "Here's the program we laid out: Sixty seconds for the quarter. You did it in 59 4-5. Two-five for the half, and you did it in 2:03 1-5. That was where you got your record.

Close to Planned Time.

"Three-nine for the three-quarters, and you did it in three-fifths of a second slower. The pace was beginning to tell there, and then 4:11 for the mile. You figured to finish in 4:10, 11 or 12. That's close enough."

Gene has been running in "big league" company for the past four years, but it was not until the Columbian mile of last year in the Garden that he really came to the fore as an Olympic hope. In that race he ran the distance in 4:14 2-5, to beat Lermond and Ray Conger, Illinois A. C. miler, who was almost a lap behind on the last lap.

Gene was born in the little town of Lies Valley Minn., but came East with his parents as a youngster and has lived of late years in Pennsylvania. He dropped out of high school several years ago, but last fall decided he wasn't getting along and went back to the high school classroom at 22 years of age. He studies geometry, languages and history with kids of 16 and 17.

Strain to Seek Record.

"Well, I don't care what happens now," he said. "I don't care if I lose every other start this winter. It's too much strain to build up for a record more than once or twice a year."

"That doesn't go for the Olympics, brother Gene."

"Oh, no. I'll be in there trying for the 1,500 meters," he replied. "That is, if I can make the grade."

One other world's indoor record was bettered at the Millrose meet last night when George Spitz, sensational high jumper, cleared 6 feet 7⅜ inches, five-eighths of an inch higher than the record he set last year. Emmet Toppino, sprinter from Loyola University of New Orleans, tied the indoor record for the 60 yards when he was timed in 6 2-10 seconds. Tippino went on to win the sprint series in decisive fashion.

Hilltop Track Coach Praises Venzke's Race

Gene Venzke, who established the new 4:11 1-5 mile record Saturday night, is classified by Jimmy Mulligan, Georgetown University coach, as one of the greatest runners of all time and a great bet to score for the United States in the 1932 Olympics. Mulligan, returning last night from New York, where he saw Venzke's exceptional effort, said:

"Venzke set the pace all the way, won as he pleased and, in my opinion, could have run another half-lap at the same pace. As it was, he finished on his toes and looked better to me than did Nurmi and Ray, whom I saw run the mile in 4:12 back in 1923."

Houston Pro Golf To Clark by Stroke

Manero Nosed Out of $500 First Prize After Having Two-Stroke Lead.

Houston, Tex., Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Clarence Clark, Bloomfield, N. J., professional, continued a lucrative Southern campaign today by winning the Colonial Country Club's 54-hole golf open and the first prize of $500 with a score of 220.

A heavy cross-wind blew both yesterday and today, turning drives and making accurate putting extremely difficult.

Clark nosed out Tony Manero, of New York, by one stroke. Manero tied with Clark who last week won the Texas open at San Antonio and $600, for the first 18 yesterday, each having a 73. The New Yorker had a two-shot lead with eighteen holes to go this afternoon, but Clark snatched the title away by traveling the difficult Colonial layout in even par for the last eighteen.

Clark's score for the three rounds was 73—75—72—220, while Manero had 73—73—75—221. Manero won $325.

Archie Hambrick, of Zanesville Ohio, was third with 223, to win $225; Ray Mangrum, unattached, fourth with 224, for $175, and Floyd Boone, of Corsicana, Tex., fifth with 227, for $100.

Shea and Jaffee Get Norway Trip

U. S. Olympic Skate Stars Accept Norse Bids; Two Others to Make Trip.

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 7 (A.P.).—An added award came today to Jack Shea and Irving Jaffee, American skaters who have won all three Olympic speed skating championships so far decided.

Christian Anderson, representing the Norwegian Skating Federation, announced today that Shea and Jaffee had accepted invitations to compete in Norway March 5 and 6 against the best racers in Norwegian ranks in their specialties, 500, 1,500, 5,000 and 10,000 meters. Shea already has won the 500 and 1,500 meter Olympic titles, while Jaffee has won the 5,000 and is a favorite to win the 10,000 meters final tomorrow.

Two more members of the United States Team will be invited to make the same trip, Anderson said, on the basis of their showing in the 10,000-meter final.

The Norwegian stars whom Shea and Jaffee already have beaten decisively here are Bernt Evenson, 1928 Olympic 500-meter champion, and Ivar Ballangrud, 1,500-meter title holder, as well as Michael Staksrud and Hans Engnestangen.

Maryland and Kentucky Top Southern Conference

By DILLON GRAHAM.

ATLANTA, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Maryland and Kentucky, last year's champion and runner-up in Southern Conference basket ball, stand today as the only unbeaten survivors among the 23 teams that started the Dixie cage campaign six weeks ago.

But both had to show the comeback qualities of champions last week to hold their top positions as two other favored quintets, Alabama and Auburn, were defeated in real upsets.

Kentucky, with seven conference wins, is a step ahead of Maryland, which has six. Trailing Duke at the half, Kentucky opened a winning drive in the second period to edge out the Blue Devils, 37-30.

Maryland's margin over North Carolina was a single point, 26-25. The Tarheels almost doubled Maryland's scoring efforts in the first half, leading 20-11. Maryland pulled on even terms late in the contest and a field goal by the all-Southern guard, Berger, finally brought victory.

Vanderbilt's defeat of Alabama was the biggest surprise of the season. The Commodores had been beaten several times, including a severe 61-37 lacing by Kentucky and were accorded little chance against the powerful Crimsons. Vanderbilt's 39-32 decision broke Alabama's string of eight victories. The Crimsons previously had won from Georgia Tech, 34-19, and later beat Tennessee, 25-21. Vanderbilt also won from Sewanee 32-21.

Auburn apparently took Tulane too lightly. The Greenies piled up an early advantage Friday which earned them a 26-to-21 verdict. Only a final blast last night enabled Auburn to win the second game, 42 to 37, after the Greenies had led most of the contest.

Virginia added another victory over N. C. State, 20 to 17, and Mississippi jumped to sixth place with two victories over Mississippi State 37 to 19 and 31 to 25. Georgia won from Clemson 41 to 26, and avenged an earlier defeat from Georgia Tech, 25 to 15. Clemson dropped two more

Brown Fight With Jacobs Canceled

Injury to Baltimore Boxer Eliminates Alexandria Bout.

Raymond May Sign As Substitute for Fight Tomorrow.

By JACK ESPEY.

OWING to a mouth infection, the result of an injury sustained in his bout with Eddie Cool in Philadelphia last Friday night, Buster Brown, Baltimore lightweight, has canceled his engagement with Stumpy Jacobs, of Hopewell, Va., scheduled tomorrow night at Portner's Arena in Alexandria. The Day Nursery athletic committee, however, will proceed with arrangements for the show and is considering three men as possible substitutes for Brown.

The trio with whom communication was made last night are Lew Raymond, Baltimore junior welterweight who defeated Sammy Braunstein last week; Vince Serio, Baltimore lightweight, who defeated Sailor McKenna two months ago, and Al Gordon, Philadelphia junior welter who has met many of the best men of his weight in the game including Benny Bass and Johnny Jadick, present holder of the junior welter title.

Balance of Card Intact.

The balance of the program will be presented as previously announced with Henry Irving, local middleweight star, meeting Walter Kirkwood, promising Norfolk (Va.) lad in the semifinal of eight rounds.

Four four-round bouts will offer Keller Crawford, Cordova, Md. vs. Young Perry, Lawrence, Mass., welterweights; Benny Tillman, Hazelton, Pa., vs. Jack Quigley, Washington, lightweights; Young Groves, Washington, vs. Bob Portna, Bolling Field, featherweights, and Tommy Horn, Baltimore, vs. Billy Reed, Washington, featherweights.

Landers and Kocsis Matched.

The management announced last night that Billy Landers, popular Norfolk boxer, had been matched with Antol Kocsis, Hungarian bantamweight champion, for the feature eight-round bout of the Day Nursery's show scheduled February 16. Another eight-round mill on this program will be fought by Al Gordon, Philadelphia welterweight, and Louie Jallos, Cleveland. Kocsis is ranked among the first ten bantams of the world and is being considered as an opponent for Midget Wolgast in a match to determine the world's flyweight championship. The Hungarian can reduce to the 112-pound limit without seriously weakening himself.

Hurricane Poloists Beat Midwicks, 8 to 7

Los Angeles, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—The Hurricane Poloists, a New York aggregation, including the international stars, Capt. C. T. I. "Pat" Roark, G. H. "Pete" Bostwick and Stephen "Laddpe" Sanford, defeated the Midwick Country Club four in a sensational extra chukker match, 8 to 7 today.

Midwick, with two international players, Eric Pedley and Elmer Boeseke, led until the eighth chukker. A Hurricane rally produced two tallies and tied the score.

Sanford won the game in the last 20 seconds of the ninth chukker with the tie-breaking point.

Hoey Wins 200-Mile Snowshoe Marathon

Montreal, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Finishing third in today's short lap from Montreal to Lafontaine Park, Frank Hoey, of Montreal, repeated last year's triumph in the 200-mile Quebec to Montreal snowshoe marathon. The race began last Sunday.

August Fager, of Ashtabula, was second, a little more than 15 minutes behind Hoey in elapsed time. Johnny Coco, of New York, was third, another four minutes back. Hoey's time for the 200-mile grind was 26 hours, 16 minutes and 1 second.

Morris Richman, of New York, who led today's lap in 1:07:45 took ninth place in the race with an elapsed time of 28:33:25.

HONOR PAID DREYFUSS AT BIER

Notables of Baseball Among Thousands at Funeral.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—While thousands stood with bared heads, Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates and father of the world series idea, was buried today in West View Cemetery.

In the crowd which paid final tribute to the man who gave Pittsburgh a National League baseball club for more than three decades, the highest dignitaries in the baseball world rubbed elbows with dyed-in-the-wool fans who have watched Dreyfuss' stewardship through the years.

Baseball officialdom was represented by Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, high commissioner of baseball; John A. Heydler, president of the National League, and William Harridge, president of the American League.

Interment followed services at Rodef Shalom Temple. Dr. Samuel M. Goldenson, who conducted the obsequies, paid tribute to Dreyfuss as a man who was known universally for his "fair play," truthfulness and generosity."

Notables Honorary Pall Bearers.

As the funeral cortege left Rodef Shalom Temple, which had been crowded to capacity long before the services began, Landis, Heydler and Harridge joined with officials of several baseball clubs in acting as honorary pallbearers.

Among them were President William L. Veeck, of the Chicago Cubs; President Charles A. Stoneham and Secretary James J. Tierney, of the New York Giants; President Emil E. Fuchs, of the Boston Braves; President Frank B. York, of the Brooklyn Dodgers; President Sidney Weil, of the Cincinnati Reds; President L. C. Ruch, of the Philadelphia Nationals, and Treasurer William O. De Witt, of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Dreyfuss was 67 years old. He died in New York Friday following an operation. He had been president of the Pittsburgh National League Club since its reorganization in 1900.

As a tribute to Dreyfuss' memory, the Pirates will wear strips of black on their left sleeves when they open the National League season here April 20. The flag on the center field pole in Forbes Field will be at half-staff on that day.

Four Clubs Pass Up Webb Before He Stars at Boston

JOHN McGRAW did not want him. Joe McCarthy, then managing the Cubs, sent him back to the minors. Dan Howley could not see where he would help Cincinnati any, while Walter Johnson passed him along to the Boston Red Sox. McGraw could use him now, while the Cubs would be mighty glad to get him back. As for Cincinnati, how it moans when it thinks of how, just two years ago, it owned Earl Webb and allowed him to slip from its grasp.

You can not blame Walter Johnson much, however. Walter was long on left-hand hitters, and in his efforts to get a right-hand batter he traded the man who set a new record last year by belting 67 two-base hits. Nor could you blame John McGraw, as Webb claimed to be a pitcher then. As a pitcher, however, he was an excellent batter. Nor could Joe McCarthy be reproached, as to take the big fellow's place he had Hazen Cuyler, and it is rumored that Cuyler was as good a hitter as Webb and also was a pretty fair country fielder.

Webb was a pitcher for three years and an outfielder for eight years since he became enrolled as a player in organized baseball. Yet, not until 1930 could he be regarded as a sure enough major leaguer. Why? Let Earl answer that question himself. He has done so, and here is his explanation.

"I thought I was a pitcher when I was down in the sticks. Judging from what the batters did to my offerings I wasn't. But I could hit. So I decided I was an outfielder and declared I would pitch no more. (It might be mentioned that none of his managers insisted he resume pitching.) As an outfielder, however, I became the All-American stumbler. I have seen some mighty bad outfielders, but none of them had anything on me until I landed in Boston last year. Even then I could do a pretty fair job of stumbling.

"Seems queer that none of the managers ever had been able to make me a better outfielder. Queer, too, that I had been unable to help myself until 1930. It came to me all at once I had tried and tried to discover why

Deal Brewing For Veteran With Nats

Purchase Is Recommended to Detroit by Manager.

Terms Hold Up Deal; Griffith Awaiting Best Offer.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

ALTHOUGH President Clark Griffith, of the Nationals, insist that First Baseman Joe Judge will be retained and will be given a 50-50 break in battling Joe Kuhel for the regular berth at the Washington club's spring training camp at Biloxi, Stanley R. (Bucky) Harris, Detroit pilot, who lives in the Capital City during the off season, declares that he has high hopes of seeing the veteran cavorting about the initial sack on the Tigers' 1932 infield.

"I don't mind admitting that I would like to have Judge," said Harris last night, "but the Washington club sure is rating him highly and there is some little question in President Frank Navin's mind as to whether or Joe would be worth the price asked to the Detroit club.

"I've recommended Judge's purchase and believe that he would have a good year with us, but he has reached the stage that we couldn't figure on him for more than a year or two and, for that reason, the Detroit club does not want to have to put out a lot of money for him. However, we're working on the deal and when I start for our Richardson Springs (Calif.) training camp a week from tomorrow, I hope very much to take Joe along, and it is likely that I may."

Judge Popular Here.

Judge has played continuously with the Washington Club since 1915, has given the club all that he had and has made thousands of friends and admirers throughout the American League circuit. A chance to play regularly with the Tigers is a distinct "break" for him and it is a sure bet that the Nats will not stand in his way; in other words, that President Griffith will do a little more dickering but finally will accept the Tigers' best bid in order to give Judge a chance.

Judge, whose life-time batting average in the majors is an even .300, enjoyed his best season in 1930, leading the league's first-sackers afield at batting at a .326 clip. Among his hits were 29 doubles, 11 triples and 10 homers, while he drove in 80 mates. He showed his usual class last spring, easily beat out Kuhel for the regular job, and promised to have another good year when he was laid low by an acute appendicitis attack in Boston on May 1.

Joe recovered from his illness but, meanwhile, Manager Walter Johnson evidently decided to start developing Kuhel, who is a youngster good for many years, and Judge found himself out of a job when he returned to the baseball wars.

Veteran Wants Regular Work.

Judge, himself, while admitting that he would hate to leave Washington, where he has lived and reared his family ever since he joined the Nats, would rather be traded or sold to a club which would use him regularly than to remain here as a utility man. He realizes that he has only a few more years of major league baseball in his system and wants a chance to play out his string, knowing that, at his age, a season of bench-warming would practically end his diamond career.

And Harris' opinion regarding the veteran's future coincides with that of Judge. "In spite of Joe's lay-off practically all of last season, I believe he can come back and show his best form for a year or so," said Harris, "but old-timers have to work regularly to hold their edge and I don't look for Judge to be of much use to the Washington Club as a second-stringer in case he fails to land the regular job. I'd like to get him for my Tigers and hope that we will finally land him."

From the Detroit pilot's conversation, it is assumed that a decision in Judge's case will be reached within a week, for Bucky Harris wants to give the veteran every possible chance to come back and, with this in mind, plans to take him to the California camp with him a week from today so that Joe can report with the first consignment of players, who are scheduled to start work on February 19.

Pinehurst, N. C., Feb. 7 (U.P.).—Mrs. Richard D. Clemson, Middletown, N. Y., defending champion, and Helen Waring, New York, both finalists in the Pinehurst autumn tournament, were favorites in the twenty-seventh annual women's St. Valentines golf tournament beginning tomorrow.

The meet starts with an eighteen-hole qualifying round Monday. Other prominent players entered are Mrs. John D. Chapman, Greenwich, Conn.; Mrs. Ronald H. Barlow, Bryn Mawr, Pa., former North and South open. The field is expected to exceed 50 players.

GEORGETOWN QUINTET IS HOST TO WEST VIRGINIA TONIGHT

Bucknell Foe Of Catholic On Court

American Seeks 10th Straight Against St. John's Five.

Games to Open Busy Week; Parrack in Front of Scorers.

A BUSY week of competition for local college athletes opens tonight with two basket ball games being staged on home courts and another on the floor of the enemy. Georgetown engages an old foe, West Virginia University, at Tech High, beginning at 8:15, while Catholic University meets Bucknell University at Brookland gym, starting at the same time. At Annapolis the unbeaten American University quintet will oppose St. John's.

Both Georgetown and Catholic U. will be out to continue a winning pace established last week following several reverses. The former smashed a losing streak of eight games by turning back Western Maryland and the latter snapped a string of four setbacks by upsetting Loyola in Baltimore.

Mountaineers To Invade.

The invading quintets, however, most assuredly will not willingly contribute to the locals' success, and the fans may attend either game with anticipation of witnessing red-hot competition. West Virginia comes here in no pleasant mood, having lost a one-point decision to Washington and Lee last Saturday night. The Mountaineers previously had conquered the crack Temple University team, which easily defeated Georgetown on January 23. Bucknell took a lacing from Penn State on Saturday.

American U. faces a real task at Annapolis, but is confident of stretching its winning streak to ten games. St. John's fell victim to the Methodists early in the season by two points, but will hold an advantage tonight inasmuch as the game is to be played on its own floor.

A total of eighteen basket ball and boxing contests are booked this week for Capital teams. One of the three ring meets scheduled will be presented tomorrow night in Brookland Gymnasium, where Catholic University's boxers will swap jabs and crosses with Jimmy Maloney's University of Miami Team in a match of seven bouts.

In the individual basket ball scoring race, Wick Parrack, of George Washington, continues to set the pace. The 6-foot-5 forward of the unbeaten Colonials boasts a total of 125 points for nine games. Forrest Burgess, of the same team, occupies second place with 106 points for a like number of contests. Third place is held by Tommy Carolan, Georgetown star, who has scored an even 100 points in twelve games. Wilbur Jensen, Gallaudet, and Ed White, Catholic, trail in order with 95 and 94 points.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

IN THE GAME between the South Dakota State School of Mines and Sioux Falls College, in which Crabtree, quarterback on the former team, made his record-breaking punt, his team came into possession of the ball right under their own goal posts. Crabtree was forced to punt from ten yards back of his own goal line. The ball sailed high in the air, and traveled a full 80 yards before touching the ground. Encouraged by a favorable wind, it rolled to the Sioux Falls goal line and 20 yards beyond . . . 130 yards in all. Of course, the long punt was made possible by a stiff wind, but as S. F. Venton, a witness of that famous kick, suggests, the wind was no fault of Crabtree's.

—Hialeah Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS

HIALEAH PARK, Miami, Fla., Feb. 7.—Hialeah Park features the fifth race tomorrow, a handicap at 6 furlongs, being the medium which has attracted eight sprinters, two of which are exceedingly fast—POP GAFFNEY and JAZ AGE—both winners of three races in Florida. POP GAFFNEY'S RECORD is perfect, having won his three starts at this track and only an accident, it would appear, can cheat him of his fourth straight win. His last race a week ago was in the McKinley Handicap, in which JAZ AGE was second, beaten a length.

JAZ AGE is the outstanding contender in this race, and the two should duplicate their last start. POLYGAMOUS, far from consistent, should beat MISS TULSA for the show money. Hialeah Park racing is the most formful seen on a winter track and the quality of horses is far ahead of that at any other off-season track.

FIRST RACE — TRAITOR, making his first start since the Tropical Park meeting, where he set a track record of 1:11 for 6 furlongs, seems the logical horse to win. He has too much early speed to be caught by the contenders, chief of which seems to be WAR SAINT, a winner last out. HAMILTON should wind up third. He has plenty of early foot.

SECOND RACE—STARBOARD LIGHT is picked. In his last race he was beaten a neck by Battling On and takes off weight. While the distance may prove tiring to PARTISAN he has the class over the others and should be second, with the old campaigner, NEALON KAY, having third money nailed down. FAIR ALBERT may be dangerous, judging from his last race.

THIRD RACE—SEMI-PRECIOUS seems best of the 2-year-old fillies entered. She was beaten in her first start when she was a favorite in a large field. MINTWINA has speed, running second in her only two starts. FOUL TIP, in the money last out, should garner third money.

FOURTH RACE—TANCRED, a consistent plater which has won three previous races consecutively, should make it four in the fourth day. COADY is the only danger. At 9 furlongs, TANCRED seems a standout. SHOW DOWN beat Lion Hearted in his start and should be in the money here.

SIXTH RACE—JAMABAYLA, second last out and the defeated favorite against My Purchase, should benefit by that race and is picked to win, with LINE OF FIRE, winner of two races recently, the runner up. LINE OF FIRE has improved and may be dangerous. LAST ATTEMPT, recent winner, is best of the others. These horses should shade 1:12.

SEVENTH RACE—DRESS SHIP is coming around to good form and the son of Man o' War seems well placed. PLAY BILL, perhaps, is the contender, having finished third in his last start to Last Attempt and El Puma. NEGOPOLI, if in best form, could make it hot for these. He should finish third.

NAT. CAPITAL OPEN GOLF ASSURED

Kenwood Again Will Stage $2,500 Pro Event Here.

A REPETITION this year of the National Capital open golf tournament, successfully given last fall on the course of the Kenwood Golf Club, became a certainty last night as the result of a largely attended meeting of members held at the clubhouse.

After considerable discussion as to details, especially with reference to financing the event, it was decided that the tournament could be undertaken with every prospect of a successful outcome. The purse of $2,500 offered last year and distributed among the prize winners will be duplicated this year. The competition will be 72 holes medal play and will be staged during the latter part of September.

Bicentennial to Sponsor Tourney.

It was reported at the meeting last night that the Bicentennial Commission will list the tournament as one of the major sports events of this section and will arrange for Nation-wide publicity.

The meeting was presided over by H. L. Dawson, who was named as chairman of the executive committee, which will have full charge of the details. Other members of the committee will include Raleigh Christie, William C. Carey, sr., George Pope, C. P. Grady, A. H. Worley, Daniel Loomis, Donal Chamberlin and R. S. Davidson. Numerous subcommittees will be named in the near future. Officials of the greens section of the United States Golf Association will inspect the course as soon as the season opens and during the summer will take all necessary steps to put the fairways and putting greens in perfect condition for next fall.

COL. HEIGHTS IN SOCCER TRIUMPH

Beats Marlboro, 2-0, for Right to Meet Concord Team.

COLUMBIA HEIGHTS earned the right to meet Concord for the leadership, and possibly the championship, of the Capital City Soccer League, by winning a 2-0 victory over Marlboro in a spirited game played on the Monument Grounds yesterday. One of the largest crowds to witness a soccer game this season was on hand for the fray. In the only other game listed the British United eleven routed Gaithersburg, winning by a score of 14-0.

Lou Koennel, clever Columbia half back, tallied both of his team's points. The first score came after Koennel had dribbled 20 yards past four opponents for a shot at the net from about 15 yards out. The ball whizzed past Goalie Binger but struck a goal-post and rebounded out on the playing field. Koennel recovered the leather and again sent it goalward and this time the ball found its mark.

Marlboro's Attack Fails.

Marlboro's speedy criss-cross attack, which has been its principal weapon in previous games, was ineffective yesterday due to the damp condition of the field. The suburbanites displayed good teamwork but lost their footing on several ocasions, and Columbia Heights recovered each time. R. Mitchell's defensive work for Marlboro was of high order. Case was the leading defensive player for Columbia Heights.

Koennel scored the second and final point of the game in the ebbing minutes of the contest. Harry Koennel inaugurated the drive that resulted in the score by dribbling across and passing into Nuthall, who immediately made a pass for the goal. The ball, however, was blocked by a Marlboro back. Lou Koennel again recovered the sphere and made a quick kick that eluded Goalminder Binger.

Howitzers Down Cumberland Five

Giants Overcome Alien Lead to Win, 31 to 23; Play Vic's Sunday.

In one of the best games witnessed in the Kensington Armory this season, the Howitzer Giants defeated the Cumberland Y. M. C. A. quintet by a score of 31 to 23. The visitors' reputation as basket ball players had preceded them to town, and they lived up to the advance notices in every respect.

Cumberland set the pace for the first half and, with Kirchman and Angleborger leading the way, led 15 to 12 at the intermission. The Giants, however, rallied in the second half, going into the lead near the end of the third period.

The Giants will meet Vic's Sport Shop next Sunday in the first game of a round-robin series to determine the semipro championship of this vicinity. The game will be played at Silver Spring at 3 p. m. The Skinker Eagles will be the third team in the series.

Potomac Boat Five Noses Out Company F

The Potomac Boat Club quintet defeated Company F by a score of 28 to 27 in a well-played game at Hyattsville yesterday. Company F obtained a substantial lead early in the game, but the eventual winners overhauled them in the third period, and staved off a rally late in the game to cop the verdict. In a preliminary game the Company F Reserves defeated the Dixie Pig Preps by a score of 27 to 19.

Tardugno Bolsters Columbus Ring Team

Mike Tardugno, one of Washington's best-known mittmen, is to fight in the 128-pound spot for Columbus University next Saturday night, when Springfield (Mass.) College is met at the Strand Theater.

Tardugno replaces Capt. Harry Allen, diminutive battler, who has voluntarily retired from the ring following last week's defeat.

Tardugno, who possesses both cleverness and punch, is expected to substantially bolster the team that recently upset Washington and Jefferson in a rousing go. Well represented in virtually every division, the Columbians are hopeful of getting up a rousing scrap against the vaunted New Englanders.

Ruth, 38, Celebrates With Birthday Party

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Babe Ruth cut himself a large piece of cake today. The occasion was his thirty-eighth birthday anniversary. Gathered around a hotel table built to resemble a baseball diamond, with flowers for base lines and bases, 28 guests were seated with Mr. and Mrs. George Herman Ruth, who were placed at "home plate."

Ruth's birthday cake was made in the shape of a huge baseball.

Lynn Lary, New York Yankee shortstop, and his bride of several weeks, were guests at the party.

In answer to short addresses of congratulation by city officials, the Babe said he expected to keep up his home-run stride for at least two more years.

He played golf as usual this morning and after the "surprise party" went out for another round of eighteen holes.

Last-Minute Goal Decisive for K. C.

Gubisch's 2-Pointer Costs J. C. C. Five 20-19 Verdict in Thriller.

"Heine" Gubisch's field goal in the final minute of play enabled the Knights of Columbus unlimited quintet to gain a 20-19 victory over the Jewish Community Center five in a thrilling game played at the Silver Spring armory yesterday.

The Center team assumed the lead at the outset and ran the score to 11-1 before Anderson came through with a 2-pointer for the Caseys. The eventual winners trailed by a score of 11-6 at the half. The Knights took a new lease on life in the second half and gradually drew abreast of their opponents, knotting the count at 17-17. Levin put the Center ahead with a long pot shot, but Gubisch saved the day for the Irish with his final basket of the game.

Gibson to Show Ring Wares for Howitzers

"Bunk" Gibson has been given a place on the program of boxing bouts to be staged by the Howitzer Company, Maryland National Guard, in the Kensington Armory, February 17, it was announced last night. His opponent will be named the latter part of this week.

Gibson is a slugging lightweight, and, although an amateur, is rated as one of the best ringmen for his weight in this vicinity. The addition of this bout to the card raises the number of boxing contests to seven. A wrestling exhibition will be sandwiched in between the mitt slinging.

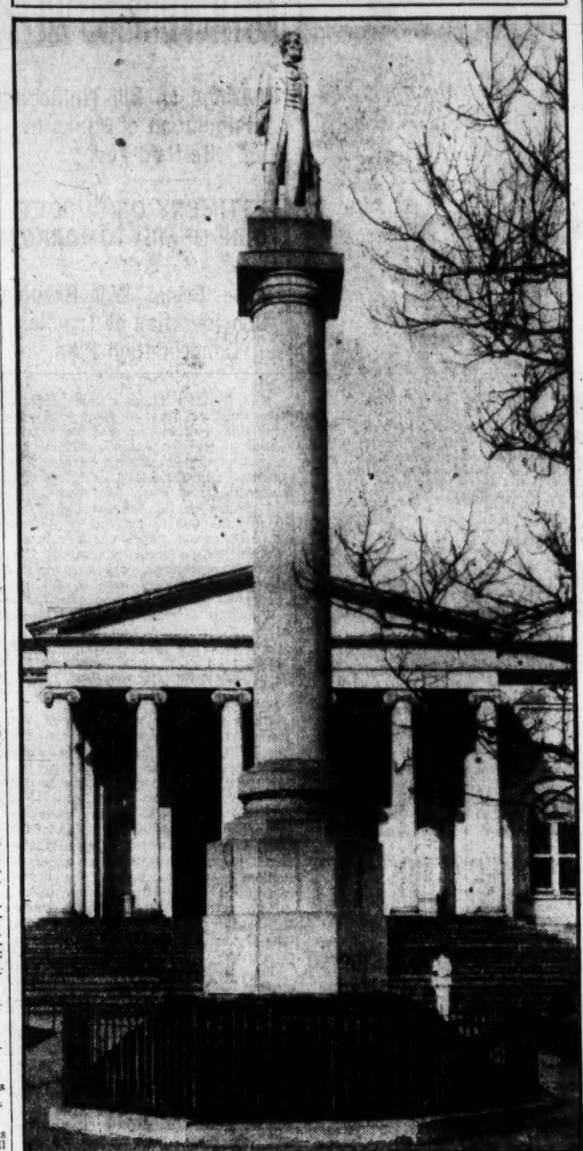
Tickets for the show can be procured at Vic's Sport Shop and the Kensington Armory. Brooke Grubb is arranging the program.

Mohawks Again Elect Mackey and Donovan

Rob Roy Mackey, patriarch of the Mohawk Athletic Club, was reelected to serve his third successive term as president of that organization at a smoker held at the clubhouse yesterday afternoon. Mackey has been identified with sandlot sports since the murder of Cock Robin first startled the peace-loving citizens of Southeast. Other officers elected were Harry Smithson, vice president; Patsy Donovan, treasurer; Eneas F. McCarthy, secretary; O. Riley, sergeant at arms; Clarence Johnson, H. F. Rees, Alton White and Louis Werner, directors.

Donovan is also serving his third term in office for the club. The selection of "KO" Riley for the office of sergeant at arms is a happy one. He holds the club boxing championship.

When Washington Was Younger—No. 188



National Photo.

THERE are two statutes to Abraham Lincoln in parks in the city and the one pictured above is in front of the main entrance to the District of Columbia Supreme Court House and faces to the south.

It was originally erected on a tall shaft, as shown above, but this did not correspond with the art plan of the city, and it was taken down in the spring of 1913, and after being stored for a time was erected again on the less pretentious base that is still standing.

The statue is of marble, life size, and represents the famous lawyer in a studious mood. Behind the statue, on the north side is the inscription, "Abraham Lincoln, 1809-1865. This statue was erected by the citizens of the District of Columbia, April 15, 1868; reerected April 15, 1923, under act of Congress, of June 21, 1922." The south face of the pedestal bears the inscription, "Lincoln."

CAFETERIA

MEMORIAL HIGHWAY COMPLETION BEFORE BICENTENNIAL GOAL

Lights Are Being Installed So Night Traffic Can Be Permitted Soon.

EXPECTED TO RELIEVE CONGESTION FOR FETE

Cars Are Not Now Allowed to Use Arlington Road After Sundown.

Workers are doing everything in their power to have the Arlington Memorial highway open continuously, both day and night, in time for the opening of the George Washington Bicentennial on February 22, Capt. Ray C. Montgomery, commander of the park police, said last night.

At present, the new bridge and road attracts huge crowds of motorists during the hours of daylight, but it is closed and blocked off at sundown because the lights which will line its length have not been installed.

Authorities are deeply interested in having the road open at all times before the start of the Bicentennial, because they expect a flood of traffic, which the road will relieve.

Lights Being Installed.

Workers are busy now at the lower end of the road in the Mount Vernon section, installing the new lights. Here the standards for them will be in rustic motif, to carry out the country idea.

The lights will be fixed on cedar posts with wooden cross-arms. A number of the lights have already been installed and the work in this section can be finished in a few days.

Capt. Montgomery said last night that the road would be an important link in boulevards around the Capital because Virginia traffic has been increasing yearly. The road will relieve much of the congested condition found particularly on Sundays.

Used by 17,500.

Bright weather yesterday called out a large number of motorists to try the new drive. Approximately 17,500 automobiles traveled over the bridge and highway, Capt. Montgomery estimated.

There were two accidents on the crowded highway late in the afternoon, and in one two persons were taken to the Alexandria Hospital, where they were treated for cuts. Park police said Walter H. Graham, 40 years old, of 134 E street southeast, and A. Whalie, of 155 E street southeast, were injured when the machine driven by Graham struck the automobile of Reese Jones, of 1003 E street northwest and then crashed into a guard rail about a mile and a half below Hunting Creek.

Harvey M. Frey, of 1357½ D street southwest, told police his automobile had also been struck by Graham's machine. Graham was severely cut about his right eye and forehead and remained at the hospital. Whalie had a cut lip.

Second Accident.

The sedan of William F. Hayes, 1726 Massachusetts avenue northwest, was struck from the rear by the automobile of Emmett Davis, of Alexandria, Va., when Hayes' car stopped suddenly. The accident happened at Roaches Run.

There was the usual Sunday tie-up just outside of Alexandria at the viaduct, when the sun went down and the wide boulevard was closed off for the night.

Installation of the lights will see the end of the weekly tie-up at this point, Capt. Montgomery said.

4 SEIZED IN SERIES OF TAXI ROBBERIES

Shoes and Overcoats Taken as Well as Cabs and Cash, Police Report.

Four men were under arrest last night accused of robbing taxi drivers, taking their shoes and overcoats, and then forcing them from their cabs in isolated points, making them walk in their stocking feet back for aid. Police said three of the men were taken in the act of robbing one of the taxi men.

The men were arrested by Sixth Precinct Detective J. W. Shiman and Detective Sergt. E. F. Lewis, who said they took in custody three men at the scene of an attempted robbery and four others at a "club" the men had in West alley, in the vicinity of Seventh and S streets northwest. Three of them were later released when none of those held up could identify them.

The first barefooted holdup victim was Harvey Reeves, 21 years old, colored, of 3033 Sherman avenue northwest. He said three colored men took his cab at Seventh and S streets northwest, ordered him to drive to Bates road and Shepherd road northeast. There they pulled a pistol and took his shoes, overcoat, $3.50 in cash and his cab.

Second Victim.

A motorist saw him walking gingerly along the road in his stocking feet and took him to the Sixth Precinct Station. He had hardly finished his report before Taylor Washington, colored, 23 years old, of 930 Westminster street northwest, came in.

He had been picked up by a policeman who found him in a shoeless condition on upper Georgia avenue. Washington said his cab had been hired at Ninth and S streets northwest by three colored men, and robbed at about the same spot where Reeves lost his shoes. In addition to Washington's footgear, overcoat and cab, they took $6.80 from him.

The two detectives said they cruised around Seventh and S streets northwest early this morning and saw three colored men get into a cab. They followed at a discreet distance and when the cab reached Georgia avenue and Kennedy streets northwest, one of the men pulled a gun on the driver, according to the detectives.

Police Overtake Cab.

The two police officers crowded the cab to the curb and arrested the trio of passengers, they said. Two of the men had on Reeves' and Washington's overcoat and shoes, they said.

The men arrested gave their names as Tommy Cleveland, 20 years old, of Philadelphia; George Taylor, 30 years old, and Hubert Jones, 22 years old, all colored.

One of the four taken from the "club" was held when he was identified by Washington as one of the men who held him up. He gave the name of Rudolph Busco, colored, 22 years old.

Veteran, Gas Victim, Taken Home.

Ralph Morton Graham, 38-year-old World War veteran, who was found last Friday unconscious in the gas-filled kitchen of his apartment at 1915 Sixteenth street northwest, was removed to the home of his mother, Mrs. Grace H. Graham, 2827 Thirteenth street northwest, after treatment at Emergency Hospital.

ELDERLY COLLECTOR OF GUNS ENDS LIFE

One of Firearms Gathered Reported Used by Man, 84, in Suicide.

An elderly collector of pistols and rifles last night took one of the firearms from a wall rack to fire a bullet through his heart, according to police reports. John William Whitmire, 84 years old, was found dying by his son-in-law, William Buechling, with whom he lived at 722 Fourth street northeast.

Whitmire was taken to Casualty Hospital, but was pronounced dead on arrival. He had used a .32-caliber pistol, of a modern type, from his collection.

His daughter, Mrs. Bessie B. Buechling, had just taken her father his dinner, she said, and as she reached the bottom of the steps she heard the report of a pistol. Mr. Buechling ran upstairs and found the man dying, with the pistol beside his body.

Mr. Whitmire had about eighteen pistols and rifles in his collection which he kept on racks about the walls of his room. He was a former horse car driver when those were the mode of transportation in Washington. For some years he lived in Forestville, Va., but retired about ten years ago and came back to Washington to live with his children.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Lydia A. Whitmire, who is living with a son, Lester C. Whitmire, of 720 Tenth street northeast. In addition, he is survived by two other sons, Ora L., of 1434 Ridge place southeast, and Emery S., of Philadelphia, and two daughters, Mrs. William E. Shorr, of 5726 Fourth street northwest, and Mrs. Lita Richardson, of Baltimore.

Sunday "Blue Law" For Radio Opposed

Open Forum Speakers Also Fight Barber-shop Closing.

A bill now before Congress, which would establish a Sunday "blue law" for radio by banning commercial broadcasting, was vigorously opposed last night at a meeting of the Washington Open Forum at 1410 G street northwest.

Edward J. Irvine, the principal speaker, in discussing the dismissal of Mrs. Margaret Ball Dickson, English literature teacher at Valparaiso University, Valparaiso, Ind., declared she was discharged "to punish her for liberal sympathies and genuine interest in the problems and sufferings of the working class."

Police Believe Woman Swallowed Poison Dose

A woman was being held for observation at Emergency Hospital last night on belief that she had swallowed a tablet of poison in her home, 717 Eleventh street northwest, according to police reports.

The woman is Mrs. Elsie L. Winter, 32 years old. Her husband, Raymond, told police that he came into the kitchen and found that she had three of the tablets in her mouth. He took two of them away from her, he said. A bottle containing two more was found in the kitchen sink, police said.

Police Say Hanging Attempted in Cell

Prisoner, Charged With Drunkenness, Is Later Sent to Hospital.

A man, charged with being drunk, was taken to Gallinger Hospital last night after police said he tried to hang himself in a cell shortly after he had been booked at the Sixth Precinct Station.

Charles Gaddess, 39 years old, of 1627 Lamont street northwest, was brought in by Private R. N. Finch, of the Traffic Bureau, who said he found the man drunk in a car parked in the 7100 block of Georgia avenue. Private Finch said that the man locked both doors to the car when he saw the policeman coming, but was finally prevailed upon to give himself up. Police said Gaddess attempted to choke himself with his hands while he was being booked, and later made a loop out of his shirt, tying it to the top of the cell block.

The loop broke, however, when the man's weight was placed upon it, according to police. Gaddess was not seriously hurt, they said.

G. B. Pitts Is Recovering From Nose Hemorrhage

Gallinger Hospital authorities reported as "much better" last night the condition of G. Bryan Pitts, former executive of the F. H. Smith investment company. Pitts was taken to the municipal hospital from the City Jail Saturday night after a four-day nasal hemorrhage became more serious.

A private nurse was retained by Pitts and his personal physician joined Gallinger Hospital physicians in treating him. It was said last night that a blood transfusion, at first thought advisable, would probably not be given.

Coroner's Inquest Set Today in Child's Death

A coroner's inquest will be held at 11 o'clock this morning in the death of Justin Gray Satterley, 9 years old, fatally injured when struck by an automobile Saturday night.

Funeral services for the dead boy, who was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Satterley, 1415 Girard street northwest, will be held tomorrow at the Hines funeral parlors, 2905 Fourteenth street northwest, beginning at 8:30 a. m. At 9 a. m. mass will be said for the boy at the Shrine of the Sacred Heart, Sixteenth street and Park road northwest. Interment will follow at Mount Olivet Cemetery.

DISTRICT MEASURES SLATED FOR CAPITOL ACTION DURING WEEK

TESTIMONY ON BUDGET TO BE HEARD TOMORROW

House Group Will Resume Consideration of Traction Consolidation Plan.

The District faces a busy legislative week on Capitol Hill, with several bills pending on the House calendar, and hearings running the gamut of dry enforcement legislation, District appropriations, traction consolidation and bank regulation.

Hearings on the Comptroller of the Currency's bill to tighten regulation of banks, trust companies and building and loan associations in the District will get under way at noon today before Senator John J. Blaine's insurance and banks subcommittee.

Two bills governing release of deeds of trusts securing real estate notes and a measure to protect holders of industrial insurance policies, also will be considered at the meeting.

Other Efforts Slated.

Chairman Mary T. Norton, of the House District committee, is expected again to attempt to push through the House her bill to incorporate the District Bicentennial Commission. Other local items that may be called up include bills to compel attendance of Police and Fire Trial Board witnesses; to qualify the District tax assessor as a condemnation expert; to relieve the Commissioners of certain routine tasks; to improve Georgia avenue above Princeton place; to protect union labels, and to accelerate acquisition of property under condemnation laws.

The District Commissioners will appear before Representative Clarence Cannon's District subcommittee of the House appropriations committee at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning to open testimony on the District's $47,000,000 budget. As usual, these hearings will be closed to the public.

At 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon Senator Robert B. Howell (Republican), Nebraska, will go before the full Senate District Committee to explain his amended "home raid" bill, which would give policemen the powers of revenue officers and allow them to enter residences in quest of liquor without evidences of sale. Rufus S. Lusk, of the Crusaders, has asked for the right to appear in opposition to the bill.

The public utilities subcommittee of the House District Committee plans to resume merger hearings at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, and the full Senate District committee will again take up the traction consolidation project at its regular Friday afternoon meeting. Chairman Loring M. Black of the House utilities subcommittee has announced tomorrow's meeting will be the last House hearing on the merger project.

Enactment of legislation authorizing merger of the city's street railway and bus lines despite the opposition that has been voiced at congressional hearings was forecast yesterday by Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah, ranking Democraticic member of the Senate District committee.

Keech Slated to Appear.

Richmond B. Keech, people's counsel, and William McK. Clayton, representing the Federation of Citizens' Associations, will be heard by the House subcommittee tomorrow. Keech has recommended several changes in the bill. Before the Senate committee he advocated elimination of the bill in favor of a "simple" resolution, which would authorize a merger without going into details of the unification agreement.

Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman of the utilities body, has declared Keech's proposal is not feasible. To both congressional committees Gen. Patrick has explained that the pending merger bill invests the commission with the additional powers it must have if it is to negotiate properly the consolidation in the best interests of the public. Senator Warren R. Austin (Republican), Vermont, suggested an amendment providing greater protection for minority stockholders. Gen. Patrick will comply with his suggestion.

Washington's Love For Mother Cited

His Spirit of Reverence Is Praised in Sermon by Dr. La Rue.

"One of the outstanding characteristics of George Washington was his display of the spirit of reverence," said the Rev. William E. La Rue, preaching yesterday morning at the Takoma Park Baptist Church.

"This spiritual quality is alike beautiful and useful in human life. Reverence means to regard with respect and affection. Washington showed such reverence toward his mother," Dr. La Rue said.

"He gave up an early ambition to go to sea out of respect for her counsel," he went on. "He manifested tenderest affection for her throughout her life and when notified of his election to the Presidency hastened to her side at her home in Lynchburg to receive her blessing before assuming his high station. This act is one of the most precious incidents in his life and by it he has shown the kind of a man he was," Dr. La Rue concluded.

Baltimore Jewish Lodge To Install Officers Here

The George Washington Lodge of the Independent Order of B'rith Sholom of Baltimore will hold a public installation of officers tonight at the Jewish Community Center, Sixteenth and Q streets northwest.

Nathan Plotnick and Bernard Danzansky, of the Washington chapter of the lodge, will present 30 new candidates for membership to the grand officers of the organization, who will be present for the installation services. Samuel Steinbock, grand master of the B'rith Shohom, will address the new officers and candidates for membership.

PASTOR TELLS NAVY SPONSORS INTERNAL ENEMY IS GREATEST

Rev. Hulbert A. Woolfall Is Heard at Convention of Patriotic Group.

PARENTS SHOULD SET EXAMPLE, HE ASSERTS

Recognizes National Defense Need, He Declares, but Gives Warning.

"In our zeal for national defense we should not blind ourselves to the fact that our most insidious enemy probably exists in our own national fabric," the Society of Sponsors of the United States Navy was told by the Rev. Hulbert A. Woolfall, rector of St. Mark's Church, at a patriotic service yesterday afternoon at the Church of the Epiphany. The service marked the opening of the annual convention of the society here this week.

Recognizing the need for national defense to further the cause of peace, Dr. Woolfall observed at the same time that if the quality behind the nation is not a Christian one that all treaties, conference and other governmental machinery will go for naught, and the possibility of peace will be nullified.

"Our greatest fear should not be the armies and navies across the seas, but the cancer eating into our national life," the rector declared. "The present chaos in the world can be traced to the homes where Christianity has ceased to exist. We must recognize the fact that the solution of all moral and spiritual problems is in our homes. Our children should be brought up so that they will not countenance such conditions as exist in the world today.

Urges Parents' Example.

"We hear of the lack of authority on the part of the younger generation, but authority can not exist when the light behind it has faded," the preacher continued. "We can not make our children believe that God is the most indispensable thing in life if we don't demonstrate it. We can't expect them to go to church on Sunday mornings if we don't go ourselves.

"So the sponsorship of a ship, or any form of national defense, should go as far as we are willing to be responsible for the light behind that sponsorship," he explained. "The sponsorship of a ship should begin long before the ship is in drydock. We can sponsor a ship only in so far as we are willing to sponsor men. The strength of the Nation depends on the quality of men behind it."

Dr. Woolfall took for his text the words, "Launch out into the deep," from the fourth verse of the fifth chapter of St. Luke. "We must launch out from the shallow, inconsequential things of life," he explained. "The present problems of the world are related to our own lives, and the solution of these problems depends on our willingness to bear the responsibility. We must try to play the part of a Christian nation in this crisis."

Sweeping Reform Held Need.

Dr. Woolfall declared that a sweeping reform is needed in our national life, particularly in the fields of prisons, newspapers and moving pictures. He criticized a prison system that permits the electrocution of a youth, born out of wedlock, who has never had the advantage of a proper education and upbringing. The newspapers, he declared, should cease giving prominence to crime and sensational matter, and print conspicuously only what is "good and noble." The moving pictures, he added, should cut out all that is immoral and indecent.

"The situation in the world today represents a tremendous challenge," he asserted. "Darkness rests on the world, and there is no time to pay tribute to the great men who have gone before. Our greatest tribute to them can best be in allowing ourselves to be influenced by the fine example left by their lives."

The Society of Sponsors of the United States Navy will hold a business session this morning at the Willard, to be followed by a luncheon at noon and a pilgrimage in the afternoon to Mount Vernon, where a wreath will be placed on the Tomb of George Washington.

Truck Crash Hurts Man; 2 Charges Hold Driver

Max Litt, 23 years old, of 729 Quincy street northwest, is in Casualty Hospital suffering from a possible fracture of the skull, received yesterday when a truck in which he was riding collided with another machine at Fifteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast.

Police said the truck was operated by Samuel Weinstein, 22 years old, also of the Quincy street address. Following a collision with the machine of Martin A. Bayer, 37 years old, of 1803 A street southeast, police said Weinstein's truck ran onto the sidewalk and struck a tree. He was uninjured and later charged at the Ninth Precinct Station with driving without a permit and using dealer's license plates unlawfully.

Army Officer Says Cab Forced His Car Off Road

An electric light police signal on Fourteenth street, a few hundred feet south of Constitution avenue, was snapped off early yesterday morning when it was struck by an automobile operated by Lieut. Dale P. Mason, 33 years old, of the War Department transmitting station at Fort Myer.

Lieut. Dale told police he was crowded off the road by a taxicab.

BRUTALITY OF MAN DECRIED IN SERMON

Voice of Religion Heard in Midst of Despair, Says Dr. Rasmussen.

"In this wonderful world, 'where every prospect pleases,' it often does seem that 'only man is vile,'" said the Rev. Carl C. Rasmussen, preaching yesterday morning at the Luther Place Memorial Church.

"Not a single day passes without bringing to us such frightful news about the behavior of humanity somewhere that we are filled with shame and despair. What must God think about His creature made in His own likeness? If there once was necessity for the destroying deluge, will not such wantonness as man shows today drive God to destroy mankind again? Much of the literature of the day reveals only too clearly with what hopelessness and cynicism man looks upon professed aspirations for a higher life."

Supreme Power to Redeem.

"But it is precisely in the hour of the world's deepest despair that the voice of religion is heard most clearly. We may well rejoice that there is a power that is able to redeem even the vilest wretch.

"But it would be a fatal oversight to think that the challenge in the words of Jesus Christ were meant only for the outcast. Though they certainly do include the outcast they were not even addressed to such when they fell from Jesus' lips. It was not the unclean woman of Sychar to whom He then spoke, nor the woman taken in adultery. He spoke this call of conversion to His disciples. They were the members of His own church to whom He had so recently given the promise that the gates of hell should not prevail against the church," Dr. Rasmussen said.

One Way to Salvation.

"It has been said that man stands between the animal kingdom and the kingdom of God. And the animal wins, 'except ye be converted.' When we would do good evil is present within us. There is only one way to salvation. Lay hold of God, as did Jacob when he cried, 'I will not let thee go except thou bless me.' Better still, open the door of the heart that the spirit of the living Lord may possess us. Then man is indeed a new creature. 'Beloved, now are we the children of God, and it is not yet manifest what we shall be. But we know that we shall be like Him.' * * * 'till we all attain unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ.'"

Plumbing Parley To Open Feb. 24

Designing Engineers Are to Meet With Committee at Bureau of Standards.

Designing engineers and manufacturers of pottery, sanitary brass work and appliances identified with plumbing, have been invited to meet a committee from the American Society of Sanitary Engineers at the Bureau of Standards on February 24, 25 and 26, to discuss the subject of preventable cross-connections betwen domestic water supply and sewage-carrying pipes.

This subject is a highly controversial one, and the object of the meeting is a mutual understanding and the development of standard prevention devices.

The president of the society is Thomas M. Dugan, of McKeesport, Pa., and the local representative is A. R. McGonegal, District of Columbia plumbing inspector.

SERMON CRITICIZES UNCHURCHLY AIMS

Georgetown Lutheran Pastor Says Social and Money Goals Destroy.

"If a church becomes mainly a social and financial institution it thereby defeats its own purpose, that is to say it ceases to be a church," said the Rev. Harold E. Beatty preaching yesterday at the Georgetown Lutheran Church. He was preaching on the subject, "By the Wayside," his text being drawn from the thirty-fifth verse of the seventeenth chapter of the Gospel according to St. Luke. "And a certain blind man sat by the wayside."

"And if such a church persists in going under the name of the church it is therefore in great danger of becoming, 'a place of merchandise and a den of thieves,'" he continued.

"The purpose of the church is not to mold coin but to mold character. In the name of the church given by our Lord there is laid down its fundamental business principle. 'My house is to be called the house of prayer for all people.'"

Earlier in his sermon Mr. Beatty said, "Sitting in the dust there is a poor miserable man by the wayside. He cries to the crowds for help. They pay no attention to him except to command him to hold his peace.

Problem of Aiding Needy.

"We follow the crowds through the gates into the city, and behold there is another man by the wayside. Unlike the other man he has gained a vantage point by a position in a tree. He is a wealthy man. And both of these men have the same fundamental need. It is not a mere figure of speech to say that these men are still by the wayside.

"Here in your city, sitting in the dust of the street, is a brother man by the wayside. A common-place picture, yet a picture of human pity and pathos. Is it your boy or mine? In order to ease our conscience, some of us will toss him a coin, and think no more about him.

"Suppose everybody should pass by? In many instances that might be the best thing. It might therefore throw him back upon his own resources and thereby quicken the spark of manhood and self-respect.

Hoover Move Is Challenge.

"But here is the better way, the way to love. Let's put that man in a new environment with medical aid, social advantages and Christian care. By doing this we treat him not merely as a citizen, but as a fellow man having the same God-given capacity of love, joy and sorrow that you and I have.

"Here is the other picture, will you say more attractive and colorful? It is the rich man by the wayside. He, too, may be as lonely and forlorn as the beggar, even though he lives in an estate by the wayside. In his case the crowds are not asking what they can do for him, but rather what he can do for others.

"President Hoover has recently inaugurated a movement which brings a challenge before the very door of the rich. It is a plea to stop hoarding their wealth and bring it forth and invest it, not merely for pecuniary profit, but in the behalf of the holy cause of mankind."

Classes for Juveniles With Bad Sight Asked

The Lions Club of Washington has appointed a committee to work for the establishment of sight conservation classes in the District of Columbia for the education of children who can not, because of seriously defective sight, be properly educated in the regular grades.

REVIVAL OF CHURCH FREE FROM BIGOTRY IS ASKED BY CURTIS

PREACHER AT SERVICE IS BISHOP M'DOWELL

Dr. Montgomery Says Aim of Parish Is Advancing of High Ideals.

"Let us have a sane revival of church life in our country, free from intolerance and free from bigotry," declared Vice President Curtis yesterday afternoon, speaking at a dedication service of the new Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church at Nebraska and New Mexico avenues, Wesley Heights.

The Vice President went on to make a plea for the reestablishment of old-time faith as he understood it when he was a boy on the frontier.

The service was the second of two dedicatory gatherings in the new edifice during the day. The first was held in the morning and was addressed by Bishop William F. McDowell, resident bishop of the church.

Acceptance of Redeemer.

"They shall call His name Jesus for He shall save the people from their sins," was the topic of Bishop McDowell's sermon. The preacher made a strong appeal for the acceptance of the Christ as redeemer and in doing so he turned away from every other doctrine as being secondary. He emphasized the fact that although many preachers are interested in evolution or antievolution, or whether or not Moses is to be considered as an authority as to how long it took the world to be made, and still others in the fear lest there be two Isaiahs in the Bible, he was primarily interested in Jesus Christ as a Redeemer.

The Rev. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House of Representatives and minister of the new church, presided at both services.

Narrow Sectarianism Eschewed.

Dr. Montgomery, speaking of the spirit of the church, said:

"The Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church, on this day of dedication, in accord with its long history as the National Church, offers itself to our Capital City and the community of Wesley Heights in the spirit of a generous, broad Christian service. Its aim is to be a great influence and power for the high ideals in public and in private life. In keeping with its character, it is not dedicated to the cause of a narrow sectarianism, but to a Saviour whose teachings are as broad as humankind. It hopes to serve the people and seeks to inspire and to lead them in the spirit and example of Him who spake as never man spoke."

A representative group of bishops and ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church assisted in both the services.

The music for the day was presented by the Metropolitan Memorial Choir, the Mount Vernon Seminary Choir, Mrs. Carolyn Schoenthal, Harlan Randall, barytone and choir director, and Mrs. James Shera Montgomery, organist.

World Is Losing Its Sense Of Humor, Dr. Sheen Says

"Whether there be only five senses or fifty-seven, one of the most precious of them all is the one the modern world is rapidly losing, namely the sense of humor," said Dr. Fulton Sheen, of the Catholic University of America, speaking yesterday on the Catholic hour broadcast over a network of stations of the National Broadcasting Co.

"Not so long ago laughter was as free as the air, the natural product of human fellowship. Now it is put, on a commercial basis, and the business of making people laugh has become one of the serious enterprises of our country, so serious that we are now obliged to pay $2 for an evening of it at the theater," he said.

"Another evidence is the seriousness with which the modern world embraces every new fad and fancy in the intellectual order, simply because it is new. The only real explanation for the craze over every new psychology that first lost its soul, then its consciousness, and now its mind, and for the equally absurd theory that everything wrong in life is traceable to a sex libido, is that the modern world has lost its sense of humor.

"If these absurd theories about God being a creature of Space-Time, and religion being, as one philosopher puts it, 'a projection into the roaring loom of time of a unified complex of physical values,' were advanced 50 years ago, people would have laughed them out of existence."

Memorial Service Planned For Dr. Cooper, 'Y' Leader

William Knowles Cooper, Y. M. C. A. leader, who died suddenly January 17, will be held in the near future, under plans of the Washington Y. M. C. A. Dr. Cooper had been in the service of the local association for 21 years as general secretary, retiring in 1929.

Dr. George Otis Smith, head of the Federal Power Commission, had been appointed chairman of a special committee of Y. M. C. A. members assigned to arrange the ceremony. Other members of the committee are Hugh A. Thrift and Huston Thompson, who, like Dr. Smith, are former presidents of the association, and Leonard W. DeGast, general secretary, who succeeded Dr. Cooper.

The committee will meet Wednesday at the Central Y. M. C. A. to discuss the proposed service. Tentative plans call for a public meeting next month, probably in the First Congregational Church, where Dr. Cooper had been an active worker.

Members of the numerous organizations with which Dr. Cooper had been identified prominently will be invited to attend. Prominent speakers will eulogize the noted layman.

Dr. Cooper was affiliated with the national organizations of the Y. M. C. A. and of the Congregational Church, and was a member of many local religious, civic, philanthropic and business groups.
